Cantlay grabs early lead at Pebble Beach — Patrick Cantlay looked just as good Thursday at Pebble Beach as the last round he played 18 days ago. Jordan Spieth looked as good as his last tournament, too. Coming off a 61 in the California desert followed by at two-week break, Cantlay opened with seven birdies in eight holes and closed with two straight birdies for a 10-under 62. That tied the course record at Pebble Beach last matched 24 years ago by David Duval, and it gave Cantlay a two-shot lead in the Pebble Beach Pro-Am. Henrik Norlander and 19-year-old Akshay Bhatia were at 64. Bhatia hit all 18 of the small greens at Pebble Beach, the first player to do that at Pebble since Ryan Palmer in 2008. Spieth moved another round closer to some kind of a groove. He tied for fourth last week in the Phoenix Open. He holed out a wedge on the 10th hole for eagle and finished with three birdies over his last five holes for a 65.

Shiffrin claims women's super-G bronze behind Swiss skiers; Kriechmayr tops men's field — Lara Gut-Behrami dashed to gold ahead of Swiss teammate Corinne Suter in a race that saw Mikaela Shiffrin take bronze in the American's first speed race in more than a year. The trio was made to wait to get their awards until after the subsequent men's super-G, which was won by Vincent Kriechmayr of Austria. Romed Baumann of Germany finished 0.07 seconds behind for silver, and France's Alexis Pinturault was third, 0.38 behind. Both races took place without fans amid strict anti-coronavirus measures, which also prevented officials from handing over the medals and trophies. Gut-Behrami mastered the sun-bathed Olympia delle Tofane course to finally win the only medal missing from her storied career, which includes six medals from previous major events.

"It's competitive and it's intense," Canucks rookie Adam Gaudette said. "It's a lot of fun playing in these important, competitive games. Every series means something. That's the way it's going to be all year."

A couple of title-winning coaches, Washington's Peter Laviolette and Columbus' John Tortorella, haven't noticed their games getting out of control yet. Edmonton's Zach Kassian described it early on as a "feeling out process" between division rivals and expects it to be a slow build from now through May. Of course, certain events in games can cause spikes of hatred.

The Canadiens were none too pleased with a hit by Canucks defenseman Tyler Myers on Joel Armia last month, and Montreal coach Claude Julien added some grit to his lineup the next game against Vancouver by inserting Corey Perry. Garland mentioned a hit on teammate Nick Schmaltz that got Coyotes players' backs up. And the next St. Louis-Vegas game could feature some fireworks after Golden Knights captain Mark Stone injured Tyler Bozak with a heavy hit.

"Shots that happened to Bozy or other guys like that, sometimes that can carry over," Perron said.

Arizona coach Rick Tocchet said he sees a carryover from one game to the next against the same opponent, just like a playoff series. The roller coaster ride also shakes up emotions.

"One team's happy, one team's unhappy," Tocchet said.
"The team that's happy, can you stay even keel in the moment? And the team that's pissed, are they going to do something about it? That's really why the chippiness comes out."

Nashville and Tampa Bay weren't even in the same conference until this season, but that didn't stop them from combining for 60 penalty minutes in back-to-back games. Arizona and St. Louis didn't play much in previous years either, but it's fair to call it a rivalry, even if it ends up being temporary.

"Ît's like anything," Garland said. "You spend time around somebody too long, you get aggravated with them, and you play someone seven times, you'll get aggravated with them, too."

"That's the challenge as a coach, right?" Holtmann said during that stretch. "You're throwing him in midyear. ... Now you're saying, 'Hey, hop in, play 15, 10 minutes in the best league in the country. And oh by the way, you're also going to play one of the most important positions on the floor, the point guard position. Learn our defensive system, learn our offensive system and, by the way, don't overthink, just play. That's a lot to ask of a young man." Dayton has found a major boost in Amzil, a 6-10 forward from Finland. The November signee joined the Flyers in December, with coach Anthony Grant saying he had little practice time before his Dec. 30 debut against La Salle.

'The process of trying to get him acclimated probably really started more similar to an NBA-type deal," Grant said, "where you give him some basic things and say, 'Hey, here's what we'll do and here's how you'll fit in and then we'll try to teach you as you go on."

Amzil has been a quick learner. He had 22 points and seven rebounds in 36 minutes for his debut and has started all 12 of his games. He's averaging 10.3 points and 5.3 rebounds, and on Monday was named Atlantic 10 rookie of the week for the third time.

"I'd say it's been a great help for me," Amzil said. "I don't know if it's for everybody, but for me, I think it's helping me."

For most midyear enrollees, the production has been modest, with strong performances more of a bonus for their teams.

Oregon got a boost from 6-11 center Franck Kepnang with season-highs of eight points in 15 minutes in Saturday's win against Washington. That same day in the Pac-12, 6-9 forward Mac Etienne made his UCLA debut with eight points and five rebounds in 28 minutes in a loss to USC. USC has its own midyear addition in guard Reese Waters, though he has seen limited work (11 minutes in his first three games), much like Gonzaga forward Ben Gregg (25 minutes in nine games) and Maryland swingman James Graham III (averaging 6.8

minutes through five games). DePaul has two, with forward David Jones making his debut in Saturday's loss to Butler to join Keon Edwards as midyear enrollees to have played this year.

As for Wake Forest's Whitt, he's averaging about 20 minutes through 11 games with three starts, part of an effort to fast-track his own development and first-year coach Steve Forbes' program rebuild. "No offense to high school basketball, but this is like he's getting a master's and a doctorate right now in hoops, right? And ahead of schedule," Forbes said. "I mean, you can tell a kid, 'Hey, it's like this, it's the pace, the physicality.' But until they do it, they don't get it. And he gets it now."
