The award carries with it a $15 check and a trophy. Doug started his route in northeast Bend during the summer of 1962. He has 68 customers in his area.

Commissioners study variety of matters

Bend city commissioners at a luncheon conference Friday considered various matters that will come up for formal consideration at the regular meeting of the commission next Wednesday night. These will include proposed new garbage collection regulations, a franchise and assignment of collection areas. Another meeting on this same matter will be held prior to Wednesday, with garbage collection operation, franchises and fees to be further explored.

The commission also made arrangements to meet with officials of Cascade Natural Gas Wednesday at a 6 p.m. dinner, prior to a commission meeting. Information talks are scheduled.

Members of the commission accepted an invitation from the League of Women Voters for an 8 p.m. conference on March 3, at 8 p.m. This will be in connection with the League's new community information booklet.

City Manager Hal Puddy at the Friday noon conference reported to the commissioners on the management survey. A report was also submitted on the urban renewal agency, members of which are Lyman C. (Chuck) Johnson, Glenn Cushman and Gordon McKay. The agency members met Tuesday to draw up by laws.

At the Wednesday meeting, the commission will formally consider the application of Leonard Lundgren to haul logs over Wilson, Edgewater and Woodland streets, from the Brooks-Seanlon plant to Lelco, Inc. Permission to use the route in moving some 45,000 board feet of logs is sought.

The secretary said he expected the FPC decision to be appealed and to be in court "for several years," but said he did not yet know what legal action the Interior Department would take.

(In Kennewick at a special board meeting Friday, the WPPSS directors unanimously agreed that Udall be urged to file for a petition for a rehearing in support of the WPPSS position for "statutory preference" in connection with licensing the dam.)

Udall's demand for federal construction of the dam was opposed by both WPPSS and Pacific Northwest Power Co.

Udall, in criticizing the FPC decision, said the High Mountain Sheep site is the last major dam site left on the river. He said nine downstream dams all were federal and that federal construction of High Mountain Sheep was necessary to assure its operation to increase benefits at the other dams.

If the FPC decision is upheld, he said, it would be "absolutely essential" for the commission to require Pacific Northwest Power Co. to operate the dam to provide maximum power production at the downstream dams. The FPC, he added, has the authority to make such a demand.

In its decision favoring private construction, the FPC rejected Udall's proposal for federal construction on grounds there was "little if anything" to recommend it even if it were to take place now. However, the opinion noted, the department has "frankly admitted" it did not plan to seek authorization of the project at this time.

School planning sum approved

The Community Facilities Administration has approved $27,000 for planning in advance of a new elementary school, and expansion of a present building, in Redmond, according to information received by The Bulletin today from Senator Maurice B. Neuberger and Rep. Al Ullman.

Voters of Redmond will be asked to approve a $550,000 bond issue for construction of the new grade school. The election will be held late in March.

In addition to providing funds for the new building, the bond issue would provide for additions and alterations to John Tuck School. The work at the John Tuck school is estimated at $108,000.

Cost of the new grade school has been placed at about $422,000.

2 COC faculty members plan advanced study

Two members of the Central Oregon College faculty have announced plans to work toward completing advanced degrees during the 1964-65 academic year. They are Donald E. Burd, assistant professor of mathematics, and William W. Speth, instructor in anthropology and geography.

Burd, a member of the COC faculty for the past eight years, has received a year's leave of absence to take advantage of his receipt of a National Science Foundation grant for the Academic Year Institute at Oregon State University. The local professor was one of five junior college teachers selected from applicants throughout the nation for the grant at OSU.

Burd said he will concentrate in the study of mathematics while at Oregon State, and plans to return to COC next year after completing the requirements for his Master of Science Degree. Burd's wife, Margaret, and two children, Carol and Dean, will accompany him to Corvallis for the year of residence.

Speth, who has been on the COC staff for the past three years, has reported his resignation to complete work on his Ph.D. Speth, who completed his M.S. at Northwestern University in 1956, has done pre-doctoral study at the University of California. He indicated that he will either resume his studies at California, or the University of Oregon. Speth also was awarded a National Science Foundation grant, this for the Academic Year Institute in Oceanography at the University of Washington, but has turned down the offer in order to concentrate on his first academic love, geography. Speth was one of the ten persons selected from national competition for the Washington grant in oceanography.

Speth and his wife, Hilda, have two children, Rachel two years of age, and Benjamin, six months.
