Chavez, Shellev entering transfer portal, leaving Ducks women's team — Oregon is losing one of its best guards and most veteran players, as well as one of its best shooters. Taylor Chavez, who averaged 4.1 points, 2.1 assists and 1.9 rebounds in 19 minutes over 19 games this season has entered the transfer portal, according to a source with knowledge of the situation. She's the second player to announce she's leaving the Ducks this offseason, joining fellow guard Jaz Shelley. Shelley, who averaged 4.0 points, 1.9 assists and 1.7 rebounds in 17.6 minutes through 22 games this season, announced Wednesday she's entering the transfer portal.

Arizona parts ways with coach Miller — Arizona had stuck by men's basketball coach Sean Miller through an NCAA infractions investigation that stretched nearly four years. When the school didn't extend his contract beyond next season, it became clear a decision would need to be made. The wait came to an end Wednesday when the school announced Miller was leaving after 12 seasons and associate head coach Jack Murphy will serve as interim head coach. Miller and the Wildcats have been in the NCAA's crosshairs since being ensnared in a 2017 FBI investigation into shady recruiting practices. The case is currently going through the Independent Accountability Resolution Process. Arizona issued a self-imposed postseason ban this year and finished 17-9 (11-9 Pac-12). The school said it will honor the final year of Miller's contract.

Mariners' Paxton, Fraley go on 10-day IL — The Seattle Mariners placed left-handed starter James Paxton on the 10-day injured list Wednesday with a forearm strain in his pitching arm. Seattle also put starting left fielder Jake Fraley on the 10-day IL with a left hamstring strain he suffered while making a diving catch in Tuesday's loss to the Chicago White Sox. Manager Scott Servais said both players underwent MRIs on Wednesday morning and the team was still awaiting results. Paxton left in the second inning after just 24 pitches, grimacing after throwing a 92 mph fastball. Seattle recalled outfielder Braden Bishop and right-hander Ljay Newsome from its alternate training site to take the roster spots of both players. Newsome will move into the bullpen and Nick Margevicius will take Paxton's spot in the starting rotation. On Wednesday the Mariners used a seven-run sixth inning to beat the White Sox 8-4 to avoid a series sweep. Seattle heads out for its first road trip of the season to face the Minnesota Twins beginning Thursday.

But once again, Summit found itself in a hole in the third set. Midway through the set, sophomore outside hitter hannon MacCallum had a kil that seemed to rejuvenate the Storm. After the kill, Summit closed the set on a 13-7 run to win 25-21.

Summit once again rallied late in the fourth set. With the set tied at 15, the Storm closed on a 10-4 run to win 25-19 and force a fifth and final set.

In a way, the fifth set encompassed the entire match, as Bend jumped out to a sizable lead and Summit clawed its way back into contention. But the Bears hung on for the victory.

"It is never over until it is over," Waskom said. "That was a good lesson that you are always going for. We made a great comeback; a lot of teams would fold there. I thought we were fighters and feisty in set five and that is something to be proud of."

After the match, players from both teams met to chat with one another and take photos. Some players had tears in their eves. signifying the emotions that come with both a hard-fought victory and the pain of coming up just short.

Then there was the realization that it was going to be the last time that several of these players would compete against and Summit players have been playing with and against one another for most of their lives. "Some of us have played to-each other. Many of the Bend gether since third grade," Armstrong said. "We are all leaving and graduating and moving all across the country. It is just a lot going on right now."

Tuesday night was the final match of the shortened season for Summit, which finished 6-3 overall and 4-2 in the Mountain Valley Conference. Bend (9-1, 4-1) will conclude its stellar season Thursday night at home against Mountain View.

"I love the energy that we came out with," Cooper said. "I think knowing that this was our last week, it is something that we have been working on all season, I was really happy to see that. Our serve and serve return were on point. And that is something you have to do against a good team like Summit." Reporter: 541-383-0307.

Masters

Mickelson is a three-time Masters champion and a wizard with the wedge. After his second shot, he looked over at DeChambeau and said, "Boy, it's tough when it's dry."

So much about the Masters will be so different, minus expectations of the usual suspects - a little more noise from at least some spectators.

Johnson won the Saudi International for his only victory in six starts this year, though he has been in a bit of a funk the last month.

No one is suggesting the green jacket he won in November should come with a footnote given the conditions. He was that much better than everyone else.

But he won't be hitting 5-iron to a left pin on the par-5 second hole for a tap-in eagle like he did in the third round in November, taking on pins that were accessible in such soft conditions. Johnson talked about watching one player in his room hit 3-wood to a left pin on the 15th that landed and stopped near the hole. That's out.

Rory McIlroy tees off on the fourth hole during a practice round for the Masters on Wednesday in Augusta, Georgia.

Jimmy Walker said no one could hold a shot on the 15th. He said he and McIlroy each had irons into the 15th that had no chance of staying there. Masters Chairman Fred Ridley is a past president of the USGA, an organization suspected of being very good at payback.

Most notable was Johnny Miller shooting 63 in the final round to win the 1973 U.S. Open at Oakmont. The next year, Hale Irwin won at Winged Foot at 7-over par.

That's the U.S. Open, with a history of par being a winning score, or not far from it.

The Masters can be brutal when it's brittle and windy and cold. Zach Johnson won in 2007 in those conditions at 1-over 289, though it was the first time in more than 50 years that no one broke par at the Masters.

"The fact that Dustin was 20 under was a combination of his extraordinary play that at the same time, admittedly, the golf course was soft," Ridley said.

"So it was ready to be played very well with a lot of red numbers. But that really had nothing to do with how the golf course is playing right now. "I think we have the golf course where we want it."

It all starts Thursday morning with Lee Elder, the first Black golfer to compete in the Masters in 1975, joining Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player for the honorary tee shot. And then the curtain rises on the 85th Masters, which should feel like the Masters of old even if that's only two years

Johnson was a runner-up to Tiger Woods when the Masters was last held in April in

So was Xander Schauffele, who thinks this year it might be even "crazier."

"When I say crazier, I mean firmer and faster," Schauffele said, adding a few minutes later, "I think every guy who plays professionally is a little bit of a masochist, so I'm here for the torture."
