As the consequences of COVID-19 affect our community and our world, the importance of connecting to reliable information, resources and one another is more evident than ever.

The Bulletin newsroom has written hundreds of COVID-19 stories covering the pandemic and its effects on Central Oregon residents and businesses since Spring 2020. We are committed to keeping you connected through local news, outbreak updates, stimulating features and community engagement as we make our way through these troubled times toward a brighter future together.
