What is COVID-19? It's an infection caused by a new coronavirus. Symptoms (including fever, coughing and shortness of breath) can be severe. While some cases are mild, the disease can be fatal.

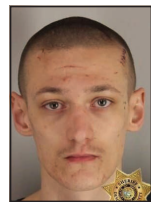

7 ways to help limit its spread: 1. Wash hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds. 2. Avoid touching your face. 3. Avoid close contact with sick people. 4. Stay home. 5. In public, stay 6 feet from others and wear a cloth face covering or mask. 6. Cover a cough or sneeze with a tissue or cough into your elbow. 7. Clean and disinfect frequently touched objects and surfaces.

LOCAL & STATE BRIEFING

3 arrested after robbery, stabbing at Circle K in Redmond

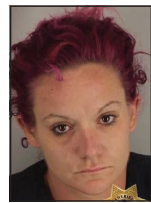

Three people were arrested Saturday night in connection to a robbery and stabbing at the Chevron Circle K on U.S. Highway 97 earlier in the day, Redmond Police said in a prepared statement.

Petri

Sandoval Ruiz

Webb

Abraham Sandoval Ruiz, 24, of Central Oregon; Brandon Petri, 21, of Bend; and Meahgan Webb, 31, of Madras, are being held at the Deschutes County jail, police said.

Police say the three suspects entered the Circle K about 3:30 a.m. Saturday, each wearing masks. They attempted to reach the cash register and one of them stabbed an employee multiple times, police said. The employee, a 27-year-old Redmond woman, was transported to St. Charles Redmond with serious injuries. Police said Sunday she was recovering.

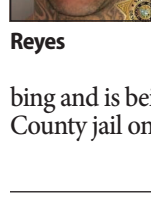

Police were told about 9:35 p.m. Saturday that the suspects had driven to the Redmond Walmart. When approached by police, the suspects drove off, leading officers on a chase.

Officers used tire-deflating devices to slow the suspects, who had driven south on Highway 97 before turning west onto SW Tomahawk Avenue. Their car became disabled in a field, where officers arrested the three suspects.

The suspects face an array of charges, including first-degree robbery and first degree assault, police said.

Man stabbed on China Hat Road in witness-tampering case

A 33-year-old Bend man allegedly stabbed a man early Sunday who he thought was going to provide information about him in a criminal case, the Deschutes County Sheriff's Office said in a prepared statement.

Reyes

Anthony J. Reyes was arrested in connection to the stabbing and is being held at the Deschutes County jail on charges of first-degree assault, unlawful use of a weapon and tampering with a witness, according to the statement from Sgt. Ron Brown.

The Portland Police Bureau tweeted that a car fell from an Interstate 405 ramp onto a parking area Saturday night. Police photos show a heavily damaged white car that had landed on another vehicle.

Deputies responded after a woman called 911 about 12 a.m. Sunday to say her friend, a 32-year-old Bend man, had been stabbed in the neck and head on China Hat Road near Sunset View Drive, Brown said. Paramedics met the woman and the victim in the parking lot of the Bend Walmart and took the victim to St. Charles Bend in serious condition.

"The investigation determined that Reyes knew the victim and believed the victim was a witness in another criminal case involving Reyes," Brown said. "Reyes met up with the victim and a female witness on China Hat Road with the purpose of assaulting the male, because Reyes believed the male gave information about him in the other criminal case. When Reyes arrived, he and the victim got into a physical fight where the victim was eventually stabbed."

The sheriff's office would not say how Reyes was identified as a suspect.

3 escape from juvenile detention after staffer is assaulted

Three teenagers escaped the McLaren Youth Correctional Facility in Woodburn early Sunday after authorities accused them of attacking and stealing keys from a staff member before escaping through a fence.

The Oregon Youth Authority, which runs the state's prisons for juvenile offenders, said the three are considered a risk to themselves or others.

They are Preston Andrizzi, 19, convicted of second-degree assault in Marion County; Anthony Fitz-Henry, 18, adjudicated for second-degree burglary in Marion County; and Christian Goin, 17, adjudicated for fourth-degree assault in Linn County. All three are from the Salem and Albany areas.

MacLaren, the state's largest juvenile correctional campus, was placed on lockdown after the escape, and visitation was canceled for the day. Sarah Evans, a spokesperson for the Oregon Youth Authority, said it was the first escape at the facility since at least 2000, when a perimeter fence was installed.

Car plummets from I-405 ramp onto another car in Portland

A car drove off the side of an Interstate 405 ramp near the Fremont Bridge late Saturday, plummeting to the street below.

The Portland Police Bureau tweeted that the car fell from the viaduct to a parking area near NW 16th Avenue and Overton Street. Police photos showed a heavily damaged white car that had landed on another vehicle.

The car caught fire, police said, and the driver suffered severe injuries. The driver's condition was not known Sunday morning.

The crash investigation was focused on the ramp leading from Interstate 405 on the Fremont Bridge to west-bound U.S. Highway 30, which was closed for part of the night.

Teen shot in back at Salem elementary school dies

One of two 17-year-old boys shot in the back Wednesday at a Salem elementary school died Saturday, according to the Marion County Sheriff's Office. The shooting in a parking lot at Four Corners Elementary School left another youth with non-life-threatening injuries.

A teenager found after the shooting has been charged with first-degree robbery, unlawful possession of a firearm, unlawful use of a weapon and first-degree theft.

None of the youths has been publicly identified. The shooting remains under investigation.

Protesters clash at Capitol

House session canceled Monday due to COVID-19

The Oregonian

Dueling protest groups faced off near the grounds of the Oregon Capitol building Sunday afternoon. Police tried to separate the groups, but skirmishes broke out in the surrounding blocks. In a particularly volatile moment, one man was taken into custody by police after he confronted a crowd with a gun. Others were detained as police ordered the crowd to disperse.

Right-wing demonstrators initially gathered in Sandy for a "Freedom Rally" then traveled to the Capitol. A flyer for the event said they planned a "flag wave to honor those who fought for our freedoms."

The plans attracted more than 150 counterprotesters, who arrived at the Capitol hours earlier. They billed their gathering as a "direct action in opposition to a fascist event."

The crowd pelted passing trucks — many flying a combination of American, Thin Blue Line and Trump flags — with paint and objects that in some cases shattered windows. Police declared the gathering an unlawful assembly, telling the crowd to disperse.

Monday session

House Speaker Tina Kotek, D-Portland, announced early Sunday evening that Monday's day and evening floor sessions of the House have been canceled due to a second reported COVID-19 case linked to floor activity among the 60 lawmakers and staff.

Jessica Knieling, the Legislature's interim human resources director, sent a buildingwide email notification Sunday that the person diagnosed with COVID-19 had last been in the building March 16.

Kotek had canceled earlier floor sessions because of an earlier reported case also linked to floor activity on March 16. No additional information was provided about the timeline of the case and whether it involved a lawmaker or staff.

'Dope lawyer' to the stars Brian Rohan dies at 84

San Francisco Chronicle

Brian Rohan, who was known as San Francisco's "dope lawyer" for 1960s counterculture clients like the Grateful Dead and Ken Kesey, has died, according to a newspaper report Sunday. He was 84.

Rohan's daughter, Kathleen Jolson, said her father died Tuesday at his home in the Bay Area city of Larkspur after a six-year battle with cancer.

After defending Kesey, author of "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," for marijuana possession in 1965, Rohan became the go-to attorney for illegal drug charges, the Chronicle said.

Rohan co-founded the Haight Ashbury Legal Organization and the group recruited clients in part by setting up a table outside the Grateful Dead house at 710 Ashbury Street.

Thanks to his association with the Grateful Dead, Rohan also became a music lawyer. In 1966, he helped the band negotiate its first contract with Warner Bros. He also represented Janis Joplin, Santana and Jefferson Airplane.

His nonmusician clients included Beat writer Neal Cassady and members of the Merry Pranksters, the communal travelers chronicled in Tom Wolfe's 1968 book "The Electric Kool-Aid Acid Test."

Rohan spent his entire life on the West Coast, growing up in Washington before attending the University of Oregon and then University of California Hastings College of Law.

Jolson said he died in his sleep. "He worked until the last day of his life, clutching his phone in one hand and his iPad in the other," she said. "He fought for his clients, he fought for his friends, and he fought for what he thought was right."
