TB still goes unconquered

SALEM (UPI) — Tuberculosis has not been conquered in Oregon and there are still 300,000 people in the state with potentially active cases of the disease, Dr. Ambrose Churchill advised the State Board of Health Tuesday.

Dr. Churchill, who is in charge of tuberculosis control for the board's staff, said even more skin testing is needed before the disease can be controlled.

But the Portland doctor noted there had been a dramatic decline in tuberculosis cases. He said the number of new cases dropped from 64.9 per 100,000 people in 1933 to 21.9 in 1963.

Deaths from tuberculosis have been reduced from 34.7 per 100,000 people in the state 30 years ago to 3.2 last year.

The death rate now seems to be leveling off after a spectacular decline, he noted.

But new cases are continuing. Last year there were 395 new active cases reported in Oregon, a decrease of five per cent from the previous year.

The Oregon death rate for the disease is half that of the nation as a whole, he said. Dr. Churchill said that before the disease can be eradicated all of the persons who are positive reactors to tuberculosis tests must be identified.

He said that in the past 10 years the department had given 874,813 chest X-rays and had found 996 cases of tuberculosis, 317 cases of lung cancer and 243 cases of other critical lung troubles.

In other action, the board took no action on a request from Salem Memorial Hospital for federal money for a cobalt diagnostic and treatment center. Marion County Medical Society doctors said there was no need for it.

The board also urged South Salem voters to approve a bond issue Jan. 21 to finance sewer facilities, and praised the city of Salem for its "far sighted" sewer plan.

Merchant group names officers

Retail merchants of the Bend Chamber of Commerce holding their annual organization meeting Monday reelected officers, set dates for special events through the year and named a special committee to make plans for Christmas decorations in downtown Bend, for the 1964 yuletide season.

Robert B. Somerville and Kenneth Brown were re-elected co-chairmen of the retail merchants, which functions under the Chamber. Heading the Christmas decoration committee will be C. F. Coryell and Kessler R. Cannon.

The merchants outlined a tentative schedule of special events for the entire year. Two of the events are not far distant. They are the annual George Washington Berserk Days, February 21 and 22, and a special one day Leap Year event, set for Saturday, February 29.

Jobs sought for workers

The Bend office of the Oregon State Employment Service today urged employers and householders to order workers now to help alleviate the usual increase in wintertime unemployment.

The Employment Service office has the largest files of qualified workers in the community for all kinds of jobs.

The Employment Service also has applicants for all kinds of skilled jobs, both part-time and full-time, Clark Price, OSES manager here, said.

Employers can contact workers by calling the Bend office of the Oregon State Employment Service, phone 382-3611.

Plans made for classes

Special to The Bulletin FORT ROCK — Adult education courses in typing or shorthand will be explored for the North Lake County area in a session to be held at Christmas Valley Recreation Hall Thursday evening, January 16, beginning at 8 p.m.

Robert Johnson, Bend, coordinator of the Central Oregon College continuing education program, will be present with the proposed instructor, Mrs. William Niskanen.

An earlier course set up for welding instruction has been postponed until the time when an instructor is available.
