Hearing ends on S.P. request to cut service

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Southern Pacific railroad's request to discontinue all but summer service on its Shasta Daylight passenger train was taken under submission Thursday night by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Final witnesses appeared before ICC Examiner Thaddeus C. Denton Thursday in the closing session of the fourth phase of hearings in California and Oregon. Previous sessions were held in San Francisco, Klamath Falls and Portland.

Southern Pacific presently operates the Shasta Daylight on a daily basis during the summer months and tri-weekly during the remainder of the year. It is seeking permission to abandon the tri-weekly portion of the service, which runs from Oakland, Calif., to Portland.

Donald A. Hawkins, chief transportation investigator for the Oregon Public Utilities Commission, testified that his state felt the train was a vital link with other trains serving the Northwest.

Hawkins said losses from operation of the Shasta Daylight in 1962 amounted to only 1.51 per cent of Southern Pacific's total rail income.

Southern Pacific has complained that because of government subsidies, competition from local flight airlines was too stiff.

BPW hears talk by Dr. Moody

Dr. E. A. Moody was guest speaker at the regular dinner meeting of the Bend Business and Professional Women's Club Wednesday evening. He returned recently from a tour of medical duty in Malaya.

Dr. Moody showed a large map of the country and colored slides of Kuala Lumpur, a Medicare station. The idea for these Medicare stations originated with the late Dr. Tom Dooley, he stated.

There are several of these Medicare stations now in this large territory of hundreds of thousands of people, but with only six resident doctors. A resident doctor must stay two years. The government is very co-operative but doctors are hard to obtain.

Slides of Bangkok, the primitive jungle lands around Kuala Lumpur, of Tokyo and Hong Kong were included. Dr. Moody travelled from Honolulu via Europe and returned the shorter route via Anchorage, Alaska.

Mrs. Bernice Combs was a guest. The next meeting will be March 25 at the home of Mrs. Willard B. Hollenbeck.

Posthumous hero awards made to 3

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (UPI) — The Carnegie Hero Fund Commission today announced posthumous awards to three Oregonians for heroic rescue efforts.

Sidney V. Weybright, a dredge operator, and Robert Tabor, a millwright of St. Helens, were honored for attempting to rescue Keith Karjala, 13, from high voltage wires at St. Helens August.

G. Wesley Moore, a plywood mill worker, was honored for attempting to save Duane C. Schulze, 14, from drowning near Tokete Falls in December of 1962.

Weybright's widow received a bronze medal plus $60 a month for three years and Tabor's widow received a bronze medal and $80 a month for that time.

Moore's former widow, Mrs. Margaret J. Moore Fogle, Roseburg, received a bronze medal and each of his four sons $500 in cash for educational or other worthy uses.

The citation said Weybright and Tabor climbed a tree in an attempt to rescue the Karjala youth who had come in contact with electric wires and lost consciousness. Both got hold of the youth and then Weybright's head came in contact with a power line. All three were killed.

Moore went to the rescue of the Schulze youth who had fallen into a power company canal. The citation said he slipped and fell into the canal and that the current carried both to their deaths.

Watson warns on home repairs

A word of warning from the office of Floyd Watson, Bend building inspector:

It would be wise, says Watson, to contact the Building Department when approached by parties offering to undertake general home repair jobs.

Doing this enables the department to investigate the party's qualifications, and ensure that the work performed complies with the Uniform Building Code.

Watson refers to roofers, siders, heating equipment installers and similar workmen. He cautions that the spring season frequently brings large numbers of phoney contractors into small cities.

Leaders' group officers map Camp Fire plans

Newly-elected officers of the Bend Camp Fire leaders' association assumed their duties this week, with a planning meeting held Wednesday.

Officers were elected last week at the regular monthly meeting of the leaders' group. They are: Mrs. William Yates, president; Mrs. Roy McKenzie, vice-president and president-elect for the following year; and Mrs. George Hobbs, secretary and coordinator of community services.

A committee for the Dad-Daughter banquets, which will be held April 6 and 7, was named also. Members are Mrs. William Schaltenkerk, chairman; Mrs. Darrell Liska, Mrs. Herbert Jenner and Mrs. Gaylord Johnson.

Wednesday's meeting of the new officers was held at the home of the new president, Mrs. Barbara Reynolds, Camp Fire executive, also attended.

Among items discussed at the meeting were a proposed Mothers' Tea; scheduling of group pictures with a local studio; in the Grand Council Fire to be held in May; possible summer activities for Blue Bird and Camp Fire groups; a spring function for first graders interested in becoming Blue Birds, and ideas for leaders' meetings.

The next meeting of the leaders' association will be held Thursday, April 2, 9:30 a.m., at Brooks Memorial Hall.

Program given on dwarf trees

"Dwarf Fruit Trees for Home Gardens" was the program subject at a meeting of Mirror Pond Garden Club Wednesday, with Mrs. R. B. Zimmerman as speaker.

Mrs. Boyd Litesher was hostess at her home at 711 E. First Street.

Fruit growing in home gardens has been made easier in recent years by the development of dwarf stocks and chemicals for insect control, the speaker said. Most dwarf fruit trees require as much space as a large shrub, sunshine and deep, well-drained soil.

Selection of varieties is influenced by taste, climate conditions and available space. An excellent bulletin by Robert L. Stevens, horticulture specialist, is available from the Extension Service, the speaker said.

Mrs. Leo Bauer demonstrated the new fad of making artificial chrysanthemums from satin ribbon. Kits containing ribbon, wire, floral tape, leaves and styrofoam balls are available in local stores, she said. With her assistance, each member made a like-life chrysanthemum with little time and effort, during the lesson period.

Ten members and a guest, Mrs. Mabel Oversiret, were present.

Mrs. Neal A. Goldsmith will be hostess to the club at the next meeting, April 8.

Reynolds to speak Monday at Midstate Co-op meeting

LaPINE — The annual meeting of Midstate Electric Cooperative will be held at the LaPine School gymnasium Monday, March 15 at 10:30 a.m. with Roy Larson presiding.

Paul Reynolds, mayor of Bend, will be guest speaker. Other special guests are to include Henry Alderman, Portland, representing Rural Electric Services, and Eric Reuterstrom, executive secretary of the Oregon association of Rural Electric Cooperatives.

Manager A. Cone Hunter will for the first time present his report to the membership, having completed just two months with the utility. He assumed management of Midstate on the January 15 retirement of George M. Larimer after nearly 12 years with the cooperative.

Election of three directors — two from LaPine and one from the Silver Lake district — will be a chief item of business Monday. Balloting will also be done on amendments to the by-laws, affecting the date of the annual meeting and the method of nominations for directors.

A noon luncheon will be served by the LaPine Home Extension Unit, with Mrs. Peter Zuercher of Fall River as president.

Hunter, as manager, came to Midstate from the Plumas-Sierra Cooperative at Portola, Calif., where he was manager for nine and a half years. His record with rural electric cooperatives began in 1948 when he moved to Oregon from Iowa where he had been reared on a farm purchased from the government by his great grandfather in 1836.

His skill in bringing the California utility to a strong financial position from a deficit operation prior to his years there, as well as a similar record with a small Washington cooperative, is a quality which will benefit the continued growth and stability of Midstate.

In coming to LaPine from a larger community and a much larger cooperative Hunter feels that there is real opportunity for expansion in Midstate's service.

With the population situation people are hungry for space, for the wide open spaces, he feels, where now all the comforts of the city can be provided without some of the pressures. While some will decide they don't like it and will return to the city, the many who will stay are those who will mean growth in the service to be provided by Midstate.

The new manager has been active in civic affairs in the communities where he has lived. He has also been working with state and national rural electric cooperative associations in places of leadership.

The Hunters live south of LaPine on Highway 31 until they buy or build a home. Mark is an eighth grader at LaPine; Parke, a member of the Bend High School junior class and Starky is employed in Portola.

Fifty young people from the Yamhill County Christian Endeavor Unions attended a 3-day retreat at the Methodist Youth Camp near Suttle Lake this past weekend.

Saturday afternoon the group enjoyed skiing, tobogganing and sledding at Hoodoo Bowl.

FBLA chapter plays host to Bend business people

Bend business people who participated in the local career observation program of Future Business Leaders of America were guests of the Bend High School chapter at a program Thursday evening in the school library.

Several chapter members who will compete in contests at the state meeting, April 10 and 11 in Corvallis, were introduced. Reports and skits explained the FBLA goals and objectives, following musical entertainment and the serving of dessert.

Competing in Corvallis will be Darlene Wilson and Dan Hornsby, seniors, "Miss and Mr. FBLA"; Sharon Fountain, speech contest winner, and Alan Friberg, runner-up in the spelling contest. Miss Wilson will also compete in the spelling contest, as first-place winner. Shirley McSmith was runner-up in the speech contest.

Entertainment included a quiz on trade names, conducted by Miss Hafter, and a spelling contest between the students and the guests. A trio comprised of Sue Conner, Pat Baer and Sharon Warren sang, with Glenda Alford as accompanist. Linda Byers played background music during the social hour.
