

$42 million sum earmarked for work in Oregon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson asked Congress today for more than $42 million to continue the taming of Oregon's rivers and improvement of the state's harbors and waterways.

The President's budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1 included a request for $800,000 to begin work on Mason Dam and other features of the upper division of the Baker Project.

The proposed start on the $6,168,000 project in Eastern Oregon was among six new construction starts requested by the Bureau of Reclamation in its $320 million budget.

The Corps of Engineers also asked for two new starts in its proposed $38.2 million construction program for Oregon. The Army Engineers asked for $555,000 to begin construction of the John Day River flood control project.

Work proposed for the Baker Project included preconstruction engineering, land acquisition, relocation of a section of state highway No. 220 and the award of a contract for construction of Mason Dam.

Talent Project Eyed
The budget included $400,000 for construction of Agate Dam and other work in the Talent division of the Rogue River Basin project in southwest Oregon.

An appropriation of $2,393,800 was requested to complete presently planned work on the western division of the Dalles project, including completion of pumping plants and the construction of a district headquarters.

Other requests by the Bureau of Reclamation included $40,000 for minor construction in the Ochoco Irrigation District of the Crooked River project and $322,000 for work in the Klamath project shared with California.

In addition to the construction program, the bureau asked for $1.2 million for planning, surveys and other project development work.

The largest money request by the Army Engineers was $19.5 million to continue construction of the Green Peter reservoir, a multiple-purpose project including a power plant.

While Oregon shares in the huge project, a $72 million request for the John Day dam was credited to Washington.

Budget requests for the Corps of Engineers included $8.5 million for the Fall Creek reservoir and $3.5 million to help provide easier access to Columbia River ports in both Oregon and Washington.

Deep Channel Work
A total of $2 million was asked to continue the deepening of the Columbia and Lower Willamette River channels to 40 and 35 feet. The Army planned to spend $1.5 million for major rehabilitation of the south jetty at the mouth of the Columbia River.

In addition to funds requested for construction, the Army engineers asked for $1.1 million for studies and planning of future projects and $11.3 for operation and maintenance of existing projects.

Construction requests by the Corps of Engineers included: Blue River reservoir, $2,028,000 (M); Columbia and Lower Willamette River channel deepening, $2 million; Columbia River south jetty rehabilitation, $1.5 million; Coos and Mill-coma rivers, $555,000; Cougar Reservoir, $585,000; Fall Creek Reservoir, $8.5 million; Green Peter Reservoir, $19.5 million; John Day River, $400,000; Lower Columbia River bank protection, $500,000; Tillamook Bay north jetty rehabilitation, $500,000; Willamette River bank protection, $500,000; Yaquina Bay and Harbor, $1.7 million.

Tenor to give COC program
A group of songs by Vernon Crawford, tenor, will be featured on the Central Oregon College radio program this week. He will be accompanied by Dallas Quick, COC director of music.

The program will be made up of the following numbers: "Where E'er You Walk," Handel; "Avant des Quittier," from Gounod's Faust; "Do Not Go, My Love," Hageman, and "Rio Grande," arranged by Daugherty.

Injured Fatally
PORTLAND (UPI)—David S. Dixon, 23, Clatskanie, was injured fatally in a traffic accident here early today.

Police said his car struck a crane which was parked on SW Broadway.

SNOW EATER—Bend's snow loader works its way down Wall Street early this morning under the guiding hands of Carl Ramsay. The huge snow machine was purchased in 1954. Five trucks were kept busy hauling the snow to the city dump for disposal. Everywhere in Central Oregon men and machines are busy removing the snow.

Innocent plea is entered for murder suspect

VALE, Ore. (UPI) — Circuit Judge Jeff Dorroh Jr. Monday entered an innocent plea for Walford Keith Harris, 39, Salem, and scheduled Harris' first-degree murder trial here for April 6.

Harris, a salesman and former Mormon bishop at Salem, refused to enter a plea to a charge that he burned his wife, Vera, 37, to death in the wreckage of a car last Dec. 16.

When Harris refused to enter the plea, for technical reasons, the judge entered the innocent plea for him and set the trial date.

The suspect was indicted by a Malheur County grand jury earlier Monday following a pathologist's report on his wife's body. Details of this report have not been disclosed.

Mrs. Harris' death was listed first as a traffic accident. The Harris car had plunged down a 260-foot slope in flames.

Harris told officers he was thrown from the car and knocked unconscious.

Annual hospital meeting called

Special to The Bulletin
PRINEVILLE — Members of the Pioneer Memorial Hospital Association will hold their annual meeting Monday, January 27, at 8 p.m. in the Ochoco grade school cafeteria.

Five new members are to be elected to the board of directors, according to Harry Bongers, secretary. The annual report to the association on hospital's past year will also be made.

Members of the association are for the most part those persons who participated in the original financing for the construction of the hospital some 15 years ago.

Bongers also reported Monday that all bids for the remodeling and expansion of the hospital's east wing had been rejected by the board as being too high. The lowest bid was some $3,000 in excess of funds planned for the project.

The east wing, he said, will be remodeled on a much more modest scale than had been planned, and no solarium will be built at this time.

Rotanans report that plans for a chapel to be built to serve both the hospital and the adjacent county nursing home are slowly taking shape. Rotanans club members are spearheading the fund-raising for this project.

Meeting planned by Craft Club

Special to The Bulletin
SISTERS — The Craft Club will meet Wednesday, January 22, at 9:30 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Ernest Price. The project will be "Orgami," taught by Mrs. Price. Women are asked to bring scissors and small change to pay for supplies.

Child care will be at the home of Mrs. Leonard Langlellers. Mothers are asked to bring a sack lunch for the children. The women will have a sack lunch at noon.

All interested are invited to attend.

Removal of snow a major, costly job in mid-Oregon

By Nate Bull
Bulletin Staff Writer
"Let it snow — let it snow — let it snow."

As that pretty white stuff called snow floats down, it's again time for the annual battle to be fought on the streets and down Central Oregon highways. Man and machinery wage brain and brawn against that seasonal foe — Old Man Winter.

The state of Oregon, the county of Deschutes, and the city of Bend each spend thousands of dollars and hundreds of man-hours of labor to remove their adversary.

It is not a labor of love. Snow removal on the state level is broken into districts — or areas of command. Most of Central Oregon comes under the Redmond maintenance district, which comprises 671 miles of state highway. From the Crooked River Gorge to the junction of the Willamette Pass men from this district patrol the highways. The Dalles district has charge of points north of the Gorge.

Ten maintenance stations in this area are located at Santiam Highway Junction, Sisters, Redmond, Post, Bend, Mitchell, Prineville, LaPine, Brothers and Sunux.

Santiam Junction has 19 full-time men on duty, most of them living in the Junction bunkhouse. But when a large storm strikes this area — such as the one which has been hampering traffic and dampening enthusiasm for this "winter wonderland" — other crews are commanded into action.

This weekend about 30 men worked for the state against the snow as it isolated skiers, caused cars to skid into ditches, and virtually sealed off the major highways by slides, fallen trees and a mountain of snow. Called into combat because of the fallen trees were men of a bridge crew.

Ten trucks, a blade grader and four rotary plows prowled the Santiam Pass area. The plows alone each cost approximately $300 to run on a 24-hour basis, excluding labor.

Deschutes county also battles the common foe over 816 miles of roads. Thrown into combat are five graders, one rotary plow, three side - delivery plows and one V-plow.

The county budgets its snow removal under maintenance figures. Money spent in this area is not from county tax money, but rather from such revenues as U.S. Forest Service sales and rentals, state motor vehicle department fees, gas tax refunds, and sale of public lands.

A breakdown of money spent to remove snow on county roads: In 1961-62, $10,015.65 is the figure; $3,087.97, for 1962-63. The county is also responsible for the Cascade Lakes Highway into the ski area, which cost $10,584.12 in 1961-62 to keep open. Half of this sum was paid for by the state, or $5,292. During fiscal year 1962-63 the total cost was $6,475.53, of which the state paid $3,237.76.

The spring opening of the Elk Lake, East Lake, and Paulina Lake roads also come under the jurisdiction of the county. Costs to clear these were $2,200.32 during the winter of 1961-62 and $2,015.97 in 1962-63.

On the city level, Bend budgeted $5,000 this year for snow removal. This sum is from the Oregon state gas tax refund and if the amount spent exceeds the estimated figure, local taxes pay the balance. In the winter of 1961-62 the city spent $6,209.46 during a particularly heavy winter. But the year preceding saw only $23.12 spent. In other recent years the city paid $1,548.13 (1962-63) and $4,279.41 (1959-60).

Combining its road department and water department personnel (nine and 12 men respectively) under the leadership of Percy Drost, the city bucks the annual battle against the weather. One grader, five trucks, a V-plow and one snow loader are used to fight. Snow removed is taken to the city dump for disposal.

The city of Bend has about 70 miles of streets. Forty of these are paved, 30 are not. No "discrimination" is shown between the two types but heavier traveled streets are cleared first.

And so the fight continues. . .

County fair group selects five directors

Special to The Bulletin
REDMOND — Stockholders of the Deschutes County Fair Association elected five directors to their 15-member board at the annual meeting Monday evening in the Redmond Legion Hall.

Named to serve three years each were: Kessler Cannon, Bend; John Bauer, Jack Brazel, Priddy Holmes and Claude Tate, all of Redmond. Holmes and Tate were re-elected. The others are new to the board.

A 30-year member of the board of directors, Roy Newell, of Redmond, declined to accept nomination for another term. At the suggestion of President Laddie Jordan he was presented an honorary life membership in the board in appreciation for his long years of service.

The treasurer's report, presented by George McKinnon, revealed the association to be in good financial condition with some $3,200 more in funds on hand than a year ago.

Guests at the dinner meeting were members of the Deschutes County Court and their wives and Deschutes County extension agents. The board will meet officers at its February meeting.

Women draw conference role
The Bend chapter of Women of the Moose will conduct the opening ceremony, at the mid-winter conference Sunday, January 26. It will be held at Merrill, instead of at Klamath Falls, as originally planned.

Members who plan to attend are asked to register with Mrs. Freida Davis, senior regent, as soon as possible. Ritual practice for the local group's part in the conference was held yesterday.

At last week's meeting, Mrs. Gladys Metcalf was enrolled as a new member. She was sponsored by Mrs. Erwin Carpenter.

The child care chapter night was held, with Mrs. Marie Ferguson, child care chairman, in charge. Assisting with the program were committee members Mrs. Don Simpson and Mrs. Carpenter. A musical number was given, and refreshments were served.

Two newsmen draw fire from Morse

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., Monday added two more names to his list of "dropouts from the school of honest journalism."

The names of Rowland Evans and Robert Novak, columnists for the New York Herald-Tribune News Service, were added to that of reporter A. Robert Smith as "fellow travelers on the road of yellow journalism."

Evans and Novak aroused the Oregon Democrat's ire for a column criticizing Morse's role in consideration of the foreign aid bill. Smith, a correspondent for six Oregon newspapers, was criticized earlier this month for accusing Morse of delaying action on aid-to-education bills.

Morse's speech attacking the two columnists was also distributed in the press gallery in the form of a 12-page statement.

He accused the columnists of "assassinating the truth in typical McCarthyite fashion."

"They obviously were bent on doing a smear job and so they just lied and lied," Morse declared.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana rose earlier in the Senate to laud Morse after first assuring his colleagues that the Oregonian did not need praise. During his attack on the columnists, Morse returned the favor by praising the majority leader's record in moving "important liberal and forward-looking legislation" through the senate.

Plans reported for installation
Special to The Bulletin
PRINEVILLE — Installation of officers for the Juniper Temple 33 is planned for Wednesday evening, January 22, at 8 p.m. in the Odd Fellows Hall. Mrs. Charles Hutchinson is to be installed as MEC of the Temple.

Other new officers are Mrs. Ruth Cook, E. Senior; Mrs. Mildred Hoskinson, E. Junior; Nancy Bailey, manager; Mrs. Daisy Harlan, treasurer; Mrs. Goldie Stover, secretary; Mrs. Fay Bailey, musician; May Frasier, guard and Edith Lassater, protector.

Mrs. Hoskinson will be the installing officer, with Mrs. Stover as degree staff captain. The public is invited.

Officers named by new group
Directors of the newly-organized Bend Retail Merchants Association were elected at a luncheon meeting last week. Paul Pollock, manager of the Credit Bureau of Bend, is secretary of the group.

Charles E. Schmitz of Salem, representing the International Consumer Credit Association, was the speaker. He discussed the importance of credit education in the community, especially with regard to high school students. He used illustrative material to supplement his talk.

The new directors are Donald Thompson, James O'Keefe, Ruby Malmstrom, Steve Baker, Ray LeBlanc, Paul Pollock, Ruth Reid and Clarence Raper. Barbara West was named president of the Credit Women's Breakfast Club.
