SPORTS BRIEFING

Double gold: Humphries finishes off historic bobsled

sweep — Kaillie Humphries wasn't sure if she would get a chance to race this season. She ended up on top of the world - twice. Humphries ended her international season Sunday by winning the inaugural women's monobob world championship in Altenberg, Germany, adding that gold medal to the one she and Lolo Jones claimed on the same track last weekend. Humphries becomes the obvious gold-medal favorite going into the Olympic season, with two medal events - now with monobob included - awaiting women's bobsledders at next winter's Beijing Games for the first time.

Italy won't open its ski slopes due to virus fears — The Italian government on Sunday abruptly delayed opening Italy's beloved ski season because a coronavirus variant was detected in a good portion of recently infected persons in the country. Health Minister Roberto Speranza's ordinance forbidding amateur skiing at least until March 5 effectively kills the hopes of ski lift operators and resort owners that they would be able to salvage part of the season. The ski business is a big source of winter tourism in Italy and the news came on the eve of the expected opening. France and Germany have adopted similar measures in the ski sector due to the "worry for the spread of this and other variants of the virus," the statement said.

Berger has the final say and wins at Pebble Beach

- For all the stunning views at Pebble Beach that can be so soothing, Daniel Berger couldn't escape the tension when he arrived at the final hole Sunday in the AT&T Pebble Beach Pro-Am. He was tied for the lead, needing a birdie on the par-5 18th to win. Off to his right was out-of-bounds markers below a row of hedges. To his left was the Pacific Ocean. Two of the best swings of his career, a driver into the fairway and a 3-wood from 250 yards away in the cool air at sea level, left him 30 feet and two putts away. Berger capped it off with an eagle putt for a 7-under 65 and a two-shot victory over Maverick McNealy.

Injured Djokovic advances to quarters at Australian

Open — Novak Djokovic wore tape above his right hip, and winced when he stretched for some shots in a three-hour match against Milos Raonic that will go into the records as his 300th win at a major.

Down but not out, Serena Williams into Australian

Open QFs — Serena Williams tumbled to the ground, her heavily taped right ankle turning, her body contorting, her racket flying. This was early in the second set of a competitive-as-can-be matchup in the Australian Open's fourth round against a younger version of herself. Williams quickly put up a hand to indicate she was OK, and, while it took her a bit to regain control, she did so, just in the nick of time.

The rest of the field, led by Italian home favorite Dominik Paris and Swiss skier Marco Odermatt who shared fourth position, was at least 0.65 off the lead.

Tied for 10th, Bryce Bennett led the American team — followed by Travis Ganong in 12th.

Aleksander Aamodt Kilde, the overall World Cup champion, is out for the season with a knee injury.

The turning section that decided the race had been sharply criticized by many racers after the first official training session on Friday.

Organizers reset those gates to make the course slightly more fluent, but many downhillers still struggled.

It didn't matter to Kriechmayr, though.

"It's a lot of turns but Kitzbühel and Wengen also have such turns that usually nobody would set for a downhill," he added. "It's not a typical downhill, but it doesn't matter to me on what course I win."

The race was interrupted when Florian Schieder was thrown off the bumpy course midway through his run.

The worlds continue Monday with the combined events for both women and men.

Giovanni Auletta/AP Austria's Vincent Kriechmayr poses with the gold medals of the men's downhill and super-G, at the alpine ski World Championships in Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy, onSunday.

40 starters came even close to the leading pair but Feuz ultimately trailed by 0.18 for bronze.
