ership of the 100,000-acre Eastern Oregon project to the Veterans' Department, and ordered it to repay to the general fund the money that had been spent to develop the project.

Shortly after the special session ended, Hatfield directed state agencies to submit priority requests for restoration of funds.

After the Oct. 15 tax vote, austerity cuts totaling $28.5 million were made in agency budgets. The agencies submitted priority requests totaling $2,424,228. These were trimmed to $743,428 for submission to the Emergency Board.

Hatfield is expected to recommend further restorations at a later date to cover the balance of the $900,000, and any other surpluses that might result in case tax receipts are above expectations.

Largest restoration to be recommended Friday is $207,725 for higher education, which had asked $747,814.

Next highest is $159,827 to the Board of Control, which had asked $518,915.

Other major restorations to be recommended, and the total sought by the agencies: Welfare $87,750, asked $106,300; education $46,628, asked $457,681; Board of Health $45,239, asked $108,987; labor commissioner $20,580, asked $37,343; Forestry Department $16,645, asked $40,323; state engineer, $12,508, asked $67,342; Insurance Department $9,563, asked $10,131; Justice Department $9,462, asked $48,103; and state library $2,800, asked $8,635.

In addition to the restoration of $743,428, the Emergency Board Friday will be asked to allot $203,887 for construction of an 80-man dormitory at the Oregon State Correctional Institution.

The Board of Higher Education is asking $268,500 for replacement of Campbell Hall at Oregon College of Education, the State Police $198,806 for salaries, and the Military Department $3,886 for repairs to National Guard armories at Eugene, Coos Bay and Astoria.

New 'green belt' law won't have any immediate effect in county
By Ila Grant Hopper
Bulletin Staff Writer

The new farm zone or "green belt" law, which became effective January 1, will not have any immediate application in Deschutes county, Assessor Robert E. Lyons said today.

When a farmer opens his property tax statement and finds an increased appraised valuation, Lyons said, he is apt to blame the increase on subdivision activity, if this is present or anticipated in his area.

Where farm land has increased in valuation in Deschutes county, the assessor said, it is because of increased prices in farmer-to-farmer land sales in the area, not because of actual or expected sub-division activity.

It has been the local policy to follow the market trends, rather than to anticipate them, Lyons said. The only large holding of property within the Bend city limits, which has been appraised at the rate for residential sites although not used as such, is that owned by Robert Coats, above the West Hills Addition.

Coats has indicated that this area will be the next he will plat, and agreed to the increased assessment, it was reported.

The "green belt" law apparently will have the most application in counties where overzealous assessors have jumped the gun on appraisal increases. The law has two main divisions, the first relating to land within areas designated as "farm use zones" by zoning commissioners, and the second relating to farm land outside such zones.

Courses planned on refinishing of furniture

Three four-hour courses in furniture refinishing, each consisting of two sessions, will be held next week and the following week in Deschutes county. Two courses will be given in Bend, and one in Redmond. One of the Bend courses is scheduled for evening hours.

The training is offered by the Extension Service, with Mrs. Jane Schroeder, home economics extension agent, as instructor. The courses are open to the public, with both men and women invited. Connection with an extension unit is not a requisite for attendance.

Following the second session, workshop groups will be organized only for those who want to actually refinish a piece of furniture under the supervision of a leader. Both public meetings must be attended in order to qualify for the workshop groups.

Time and place for the first sessions are as follows: January 30, 1-3 p.m., Extension conference room, Chadwick Building, Redmond; January 30, 7:30-9:30 p.m., Bend Moose Hall, 1033 Division Street; January 31, 1-3 p.m., Bend Moose Hall, 1033 Division Street.

Meeting No. 2 will be one week later, February 6 and 7, at the same hours and locations. Those who wish to attend are asked to call the Extension Office in the courthouse in Bend or the Chadwick Building in Redmond to register. Pre-enrollment blanks are also available both places.

Area educators attend meeting of optometrists
Three tri-county educators were guests of the Central Oregon Optometric Society, at a meeting recently in Bend. The purpose was to explore ways for helping children with achievement handicaps, through the fields of developmental optometry and special education.

The guests were Mrs. J. E. Hyatt, head of the special education department in the Bend Public Schools; Robert Johnson, Jefferson county school superintendent, and James Howden, head of the Crook county special education department.

There was a discussion of terminology and testing procedures common to the fields of children's vision and remedial education, and plans were made for inter-professional communication on specific cases.

Jeannace again cuts her wrist

SALEM (UPI) — Condemned child slayer Jeannace June Freeman, 22, cut herself on her right wrist Saturday evening, Warden G. T. Gladden said today.

The cut, administered with a piece of broken lotion bottle, was superficial and did not require stitches or any treatment other than a band aid, Gladden said.

He said Miss Freeman, who would be the first woman executed in the Oregon gas chamber, was despondent.

Last fall Miss Freeman cut her wrist in a similar incident. She was sentenced to death for the 1961 slaying of a six-year-old boy in Central Oregon.

Columbia pact clears way for final battle

OTTAWA (UPI) — Signing of a final Columbia River agreement between Canada and the United States today cleared the way for a last battle over joint development plans for the West Coast river system.

The battle, firm lines for which have yet to be drawn, will be waged primarily in the House of Commons' External Affairs Committee shortly after the 26th Parliament returns to work Feb. 18.

On one side will be the liberal government of Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson, determined to get the parliamentary ratification for the Columbia treaty which now stands alone in the way of a start on the long-proposed project.

On the other will be the treaty's critics, a group certain to include the new Democratic party, possibly the official conservative opposition, and several private experts led by former International Joint Commission Chairman Gen. A. G. L. MacNaughton.

Few observers doubt that the Pearson administration will win the battle.

Purpose of the Great Decisions Programs is to bring to a wide audience the significance of important issues of our times.

Hansen said persons in the Central Oregon area interested in forming a Great Decisions group should contact him at his college phone, 382-4801, or at his residence, 382-3566.

Subject picked by speaker

"Occident and Orient" will be the subject when Mrs. Suchitra Khanna speaks to the Bend branch of American Association of University Women Thursday evening. Mrs. Henry Bostelman, 268 Congress, is the hostess.

Mrs. Khanna, a graduate student from India at OSU, is working for her Ph.D. in nutrition. She also has a B.S. degree in biology and English, and a master's degree in home economics.

No stranger to the Bend area, Mrs. Khanna visited here last year with a group of exchange students. She will be bringing her son, a first grader in the Salem Public Schools, with her on this trip. Her husband, Satya, also an OSU graduate student, is working on his Ph.D. in electrical engineering.

Refreshments will be served by the Orange group beginning at 7:30 p.m., with the Yellow group in charge of the program.
