

British troops rushed by peace force

KYRENIA PASS, Cyprus (UPI) — The United Nations peace force rushed British paratrooper reinforcements to this strategic area today to help Canadian U.N. troops cope with continued shooting between Greek and Turkish Cypriots.

Greek Cypriots issued an ultimatum they would launch an all-out attack if Turkish Cypriots did not withdraw.

During the night Turkish Cypriots at this pass in the north-east, advanced across the Nicosia - Kyrenia road. They moved eastward and seized gun positions overlooking the Greek Cypriot villages of Katodhikomo and Panodhikomo.

Heavy firing gave way to sporadic burst during the morning but then the Greek Cypriots issued the ultimatum.

The British paratroopers were being moved between the opposing forces.

About 200 Greek Cypriots were reported to have gathered in Panodhikomo threatening to attack Turkish Cypriots unless they withdrew from a spur overlooking the village.

The Canadians landed two patrols by helicopter on the Kyrenia mountain range this morning in a bid to halt firing there which involved the Greek Cypriot village of Bellapais on the northern side of the range, east of the road, and the Turkish Cypriot village of Temblos.

Canadian ferret armored scout cars stationed at Temblos were unable to prevent a heavy clash between the two sides early this morning and new firing was reported there.

A Canadian patrol was reported to have persuaded one of the Turkish Cypriots hilltop posts to accept a ceasefire.

No estimates of casualties in the new shooting were immediately available.

Mrs. Merriam in Thailand

SINGAPORE (UPI) — Joan Merriam, 27, who is attempting a round the world flight on the route taken by the late Amelia Earhart, arrived here today from Bangkok, Thailand.

She flew her twin-engine City of Long Beach from Bangkok in 7 hours, 19 minutes.

The diminutive blonde, who comes from Long Beach, left Oakland, Calif., March 17.

Another pilot, Mrs. Jerrine Mock, Columbus, Ohio, landed on Wake Island in the Pacific Sunday on the home stretch of her globe-girdling flight in a single-engine plane.

Farley suffers slight injury

KEARNY, N. J. (UPI) — James J. Farley, former postmaster general, suffered a slight wrist injury Sunday night when the taxi he was riding in was rammed from the rear on the Passaic Bridge.

Farley, 75, was treated at the scene for an injured left wrist and told police he would see his doctor for further treatment.

Farley is now chairman of the board of the Coca-Cola Exporting Division.

Police said the taxi had stopped in the center lane because of a traffic tieup and was hit by a car driven by Roberto Eguino, 39, West New York. Eguino was given a summons for careless driving.

HE MISSED HIS TRAIN BUT HAD FUN — A resident of Uvalde, Tex., Hugh Grant, center, came west this past weekend to ride to Bend from Portland on the Rotarian's excursion train, but found the train had been cancelled. In Bend he was greeted by Rotarians Bob Libby, left, and Steve Baker, right, who made the visitor at home. Grant was stationed at Camp Abbot in World War II.

Rights leaders send pickets to 'auto row'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Civil rights leaders today begin a week-long series of demonstrations along San Francisco's "automobile row" that threaten to spread to automobile dealers in 50 major cities across the country.

Spokesmen for the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) said the demonstrations would be confined to peaceful picketing for several days, but they warned of renewed sit-ins at the city's three largest dealers if agreement is not reached on ending alleged discriminatory hiring practices. Demonstrations on automobile row Saturday erupted into noisy sit-ins and ended with the arrest of 219 demonstrators, the most ever jailed in a civil rights protest in San Francisco. Among those arrested was actor-author Sterling Hayden.

The demonstrators were released after posting $78 bonds and were to appear in municipal court today.

Herbert Hill, national labor secretary of the NAACP, Sunday outlined the plans for the nationwide drive to create more employment opportunities for Negroes in the automobile industry.

Hill said the campaign would start in earnest May 4 with a demonstration at the General Motors headquarters in Detroit and would eventually spread to 50 cities across the country.

General Motors will be the prime target of the demonstrations, Hill said, but the protest will probably spread to other automobile firms.

General Motors emphatically denied discriminating in its hiring practices in a statement issued at the height of Saturday's demonstration here. The statement said the NAACP had been unable to refute employment figures General Motors had submitted to the city's interim Committee on Human Relations.

The major hurdle appeared to be the NAACP's insistence that auto dealers offer to increase minority group hiring to 16 to 30 per cent of their entire staffs in all categories. The auto dealers say they find that term unacceptable.

Texan 'misses' train, but he came to Bend anyway

By Phil F. Brogan
Bulletin Staff Writer

Hugh Grant "missed" his train, but he traveled a long distance to do it.

Grant is a resident of Uvalde, Texas, where earlier in the month he learned that Rotarians of Bend were to operate an excursion train between Portland and via the Deschutes gorge.

Grant decided he would like to make the trip, so he wired for reservations, then headed west from Texas, by plane to Los Angeles, then north to Portland by train.

In Portland, Grant learned that the train had been cancelled — but he decided to continue on to Bend, by bus. He arrived here Saturday evening, ending a long trip by plane, train and bus to ride a train that did not run.

But Grant was not mad: He had a special reason to make the trip to Bend. He was stationed at Camp Abbot with the Engineers during World War II, and was here for a year.

He and his wife lived in an O'Donnell Building apartment—and Grant made many friends. To keep in contact with them, he made two previous trips to Bend, before the Saturday jaunt.

Bob Libby and Steve Baker of the Rotarians met Grant here Saturday night, to welcome the Texan and present the club's regrets that the train was cancelled.

Grant made a trip to Bachelor Sunday, then headed over the Cascades by bus to Eugene, to catch a train for the south before heading back to Texas.

The Texan, a neighbor of John Nance Garner, ex-vice president of the United States, promises to return to Bend, if the Rotarians get a train into operation in a future year.

Grant, now 58, is an automobile dealer in Uvalde.

U.S. soldier is casualty

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI) — An American was among the heavy casualties of a battle in the Camau Peninsula Sunday between Communist guerrillas and government forces dropped by U.S. transports and helicopters, it was announced today.

A U.S. military spokesman said 14 other Americans were injured in fighting or incidents over the weekend.

The death brought to 210 the number of Americans who have died in Viet Nam since Jan. 1, 1961. Of that number, 127 have been killed in action.

The names of the weekend American casualties were withheld.

The American killed Sunday was an enlisted man shot by Communist Viet Cong ground fire as he flew in a helicopter during the Camau Peninsula action.

The helicopter was participating in an operation against the guerrillas who overran the district capital of Kien Long in Chuong Province, 125 miles south of Saigon.

The U.S. spokesman said five helicopter crewmen, two officers and two ground advisers also were wounded in the Kien Long area.

PORTLAND (UPI) — Portland State College graduated its second Peace Corps training group Friday.

A total of 27 volunteers received certificates marking completion of 10 weeks of intensive language and area studies in preparation for service in Iran.

An earlier group of 37 volunteers completed 11 weeks of training last November.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — Desree Jenkins, the brown-eyed new Mrs. America, slept late today and headed for the beach for a final bit of relaxation before beginning her duties as the nation's top homemaker.

The 34-year-old representative from South Carolina had a one-day break in her schedule following more than a week of competition against entries from the 49 other states and District of Columbia.

She was crowned Saturday night.

NO PAJAMA TOPS

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Performers in the comedy production "Pajama Tops" at the Le Grande Theater here had to provide their own pajama tops for weekend performances.

A fire Saturday destroyed two dressing rooms in the 300-seat theater—and all the costumes.

Baker witness charges Reedy muzzle attempt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A witness in the Bobby Baker investigation says an aide of President Johnson advised him last fall to "refrain" from telling what he knew about alleged scandals in Washington.

Don B. Reynolds, a Silver Spring, Md., insurance man who testified at Senate hearing on the Baker case, identified the Johnson aide Sunday as George E. Reedy, now White House press secretary.

Reynolds said in a radio interview that Reedy told him to keep quiet about an insurance policy on Johnson, then vice president.

He appeared on From the People—Radio Press International.

He said Reedy had talked to Johnson about the matter. He quoted the presidential aide as saying "It would be better for me to refrain from making any statements at all... that he would release all information pertaining to the insurance."

Asked about Reynolds' statement, Reedy said: "I would have no comment on what Reynolds would say about anything."

Reynolds indicated Reedy contacted him before he appeared before the Senate Rules Committee to testify about his relationship with Baker, former Senate Democratic secretary.

It was Reynolds who, at the suggestion of Baker, gave Johnson an expensive stereo console. The President has said that he accepted the stereo from Baker—not Reynolds.

In Sunday's interview, Reynolds said Reedy did not discuss the stereo or television advertising payment. Reynolds said he considered the stereo transaction "a shakedown from beginning to end."

Reynolds said he learned recently that others "in having rendered services to Mr. Johnson or to the LBJ Co., were faced with the same situation of shakedowns as far as getting payment in taking out TV advertising."

LEAVES FOR TOUR

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Roswell Garst, the Iowa farmer who showed Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev how to raise corn, was to leave today on a 58-day tour of farms in Latin America.

The Agency for International Development, which is financing his trip, said Garst would discuss methods to increase agricultural production with farmers in Mexico, Guatemala, El Salvador, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Peru, Colombia and Jamaica.

Korean 'betrayal' charges supported by Col. Voorhees

PASCO (UPI) — The information officer for the 8th Army in Korea at the height of the Korean war said Saturday "the enemy was given information he shouldn't have had" during that conflict.

The officer, retired Lt. Col. Melvin B. Voorhees, now a Pasco newspaperman, said the death of Gen. MacArthur was resulting in a reshuffle of the old story of the 8th Army.

Voorhees said his opinion that the 8th Army was betrayed was shared by top officers of the Army although none knew who was responsible. He said, "But at that time the fact that India and Britain had embassies at Peking was the subject of a good deal of comment. The British had a division in Korea but kept an embassy in the enemy capital."

The former officer said a Senate subcommittee reached a similar conclusion after hearing testimony from Gen. James Van Fleet, one-time 8th Army commander, and urged that the study be continued to find the source of the Red Chinese information.

"That was the end of it," Voorhees said. He added he would like to see the investigation resumed.

Voorhees also said, "Washington would not face up to what we knew to be a matter of record" that Chinese Communist units as large as 2,500 men were crossing the Yalu River into Korea as early as October, 1950.

"They (Pentagon officers) said we were exaggerating... that these were just peasants coming across the border to help their Korean neighbors," Voorhees said.

He said MacArthur's intelligence staff in the Far East command headquarters read the reports before they were sent on to Washington but he had no way of knowing if the general himself knew of their contents.

"I don't believe that President Truman or Eisenhower or anyone else in our government was corrupt in this thing," Voorhees said. "But the war was run on a committee system... it was a highly puzzling set of circumstances."

"No general of any army would have crossed the Yalu with only the supplies his soldiers could carry on their backs if he had any expectation the bridges across that river would be bombed. He had to have that guarantee our bombers would not be sent."

Voorhees published a book, "Korean Tales," in 1952. He was court-martialed and cleared for refusing to remove some comments from a chapter entitled "The Generals."

U.S. continues SEATO support

MANILA (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk re-dedicated the United States today to leading the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO) in fighting Communist aggression.

Rusk said Southeast Asia is fraught with danger and tension and cited the fighting and unrest in Laos and South Viet Nam.

"We have important work to do," he told a meeting of foreign ministers of the SEATO nations.

The three-day conference which opened this morning marks the 10th anniversary of the alliance of the United States, Britain, France, Australia, New Zealand, Thailand, Pakistan and the Philippines.

The war between South Vietnamese government forces and Communist Viet Cong guerrillas, the dispute between Malaysia and Indonesia, and French President Charles de Gaulle's proposal to neutralize most of Southeast Asia were in the major items on the conference agenda.

In the longest and strongest opening statement, Thailand's Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman denounced de Gaulle's neutrality plan and implied France should withdraw from the alliance if it is unwilling to defend Southeast Asia from communism.
