AWAIT TREK — Organizing this year's Mothers' March of Dimes campaign are Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Price. They will be directing activities of scores of Bend mothers and service club women Thursday night in door-to-door solicitation for funds to combat birth defects, arthritis and other diseases. Residents are asked to burn porch lights as signal to marchers.

Durno to head Goldwater group

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dr. Edwin Durno, a former Republican congressman from Oregon, Tuesday was named chairman of the Oregon presidential primary election campaign for Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

Durno, a 68-year-old retired physician from Medford and a former state senator, was appointed to the position after meeting with Goldwater.

Durno also met with Dennison Kitchel, general director of the Goldwater campaign, and Richard Kleindienst, director of the campaign's field operations.

"I'm going to undertake this job," Durno said. "I'm going to have a steering committee of prominent Oregonians. Also, I am mulling over selection of a woman co-chairman for the campaign."

The former congressman said he would leave for Oregon Thursday following another meeting with Goldwater.

He said he plans on opening state headquarters in Portland soon.

Durno just returned by ship from a tour of Africa and Europe. The tour began Oct. 31.

The body was discovered by a maid at the hotel where she was staying, police said.

Hatfield notes dangers from U.S. contracts

PORTLAND (UPI) — Gov. Mark Hatfield Tuesday cited layoffs at the Boeing Co. plant in Seattle as an example of economic hardship that can follow dependence on federal contracts.

Hatfield told Kiwanis Club members that a bank study has shown Washington's economic situation with Boeing left out "leaves much to be desired in growth."

The governor said it seemed obvious that when he was elected Oregon should seek development other than from federal sources.

Hatfield said that in the last five years some $75 million has been invested in 92 new industrial plants or in expansion of existing plants in Oregon.

He cited this as "evidence of Oregon economic growth without the stimulation of federal economic shots."

The governor added the state can not sit still. "We must diversify" to compete with other states, he said.

Hatfield also said many plants were moving to the South "because of a temporary situation which lets them escape organized labor." He added, "I don't want that kind of business in Oregon."

Blaze partially destroys home

Special to The Bulletin

PRINEVILLE—A farm home on Barnes Butte road, a short distance north of Prineville was partially destroyed by fire Monday afternoon. The building is owned by Hudspeth Land and Livestock. It was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Workman and their 3-year-old daughter.

Fire in the attic was discovered by Workman shortly after lunch when flames swept across the ceiling around the chimney to the kitchen stove. Prineville firemen answered his call and fought the blaze for about an hour. The roof of the structure was destroyed.

Workmans were aided by firemen and neighbors in removing their furniture. Several pets, including a collie with a new litter of puppies, were evacuated safely.

Dividend set

Some 200 farmers and stockmen in this area will share in a $9615.30 dividend to be paid by the Federal Land Bank Association of Redmond.

The dividend, declared by the association to its stockholders of record on Nov. 30, 1963, represents the association's share of a 6 per cent dividend declared by the Federal Land Bank of Spokane, Robert McCormick, Redmond, association manager said. The Spokane bank's dividend approximated $1,000,000.

The 1963 dividend is the largest ever paid by the Spokane bank and brings to $6,600,000 the total in dividends paid since 1944, according to Mr. McCormick.

Tourist folder distribution set

Central Oregon Vacationland, a 16-page tourist folder, has been received by the Deschutes County Advertising Committee and distribution will be started at once. Fifty thousand copies will be distributed through the Bend and Redmond Chambers of Commerce.

The four color folder is illustrated with Central Oregon scenery, a large area map, with a new strip map to show the location of the area as it refers to the Pacific coast states and how to get to Central Oregon.

Requests for folders in 1963 were the greatest that the committee has ever experienced. Orders came from nearly every state in the union with the most from California.

Pearson says he'll run again

PORTLAND (UPI) — State Sen. Walter Pearson, D-Portland, said today action of the State Board of Higher Education in raising tuition had caused him to decide to run for reelection.

Pearson, who charged the increased tuition rates "kicked the taxpayer right in the face," said he had not intended to run for the Senate again.

"But I have changed my mind," he said. "I will actively campaign to bring the system of higher education back to where the people want it, providing a good education for all the youth of our state at a reasonable cost and with reasonable entrance requirements."

The board Monday decided to hike tuition $96 a school year starting next fall.

Pearson said the board "indirectly raised the taxes by raising the tuition..."

Chinese demand brushed aside

PARIS (UPI) — Red China's indirect demand for a break between France and Nationalist China was brushed aside today by President Charles de Gaulle's government.

Information Minister Alain Peyrefitte told newsmen that Tuesday's Peking statement that the Reds are establishing diplomatic relations with France on the understanding that they will be recognized as China's only legal government had not affected France's views.

Peyrefitte said the Peking statement was discussed at a cabinet meeting presided over by De Gaulle.

Author Brogan notes interest in inland area

The surprising popularity of "East of the Cascades" can primarily be attributed to wide interest in Oregon's inland country, a land about which little has been written.

Phil F. Brogan, Bend, author of the book which twice in the past two weeks topped in sales all non-fiction volumes in the Pacific Northwest, expressed this belief Tuesday in an informal talk before members of the Lions Club.

Sales of the book in the Portland area and in other parts of western Oregon have been outstanding, the author noted. A good sale has even been reported from Seattle, Wash. Locally, some 1,500 books will have been sold by the end of the month. Eriksen's Stationery said a new order for 500 books has been placed.

Brogan had as his topic for his Lions' talk "The Woes of a Writer." However, most of his talk was devoted to the joys of new historical discoveries, new friends and "new horizons."

He said much of the interest in the lands east of the Oregon Cascades is due to the fact that people know little about the high country in its scenic corral of mountains, and apparently are eager to read the story of the ancient lands, and to learn of the history of pioneer days.

Five attend leaders' meet

Four Deschutes county 4-H club leaders and Miss Lynne Hoffman, county 4-H club agent, attended the 29th annual Oregon 4-H Leaders Conference held recently in Corvallis. Local area leaders in the group were Mrs. Armand Karrer, Tumalo; Mrs. B. G. Duberow, Bend, and Mrs. Meade Pedersen and Mrs. Robert Weismann, Eastern Star.

Mrs. Weismann participated in a panel discussion of career exploration through 4-H club work. Through their "town and country" project, she reported, Deschutes county club members are setting up a study of careers on an individual basis.

The conference theme was "You and Youth." It was pointed out that the most important roles leaders can play are to help young people make decisions, accept their social responsibilities and learn self-discipline and creative thinking.

Lodge honors Florence Stout

Mrs. Florence Stout, new queen of the Deschutes County Pioneers Association, was recognized for this recent honor at the last meeting of the Bend Rebekah lodge. She was presented with a gift. One officer was elected to fill a vacancy, another was installed, and four members were appointed to committees.

Mrs. Earl Weber was elected to a three-year term on the board of trustees. Mrs. W. E. Bennett was installed as right supporter to the noble grand by Mrs. C. E. Hein, district deputy president, assisted by Mrs. Fred Gibson, grand marshal.

Mrs. Walter Hall was named community service chairman. Mrs. Nary Kittleson was appointed to select refreshment committees for the year. Mrs. D. H. Bryant and Mrs. Stout were appointed to the finance committee.

A social hour was held following the meeting, with about 35 members attending. Mr. and Mrs. D. Ray Miller served refreshments.

Grave tampering serious offense

TACOMA (UPI)—Four college pranksters found out in court Tuesday that grave tampering is a serious offense.

Justice of the Peace Waldo Stone sentenced the four to 90-day jail sentences and then suspended the term with the stipulation that the four restore every plot in Old Settlers Cemetery from which they had stolen the skull of a man buried in 1896.

The four, all freshmen at Pacific Lutheran University, are John Sullivan, 19, Renton, Douglas Earlandson, 18, Sunnyside, and James Farrelli and Randy Hanock, both 18, of Tacoma. A fifth youth was to appear later in connection with the case.

The four told the judge that last Wednesday they opened the grave of Robert Wood, stole the skull, placed it in a cardboard box and took it to their living quarters on the school campus. There they put the skull in the locker of a friend as a prank.

A resident in the area of the cemetery took the license of the car the students were using and this led to their arrest last Thursday.

Short course is under way

Special to The Bulletin

REDMOND — Second of two meetings of the soils and irrigation short course in the Redmond extension office is underway today with 30 in attendances, reports Robert H. Sterling, county agent.

Howard Cushman, extension soil specialist, OSU, was first speaker, discussing physical and chemical properties of Deschutes County Soils. He reviewed the major soils of the county, discussed their origin, color, texture and structure, as well as their capability classes and management problems. He also discussed soil chemistry, using demonstrations and illustrations.

Today, speaker is Marvin Shearer, extension soils and irrigation specialist at OSU. There are three more meetings — February 5, 12 and 19, all to be held at the extension conference room in Redmond.

Another OSU short course, "Business Management for Cattle Ranchers," has drawn more than 40 registrants in the tri-county area. Manning Becker, extension farm management specialist, led discussions January 21 and 28. Kinds of costs involved in ranch management and other economic principles of farm management were featured. Surveys of Eastern Oregon cattle ranches made in 1960 were used as a basis for discussion. The final session, to be held February 4 in Madras, will feature LeRoy Rogers, extension farm management specialist at OSU.

JOSEPHINE DA NAMED

SALEM (UPI) — Elbert L. Mikesell of Grants Pass today was named Josephine County district attorney, the governor's office announced.

Mikesell succeeds Lawrence A. Aschenbrenner who recently was named state public defender.

An Air Force veteran of World War II, Mikesell was an unsuccessful candidate for district attorney in 1960.
