Carson finished the final season of his initial four-year deal in 2020 that paid him $3.73 million. The 26-year-old has suffered a succession of injuries that forced him to miss 19 games in four NFL seasons.

Carson made clear from the beginning of last season that he hoped to strike it rich in free agency.

"Of course, it's something that's on my mind," he said before last season. "You see a lot of guys, they're starting to get paid, but I try not to let it distract me from the season. I try to push it away."

The Seahawks let Carson test free agency when they declined to place a franchise tag on him that would have paid him just over $8 million in 2021 on a one-year deal, all of which would go on the salary cap.

Seattle won its gamble there, with Car-son able to earn up to $6.9 million in 2021. The Seahawks' offer apparently was better than offers from the Jets, Panthers and Patriots, who "all got involved" with Carson, according to ESPN's Jeremy Fowler. Seattle will return its leading rusher to a group that also includes 2018 first-round pick Rashaad Penny, recent draftees Travis Homer and DeeJay Dallas and Alex Collins, who re-signed a one-year deal after spending most of last season on the practice squad.

Seattle this week saw last year's backup, Carlos Hyde, sign with Jacksonville.

The presence of five running backs under contract who all saw action last year figures to mean Seattle is done adding to that position.

But it also makes for an especially interesting competition to see how the spots fill out.

Re-signing Carson to what is essentially a two-year deal also raises questions about the future of Penny.

Penny was a controversial pick as the No. 27 overall selection in 2018 and has struggled to stay healthy, playing in just 27 of a possible 48 games. He missed all but three last season while recovering from a knee injury suffered in December 2019.

When Penny was drafted in the first round, many viewed that as a sign he would be the team's running back of the future, and some figured that meant Carson would leave.

But Penny's injuries and inability to prove he can be a consistent contributor undoubtedly added to the urgency for Seattle to get something done with Carson.

The Seahawks were 10-2 last season in games Carson played, and though his running was a key factor, so was making 37 catches for a career-high 287 yards and four touchdowns. That aspect of his game figures to fit in nicely with the offense of new coordinator Shane Waldron, who spent the past four years with the Rams.

What Carson will be asked to do most, though, is give the Seahawks the kind of punishing, bruising rushing attack that Carroll likes best.

"We have to run the ball better," Carroll said after the season. "Not even better, we have to run it more. We have to dictate what's going on with the people that we're playing, and that's one of the ways to do that."

And as they have the past four years, they'll again count on Carson leading the way.

SPORTS BRIEFING

GOLF

Former Ducks star Wise takes lead at Honda Classic —

Aaron Wise is making PGA National look easy. Wise shot his second straight 6-under 64 on Friday to take a three-stroke lead into the weekend at the Honda Classic. The 128 total is the lowest 36hole score at PGA National since the tournament moved there 15 years ago — and marks the first 36-hole lead of Wise's PGA Tour career. "It's two great rounds of golf and I love that, and I love that I'm playing good," Wise said. "But this place can get to you pretty quick and there's a lot of golf left ahead and a lot of trouble out there." He had a pair of eagles to highlight the day, his first two of 2021. Brandon Hagy (62) and first-round leader Matt Jones (70) were tied for second. Wise birdied the last to finish off the 64, the eighth round of 64 or lower at PGA National this week. Wise made a 3-footer for a 3 at the par-5 18th, his ninth hole of the day, then connected on a 45-footer for eagle at the par-5 third. "I've made so many bonus putts from outside 10 feet that I can't complain," said the 24-year-old Wise, the 2016 NCAA champion for Oregon. - Bulletin wire report
