WOMEN'S COLLEGE BASKETBALL

Ducks fall to No. 1 Stanford

BY JANIE MCCAULEY

Associated Press
SANTA CRUZ, Calif. — Down three key players who are quarantined, road weary No. 1 Stanford needed every defensive stop down the stretch.

Haley Jones had 18 points and six rebounds, and the Cardinal beat No. 11 Oregon 70-63 on Friday. Stanford was playing in Northern California for the first time in nearly a month.

Francesca Belibi's three-point play with 17 seconds remaining in the third capped a second decisive 9-0 run that period by the short-handed Cardinal (10-0, 7-0 Pac-12).

The game was played at Kaiser Permanente Arena, home of the Golden State Warriors' G League affiliate. Stanford played in Northern California for the first time since Dec. 13, and the Cardinal haven't been able to play or practice on campus since Santa Clara County's restrictions on sports came down Nov. 28 and the team left town Dec. 2.

Oregon (8-2, 6-2) lost again after it fell out of the top-10 with a home defeat to UCLA that ended the Ducks' nation's best 27-game winning streak. The Ducks had won the past three against Stanford but have never beaten a top-ranked team.

"I'm disappointed, quite frankly," Oregon coach Kelly Graves said. "I'm proud of the players for how we continued to battle. But I'm disappointed we lost the game. We've won this conference three times in a row. We expect to win."

Up next

Stanford: Sunday's game with Oregon State was postponed because of COVID-19 protocols within the Beavers program. The Cardinal will play next Friday at Utah.

Oregon: At Cal on Sunday.
