

TODAY

Today is Thursday, March 25, the 84th day of 2021. There are 281 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On March 25, 1911, 146 people, mostly young female immigrants, were killed when fire broke out at the Triangle Shirtwaist Co. in New York.

In 1634, English colonists sent by Lord Baltimore arrived in present-day Maryland.

In 1776, Gen. George Washington, commander of the Continental Army, was awarded the first Congressional Gold Medal by the Continental Congress.

In 1915, the U.S. Navy lost its first commissioned submarine as the USS F-4 sank off Hawaii, claiming the lives of all 21 crew members.

In 1931, in the so-called "Scottsboro Boys" case, nine young Black men were taken off a train in Alabama, accused of raping two white women; after years of convictions, death sentences and imprisonment, the nine were eventually vindicated.

In 1947, a coal-dust explosion inside the Centralia Coal Co. Mine No. 5 in Washington County, Illinois, claimed 111 lives; 31 men survived.

In 1954, RCA announced it had begun producing color television sets at its plant in Bloomington, Indiana.

In 1965, the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. led 25,000 people to the Alabama state capitol in Montgomery after a five-day march from Selma to protest the denial of voting rights to Blacks. Later that day, civil rights activist Viola Liuzzo, a white Detroit homemaker, was shot and killed by Ku Klux Klansmen.

In 1985, "Amadeus" won eight Academy Awards, including best picture, best director for Milos Forman and best actor for F. Murray Abraham.

In 1987, the Supreme Court, in Johnson v. Transportation Agency, ruled 6-3 that an employer could promote a woman over an arguably more-qualified man to help get women into higher-ranking jobs.

In 1988, in New York City's so-called "Preppie Killer" case, Robert Chambers Jr. pleaded guilty to first-degree manslaughter in the death of 18-year-old Jennifer Levin. (Chambers received 5 to 15 years in prison; he was released in 2003 after serving the full sentence.)

Ten years ago: Canadian opposition parties brought down the Conservative government in a no-confidence vote, triggering an election that gave Prime Minister Stephen Harper a clear Conservative majority in Parliament.

Five years ago: A suicide bomber believed to be a teenager blew himself up in a soccer stadium south of the Iraqi capital, killing 29 people and wounding 60. The Rolling Stones unleashed two hours of thundering rock and roll on an ecstatic crowd of hundreds of thousands of Cubans and foreign visitors in Havana; the free concert came two days after President Barack Obama concluded his historic visit to Cuba.

One year ago: The Senate unanimously passed a $2.2 trillion economic rescue package steering aid to businesses, workers and health care systems engulfed by the coronavirus pandemic; the largest economic relief bill in U.S. history included direct payments to most Americans, expanded unemployment benefits and $367 billion for small businesses to keep making payroll while workers were forced to stay home. The number of U.S. deaths from the pandemic topped 1,000.

U.S. CAPITOL BREACH | FEDERAL INVESTIGATION

Brothers are first Oregonians to be charged

BY MAXINE BERNSTEIN

The Oregonian

FBI agents have arrested two Oregon brothers who are accused of breaching the U.S. Capitol on Jan. 6.

Matthew Leland Klein, 24, and Jonathanpeter Allen Klein, 21, are the first Oregon residents to be charged in the Capitol riot.

The younger brother has described himself as a Proud Boy and was captured in a Jan. 5 photo wearing a Proud Boy PDX shirt, according to the FBI.

The Kleins were captured on video inside the U.S. Capitol.

The two each face charges of aiding and abetting in the obstruction of an official proceeding, obstruction of law enforcement during civil disorder, destruction of government property, entering and remaining in a restricted building or grounds and disorderly conduct in a restricted building or grounds, according to court records.

Both were arrested Tuesday. Matthew Klein was arrested in Sherwood, and Jonathanpeter Klein was arrested in Heppner, according to the FBI.

Indictment unsealed

On Dec. 27, the younger Klein notified his employer that he wanted to take time off from work during the first of the new year, from Jan. 4 through Jan. 8, so that he and his brother could attend the "Stop the Steal Rally in DC," according to an indictment unsealed Wednesday.

two days later to fly to Philadelphia on Jan. 4 and then onto Washington, D.C. on Jan. 5, according to the indictment. They paid cash for their plane tickets.

The Klein brothers are accused of storming the Capital shortly after 2 p.m. Jan. 6.

Matthew Klein assisted members of the crowd, who had breached the Capitol's restricted grounds, by using a police barricade to climb a wall and gain access to an external stairwell leading to the Upper West Terrace of the Capitol, the indictment says.

Minutes later, Jonathanpeter Klein entered the Capitol building through a door on the northwest side of the Capitol.

Jonathanpeter engaged in "a celebratory exchange with an identified member of the Proud Boys," and entered the Capitol building on the northwest side, the indictment says. While there, the indictment says, he greeted another person, saying "proud of your (expletive) boy!"

By approximately 2:29 p.m., Jonathanpeter Klein and his fellow rioters had made their way from the Senate side of the Capitol, through a line of law enforcement officers in the Capitol's Crypt, to the House of Representatives side, before they proceeded up a flight of stairs to the Capitol's Rotunda, according to the indictment.

After the brothers exited the Capitol, they forcibly opened a secured door on

More arrests expected

More than 300 people have been charged in connection to the Jan. 6 riot at the U.S. Capitol. Authorities have said they believe at least 100 more could face charges.

the Capitol's north side.

When federal law enforcement officers responded, Matthew Klein put on protective goggles and advanced toward the law enforcement officers holding a Gadsden flag affixed to a flagpole to interfere with police efforts to disperse the crowd, according to the indictment.

"The defendants joined together to wrench open a secure door on the Capitol's north side. Behind that door, law enforcement officers tasked with protecting the Capitol and its inhabitants prepared to fend off yet another wave of attacks from the unruly crowd," Assistant U.S. Attorney Paul T. Maloney wrote in a detention memo unsealed Wednesday.

Investigators also found photos of the Klein brothers attending a Sept. 7 rally at Oregon's Capitol in Salem, where about 100 supporters of Trump, including members of the Proud Boys, traveled to the state capitol building and clashed with about 20 Black Lives Matter protesters.

The Kleins' cases will be handled in the District of Columbia. Both remain in custody.

In 2020, Smith Rock State Park and Deschutes County officials, joined by property owners near the park, partnered to install signs that read "NO PARKING ON SHOULDER." But up to 200 visitors each day keep parking along the roads, prompting the sheriff's office in March to begin giving citations.

Work on the new plan was delayed last year due to the pandemic, but there is a renewed focus this year, Davey said.

How to handle parking is the top priority, he said. The new plan will look at redesigning the existing parking areas to accommodate more visitors.

"We are going to look at how to reconfigure parking to give us control back so we can control the capacity of the park and stop the flood of cars coming in," Davey said.

Davey appreciates the sheriff's office prioritizing parking enforcement outside the park. In the past few years, more people kept parking along the county roads, but there were no warning signs telling them not to park.

Deputies didn't have the authority to ticket people, Davey said. Now they do.

"They couldn't really enforce it," Davey said. "You have to have a no parking sign for the county sheriff to take action."

GEORGE SEGAL • 1934-2021

'Goldbergs' star more than a comic actor

BY ANDREW DALTON

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — George Segal, the banjo player turned actor who was nominated for an Oscar for 1966's "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" and worked into his late 80s on the ABC sitcom "The Goldbergs," died Tuesday in Santa Rosa, California, his wife said.

"The family is devastated to announce that this morning George Segal passed away due to complications from bypass surgery," Sonia Segal said in a statement. He was 87.

George Segal was always best known as a comic actor, becoming one of the screen's biggest stars in the 1970s when lighthearted adult comedies thrived.

But his most famous role was in the harrowing drama "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" based on Edward Albee's acclaimed play. He was the last surviving credited member of the tiny cast, all four of whom were nominated for Academy Awards: Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton for starring roles, Sandy Dennis and Segal for supporting performances. The women won Oscars, the men did not.

To younger audiences, he was better known for playing magazine publisher Jack Gallo on the long-running NBC series "Just Shoot Me" from 1997 to 2003, and as grandfather Albert "Pops" Solomon on the "The Goldbergs" since 2013.

In his Hollywood prime, he played a stuffy intellectual opposite Barbra Streisand's freewheeling prostitute in 1970's "The Owl and the Pussycat," a hopeless gambler opposite Elliot Gould in director Robert Altman's 1974 "California Split," and a bank-robbing suburbanite opposite Jane Fonda in 1977's "Fun with Dick and Jane."

OBITUARY

Larry Ray Porter

April 2, 1948 - March 19, 2021

Larry Ray Porter, 72, of Sweet Home passed away unexpectedly on Friday. He was born in Bend to Glenn D. and Kathleen Rae (Young) Porter.

He resided in Bend with his family until they moved to Albany in 1985, living there for 17 years.

Larry was a man of faith who was a devoted, loving, caring husband and father. He gave his all to his family and friends. He enjoyed playing music, hunting, computers, and playing golf. He had a charismatic personality and loved to visit with people while adding a good joke or two in the conversation to bring a smile and laughter. He was a hard worker and worked as a Laborers Union Official for 26 years and was a Member of Laborers Local 915/121/737 since June of 1967.

He married Catherine Elaine Denman on June 18th, 1967.

Larry had three children: Kari Ann and her husband Frank D. Hatfield, Kevin Ray Porter (deceased), Kelly Lee Porter; two grandsons: John Ray Porter, Chase Dalton Porter; other close relatives were Lee and Claudine Clinton (deceased) and their children: La Rae, Dan, Tim, and Kimberly; along with his brother-in-law Richard Newman and his daughter Britney.

He was preceded in death by his parents Kathleen and Glenn Porter; brothers: Garry, Denny and Roger Dale Porter.

Larry will be sorely missed by his family and friends.

Celebration of Life will be 2:00 pm Sunday March 28th at Faith Christian Center (known in the 70's as the Assembly of God) on Greenwood and 1049 NE 11th St. Bend, OR 97701. Please join us to celebrate this wonderful man and his life.
