OLYMPICS 'I love life': Oldest living Olympic champion turns 100

BY JUSTIN SPIKE

Associated Press BUDAPEST, Hungary -For Agnes Keleti, the oldest living Olympic champion, th fondest memory of her re-markable 100 years is simply The Holocaust survivor and winner of 10 Olympic medals golds — celebrated her 100th birthday on Saturday in her native Budapest, punctuating a life of achievement, adventure, tragedy and perseverance which, she says, passed by in a flash. These 100 years felt to me like 60," she said at a celebration in Budapest on the eve of her birthday. Leafing through a copy of a new book about her life — "The Queen of Gymnastics: 100 Years of Agnes Keleti" full display. "The queen of gymnastics," she said, switching to English. And in Hungarian: "That's an exaggeration." Keleti, who was born Agnes Klein in 1921, had her illustrious career interrupted by World War II and the subsequent cancellation of the 1940 and 1944 Olympics. Forced off her gymnastics team in 1941 because of her Jewish ancestry, Keleti went into hiding in the Hungarian countryside where she survived the Holocaust by assumas a maid.

that she has lived through it all. in gymnastics — including five her trademark modesty was on ing a false identity and working free," she said.

Those travels would ultimately result in a nearly 60year absence from her native Hungary. At the age of 35 while she was becoming the oldest gold medalist in gymnastics history in Melbourne, the Soviet Union invaded Hungary following an unsuccessful anti-Soviet uprising. Keleti remained in Australia and sought political asylum. She then immigrated to Israel the following year and worked as a trainer and coached the Israeli Olympic gymnastics team until the 1990s. After leaving Hungary for the Olympics in 1956, she visited her native country only once before returning to Budapest in 2015. Keleti was awarded the Israel Prize in 2017 — considered that country's highest cultural honor — and is the recipient of numerous other prestigious awards, including being named one of Hungary's "Athletes of the Nation" in 2004. She holds individual gold medals in the floor exercise, balance beam and uneven bars. Today, Keleti follows her doctor's recent advice to avoid performing full leg splits, and her near-perpetual smile and infectious laughter are reminders that even in times of great hardship, there remains the immutable potential for perseverance and the joy of life. "I live well, and it's great that I'm still healthy," Keleti said. "And I love life."

Beavers are ``on the way to recovery and on the way towards being whole."

We're still not there yet of course where we have everyone practicing but we're getting closer," Rueck added

Those have to be encouraging words to not only the team but the fan base.

The Beavers (3-3, 1-3 Pac-12) initially paused team ac-tivities on Dec. 20 due to a positive COVID-19 test and contact tracing protocols. That meant the postponement of the game at Washington on Dec. 21 as well as a home weekend against UCLA and USC on Jan. 1 and Jan 3, respectively.

This past Monday, the Beavers announced this weekend's trip to California and No. 1 Stanford was postponed. Including Sunday's game, the Beavers will have postponed five contests due to this situation.

Rueck hinted in the video that the Beavers are hopeful to be back as soon as next weekend, when they are slated to play at Arizona State (Fridav) and Arizona (Jan. 17). The Sun Devils are also dealing with COVID-19 protocols and postponed their games this weekend.

Obviously it has been a strange time for the program, with some members able to go about a somewhat normal routine while others are in quarantine or recovering from "My biggest worries have just been for them," Rueck said. "This is a relational life that we all live and being isolated, it's not a fun thing for anyone. And so that's been hard to know that they've had to go through those things."

Those who did not need to quarantine have been working to get better as they prepare to retake the court in the near future.

"For those of us who did not need to quarantine and we're able to continue on, we just tried to maintain as much normalcy as possible," Rueck said. "Continue to coach those we can."

Rueck credited the training and medical staffs for doing "an outstanding job."

Because of the limited numbers, some of the coaches have jumped into practice.

We need 10 and so we have worked hard, all of us, to hang with the team a little bit and challenge them on the court and just make a complete practice up," Rueck said. We're trying to make the best of it and turn it into a positive."

Former Blackhawks goalie Crawford announces retirement — It turns out Corey Crawford won't play a game for any team other than the Chicago Blackhawks. The two-time Stanley Cup champion and two-time Jennings Trophy winner announced his retirement Saturday, issuing a farewell statement to fans and the Hawks and Devils organizations through the New Jersey Devils' communications staff. The statement came less than a week before he was set to begin the season with the Devils. "I have been Agnes Keleti, former Olympic gold medal winning gymnast, holds a book with portraits of her on the back cover in Budapest, Hungary, on Monday. The oldest living Olympic champion has turned 100 and says the fondest memory of her remarkable life is simply that she has lived through it all. Keleti had her illustrious career interrupted by World War II and the subsequent cancellation of the 1940 and 1944 Olympics.

Her mother and sister survived the war with the help of famed Swedish diplomat Raoul Wallenberg, but her father and other relatives perished at Auschwitz, among the more than half a million Hungarian Jews killed in Nazi death camps and by Hungarian Nazi collaborators.

Resuming her career af-ter the war, Keleti was set to compete at the 1948 London Olympics but a last-minute ankle injury dashed her hopes. Four years later, she made her Olympic debut at the 1952 Helsinki Games at the age of 31, winning a gold medal in the floor exercise as well as a silver and two bronzes.

Despite her achievements — with six medals she was the most successful athlete at the 1956 Melbourne Olympics and she is recognized as one of the most successful Jewish Olympic athletes of all time — the still-vivacious Keleti said she most values her health and the simple fact that she has lived.

"I love life," she said. "Health is the essence. Without it, there is nothing."

In an interview with The Associated Press last year, Keleti said the experiences she gained while traveling the world were more precious to her than her 10 Olympic medals.

"I loved gymnastics because it was possible to travel for fortunate to have had a long career playing professional hockey for a living. I wanted to continue my career, but believe I've given all I can to the game of hockey, and I have decided that it is time to retire. I would like to thank the New Jersey Devils organization for understanding and supporting my decision. I would like to thank the Chicago Blackhawks organization for giving me the chance to live my childhood dream." Just Friday, the Devils had announced that Crawford would be "taking an indefinite leave of absence due to personal reasons."
