Jones jumps back into lead at PGA Tour's Honda Classic — Aaron Wise had a six-shot lead during the third round of The Honda Classic. Everything went wrong from there, and Matt Jones took full advantage. The 40-year-old Australian handled the wind at PGA National to shoot a 1-under 69 on Saturday, going to 10 under and moving three shots clear of Wise and J.B. Holmes. Wise, a onetime Oregon standout, played his final 13 holes in 7 over for a 75. Holmes (67) broke par for his third consecutive round.

NASCAR returns to roots with 1st of 2 visits to Atlanta

BY PAUL NEWBERRY

Associated Press HAMPTON, Ga. — NASCAR is returning to its roots.

Even as the good ol' boys attempt to break with the uglier parts of their history — most notably, the Confederate flag — the sport has embraced a more traditional footprint with its 2021 schedule.

That includes Atlanta Motor Speedway, which on Sunday is hosting the first of two Cup NASCAR will return to the track in July — the first time since 2010 that the tri-oval has staged a pair of events.

The drivers are certainly pleased to be making a couple of visits to one of their favorite stops, a treacherous, highspeed layout that produces some of the best racing on the Cup circuit.

"Atlanta has always been a track I enjoyed," said Martin Truex, coming off a victory in last week's race in Phoenix. "It's a very fun racetrack, being able to run all over the track, just the tire wear and all those things, are things I enjoy behind the wheel."

Nearly two decades ago, NASCAR began an effort to expand its fan base by staging more races beyond the seven states — North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Georgia, Tennessee, Alabama and Florida — that had long dominated the schedule.

But with attendance dipping at many tracks and big TV ratings harder to come by from an increasingly fragmented audience, the governing body decided to shake things up by turning to its past.

Martin Truex Jr. waves to fans from victory lane after winning a NASCAR Cup Series race on March 14 in Avondale, Arizona.

The coronavirus pandemic muddled the effort in 2020, but this year's schedule includes 19 races in those seven traditional states — the most since 2003.

Atlanta has returned to having two Cup dates. So has South Carolina's Darlington Raceway, which was limited to one race from 2005-19. Nashville is back on the schedule for the first time since 1984.

To accommodate the changes, NASCAR dumped Chicago and Kentucky. Dover gave up one of its two races. The first race scheduled in California in February was moved because of COVID-19 restrictions, but NASCAR still has a June stop in Sonoma on the schedule.

Reigning Cup champion Chase Elliott is thrilled to have two chances to win at what he considers his home track.

"It's always going to be a special place for me," he said. "I spent lot of time racing Legends cars and things like that down there. For sure, I would love to go have a good run." Some things to watch for in Sunday's Folds of Honor QuikTrip 500:

Harvick anniversary

Atlanta means a lot to Kevin

Harvick. Twenty years ago, he won his first Cup race at the track only three weeks after the death of Dale Earnhardt.

Harvick replaced Earnhardt on the Richard Childress team and took the checkered flag in just his third Cup start. After a 16-year drought in Atlanta, he has won two of the last three Cup races at the track, including last year's pandemic-delayed event.

Who's next?

The first five races of 2021 have produced five different winners, including first-timers Michael McDowell and Christopher Bell.

The surprising group also includes William Byron, who claimed just his second career victory, and Kyle Larson, coming back from a season in which he was lost his job and was suspended for making a racial slur in an online race. "Certainly it's not bad having different people win," Elliott said. "I feel like it's a good thing from a fan's perspective."

Slip slidin' away

The Atlanta has gone 24 years since its last repaving, which makes it extremely rough on tires and much more challenging for drivers on long runs between pit stops.

"The pace falloff is massive with every lap," Elliott said "Every lap, you're pretty much losing time. If you can run two laps the same in the first 10 to 15 laps of a run, you're doing really well.

"That's what makes the race track so challenging. You're trying to find some consistency, you're trying to get in a rhythm and not beat up your tires. That's a hard thing to do when you're trying to go really fast and set a good pace at the same time."

Fans in the stands

A year ago, Atlanta was the first Cup race to be halted by the coronavirus pandemic.

NASCAR was shuttered for more than two months, finally returning to Atlanta on June 7 after a massive reconfiguration of the schedule.

This year's race won't be totally normal, but it will include one big change from 2020: fans in the stands.

Atlanta will welcome about 20,000 spectators, selling out its grandstand tickets as well as having socially distanced camping in the infield.
