Oregon State coach Tinkle earns an extra contract year — Oregon State's NCAA men's basketball tournament appearance has additional meaning to coach Wayne Tinkle. Tinkle just added another year to his existing contract. After this season, Tinkle has two years remaining on his current contract, running through the end of the 2022-23 season. According to the terms of his contract signed Sept. of 2019, Tinkle is entitled to an additional contract year any time Oregon State participates in the NCAA Tournament. Tinkle, hired prior to the 2014-15 season, just finished the seventh year of his nine-year contract that has been amended twice. Tinkle is slated to earn $2.2 million 2021-22, and $2.3 million in 2022-23.

UCconn coach Geno Auriemma tests positive for COVID-19 — UConn women's basketball coach Geno Auriemma has tested positive for COVID-19 and is isolating at home, the school announced Monday, hours before it was expected to be named the top seed in the NCAA Tournament. The Hall of Famer received a positive result from a test taken on Sunday and is not experiencing any symptoms, the school said. The team's head physician said contact tracing protocols revealed that Auriemma did not have close contact with any other team member since Friday. All other Tier I personnel tested negative for COVID-19 on Sunday and Monday, the school said. The Huskies are scheduled to leave for the tournament in San Antonio on Tuesday. According to CDC and Connecticut Department of Public Health guidelines, Auriemma will remain in isolation for 10 days and can rejoin the team on March 24, the school said. Auriemma received a second dose of the COVID-19 vaccine on March 10.

Pandemic-delayed Boston Marathon field set for 20,000 — The pandemic-delayed 2021 Boston Marathon will have space for 20,000 entrants, race organizers announced Monday. The Boston Athletic Association said the smaller field was necessary to allow for social distancing during the Oct. 11 event — especially at the start and finish. More than 30,000 runners had signed up for the 2020 race, which was first postponed and then canceled because of the COVID-19 outbreak. First run in 1897, the Boston Marathon was canceled last year for the first time in its history. Instead, almost 16,000 people ran in a virtual race, completing the 26.2-mile distance on their own over a 10-day period. In addition to the in-person race, the BAA will hold a virtual Boston Marathon from Oct. 8-10 that will allow up to 70,000 more entrants to earn a finisher's medal remotely.

Former Ducks' star Kyle Long to visit the Las Vegas Raiders, Kansas City — Kyle Long figured to attract plenty of interest when he announced his "unretirement" last week. With the NFL's "legal tampering" period for unrestricted free agents underway, the free agent offensive lineman has lined up visits to potential teams. The former Oregon Ducks' star was expected to visit the Las Vegas Raiders and Kansas City, according to a report. The Raiders have a big need on the offensive line after trading tackle Trent Brown to the New England Patriots and releasing guards Richie Incognito and Gabe Jackson in cost-cutting moves. Kansas City released starting tackles Eric Fisher and Mitchell Schwartz, and center Austin Reiter will enter free agency. Long, 31, last played for the Chicago Bears in 2019 before he stepped away from the game after seven seasons with the Bears. Long is a free agent after the Bears released him from his contract last March.
