GAMES LOST

This matchup has been a long time in the making. Had the COVID-19 pandemic not washed out the 2020 postseason, both these teams would have been No. 1 seeds in last season's NCAA Tournament.

They were supposed to play this season, too. The meeting was set for Dec. 5 in Indianapolis — a Final Four preview in the Final Four city, many predicted — but the game got scratched when a Zags player and a staffer tested positive.

The coaches worked hard to try to reschedule. But there was no room on the calendar. Instead, they meet for the title.

This marks the first time since 2005 that the top two teams on the overall seeding list have faced in the final. Gonzaga has spent the entire season at No. 1 in the AP poll. Baylor spent 15 of 17 weeks at No. 2 and finished at No. 3 (behind Illinois).

MO'S MOMENT

Nobody will ever forget Adam Morrison's tears against UCLA. Now, nobody will forget his "Yeesssss."

The former Gonzaga star was crestfallen, weeping with his head buried in the hardwood after a devastating loss to the Bruins in the Sweet 16 back in 2006.

Fifteen years, later, he does color for Bulldogs radio, and his reaction to Suggs' game-winner was getting plenty of buzz a day later. It's three loud shouts of "Yeesssss" with some other hooting and hollering to wrap it up.

Few said the team's sports information director played it for him on the way over to do his interviews Sunday.

"A pretty special moment, and I was happy for him and proud of him for letting his guard down," the coach said.

PRIOR TO THE PAUSE

Before COVID-19 put a three-week hold on their season in February, the Bears were undefeated, too.

After starting 18-0, they lost two of six shortly after coming out of the break. Drew said the lack of quality practice time during the lay-off, then afterward when Baylor was playing almost every other day, took its toll on the team's defense.

Only when the Bears lost to Oklahoma State in the Big 12 tournament semifinals were they able to get back to practicing regularly, and get back to basics.

"Our players really bought in," Drew said. "Our defense was lapsing, and we had to get back to where we were."

Analytics rank the Bears third in the nation in forced turnovers and sixth in steals — part of the formula for stopping Gonzaga's top-ranked offense.

PRIME MATCHUP

Baylor's Davion Mitchell's nickname is "Off Night," because anyone he D's up on seems to have one. His next task: Stopping Suggs.

In addition to making the shot of the tournament, Suggs is averaging 14 points and 5.5 rebounds a game and setting himself up as an NBA lottery pick should he decide to leave.

Mitchell says he knows he can't shut down anyone completely.

"My job is just to slow 'em down, not to keep 'em from scoring," Mitchell said. "Everyone's really good at this game. My job is just to limit that."

UNDEFEATED

Few and Drew are fishing buddies in the offseason, and pickleball partners in the basketball bubble.

Conceding that it might be a break in COVID-19 protocols, Few said he and the Baylor coach haven't lost a game on the pickleball courts set up at the baseball stadium where teams have gone for fresh air during their semi-quarantined stay in Indianapolis.

The coaches' time together during the tournament has offered them a chance to reflect on their journeys. Few has been head coach at Gonzaga since 1999 and helped build the tiny school into a powerhouse. Drew took over a Baylor program eviscerated after the 2003 murder of player Patrick Dennehy by a teammate.

"We've talked about where we were and where we are," Few said. "Our path was a lot smoother and didn't come from a dark place. But from where they were, it's unbelievable what they've been able to do."

The Cardinal, after another timeout, couldn't even get a shot off, giving Arizona one last chance with 6.1 seconds left, but McDonald's contested shot from the top of the key at the buzzer bounced off the rim.

"I got denied hard. I tried to turn the corner, they sent three at me. I took a tough, contested shot and it didn't fall," said McDonald, who fell near midcourt, slumped in disbelief while the Cardinal celebrated.

It's been quite a journey for VanDerveer and the Cardinal this season. The team was forced on the road for nearly 10 weeks because of the coronavirus, spending 86 days in hotels during this nomadic season.

The team didn't complain and went about their business and now have another NCAA championship. Along the way the Hall of Fame coach earned her 1,099th career victory to pass Pat Summitt for the most all-time in women's basketball history.

Now the 67-year-old coach has a third national title to go along with the ones she won in 1990 and 1992. That moved her into a tie with Baylor's Kim Mulkey for third most all-time behind Geno Auriemma and Summitt.

Tavatanakit holds off charging Ko in ANA Inspiration

— Patty Tavatanakit survived Lydia Ko's final-round charge Sunday to win the ANA Inspiration for her first LPGA Tour victory. Five strokes ahead entering the day and six in front after a chip-in eagle on the par-5 second, Tavatanakit shot a 4-under 68 in 100-degree heat to beat Ko by two strokes in the first major championship of the year. Ko matched Lorena Ochoa's tournament record with a 62, shooting 7-under 29 on the front nine for the best nine-hole score in event's 50-year history. The New Zealander began the day tied for seventh at 6 under, eight strokes behind Tavatanakit in the tournament played without spectators for the second time in seven months.
