

TODAY

Today is Tuesday, April 13, the 103rd day of 2021. There are 262 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On April 13, 1970, Apollo 13, four-fifths of the way to the moon, was crippled when a tank containing liquid oxygen burst. (The astronauts managed to return safely.)

In 1613, Pocahontas, daughter of Chief Powhatan, was captured by English Capt. Samuel Argall in the Virginia Colony. (During a yearlong captivity, Pocahontas converted to Christianity and ultimately opted to stay with the English.)

In 1742, "Messiah," the oratorio by George Frideric Handel featuring the "Hallelujah" chorus, had its first public performance in Dublin, Ireland.

In 1743, the third president of the United States, Thomas Jefferson, was born in Shadwell in the Virginia Colony.

In 1861, at the start of the Civil War, Fort Sumter in South Carolina fell to Confederate forces.

In 1870, the Metropolitan Museum of Art was incorporated in New York. (The original museum opened in 1872.)

In 1943, President Franklin D. Roosevelt dedicated the Jefferson Memorial in Washington, D.C., on the 200th anniversary of the third American president's birth.

In 1964, Sidney Poitier became the first Black performer in a leading role to win an Academy Award for his performance in "Lilies of the Field."

In 1992, the Great Chicago Flood took place as the city's century-old tunnel system and adjacent basements filled with water from the Chicago River. "The Bridges of Madison County," a romance novel by Robert James Waller, was published by Warner Books.

In 1997, Tiger Woods became the youngest person to win the Masters Tournament and the first player of partly African heritage to claim a major golf title.

In 1999, right-to-die advocate Dr. Jack Kevorkian was sentenced in Pontiac, Michigan, to 10 to 25 years in prison for second-degree murder in the lethal injection of a Lou Gehrig's disease patient. (Kevorkian ended up serving eight years.)

In 2005, a defiant Eric Rudolph pleaded guilty to carrying out the deadly bombing at the 1996 Atlanta Olympics and three other attacks in back-to-back court appearances in Birmingham, Alabama, and Atlanta.

In 2015, a federal judge in Washington sentenced former Blackwater security guard Nicholas Slatten to life in prison and three others to 30-year terms for their roles in a 2007 shooting in Baghdad's Nisoor Square that killed 14 Iraqi civilians and wounded 17 others.

Ten years ago: A federal jury in San Francisco convicted baseball slugger Barry Bonds of a single charge of obstruction of justice, but failed to reach a verdict on the three counts at the heart of allegations that he'd knowingly used steroids and human growth hormone and lied to a grand jury about it. (Bonds' conviction for obstruction was ultimately overturned.)

Five years ago: A task force issued a report saying that Chicago police had "no regard for the sanctity of life when it comes to people of color." A judge in Fort Worth, Texas ordered 19-year-old Ethan Couch, who had used an "affluenza" defense in a fatal drunken-driving wreck, to serve nearly two years in prison. Kobe Bryant of the Lakers scored 60 points in his final game, wrapping up 20 years in the NBA.

One year ago: President Donald Trump claimed "total" authority to decide how and when to reopen the economy after weeks of tough social distancing guidelines. Sculptor and painter Glenna Goodacre, who created the Vietnam Women's Memorial in Washington, D.C., died in New Mexico at the age of 80.

Today's Birthdays: Actor Edward Fox is 84. Actor Paul Sorvino is 82. R&B singer Lester Chambers is 81. Movie-TV composer Bill Conti is 79. Rock musician Jack Casady is 77. Actor Tony Dow is 76. SOUTHWEST OREGON

FEMA trailers being used for fire survivors, not migrants

Associated Press

MEDFORD — Federal officials say that trailers at an industrial site in southwest Oregon, which were rumored to house unaccompanied immigrant children, are actually for survivors of the September wildfires.

The Mail Tribune reported on Sunday that the rumors spurred people with guns to show up at the site to protest the presence of the trailers. Officials say the group did not brandish their weapons in a threatening manner and no one was hurt.

"Those rumors are false. We are not utilizing the manufactured home units or any of the travel trailers to house unaccompanied immigrants or individuals who are crossing the border in the south, the north or any other border," said Toney Raines, the Federal Emergency Management Agency's coordinating officer for the state of Oregon. During the September 2020 wildfires in Oregon, more than 1,562 square miles and at least 4,000 homes were destroyed. Jackson County, which was the hardest hit area, lost 2,500 homes and, as of last week, 785 fire survivors were still living in hotels.

The flames that ravaged Oregon and wiped out affordable housing and entire neighborhoods only exacerbated the state's housing crisis.

"We have almost no vacancy anywhere. We're at essentially 0% vacancy,"

John Vial, the Jackson County Emergency Operations Center director, told the Mail Tribune. "These FEMA trailers are absolutely essential. We don't have other options for housing. Without bringing in and placing trailers, people will have nowhere to go. These trailers are absolutely critical for our community."

The trailers and units have been hauled to several communities impacted by the fires, including 96 in Jackson County.

Minnesota is reeling after police fatally shot another Black man. Here a person confronts an officer near the site of the latest shooting, in Brooklyn Center, on Sunday.

Police: Minnesota officer went for Taser, accidentally drew gun

The police officer who fatally shot a Black man during a traffic stop in a Minneapolis suburb apparently intended to fire a Taser, not a handgun, as the man struggled with police, the city's police chief said Monday.

Brooklyn Center Police Chief Tim Gannon described the shooting death Sunday of Daunte Wright, 20, as "an accidental discharge." It happened as police were trying to arrest Wright on an outstanding warrant.

NATIONAL BRIEFING

The shooting sparked protests and unrest in a metropolitan area already on edge because of the trial of the first of four police officers charged in George Floyd's death.

"I'll Tase you! I'll Tase you! Taser! Taser! Taser!" the officer is heard shouting on her bodycam footage released at a news conference.

The governor instituted another dusk-to-dawn curfew, but hundreds of people gathered outside the Brooklyn Center police station Monday night, separated from dozens of officers by a chain-link fence.

Suspected gunman dead in Tennessee school shooting

A student opened fire on officers responding to a report of a possible gunman at a high school outside Knoxville, Tennessee, on Monday. Police shot back and killed him, authorities said.

The shooting wounded an officer and comes as the community reels from off-campus gun violence that has left three other students dead this year.

Charges

The oldest of the 16 active homicide cases in Jefferson and Deschutes counties dates to 2018. There are none in Crook County. They include elements of alleged mental illness, random violence, score-settling, hit-and-run and domestic violence.

- Gavin David Smith-Brown, 32, is suspected of killing his mother, Gayla Smith, 65, in her Crooked River Ranch home in June 2018. He allegedly stole her Subaru and drove to the Portland area, where he was in a two-hour standoff with police. He has been sent several times to the state mental hospital in Salem for evaluation. His next status check is scheduled for May.

- On July 28, 2019, a man walking his dog in the heavily forested Wake Butte area about 6 miles west of Sunriver discovered the badly decomposed remains of Curtis Frederick Pagel, 48. Pagel had no known address. Detectives with the Deschutes County Sheriff's Office believe foul play was involved in Pagel's death.

- In May, the body of Byron Joseph Hilands, 33, was found in an unplugged refrigerator on land Hilands owned on SW Culver Highway in Jefferson County. One month later, police arrested his girlfriend, Charina Jeanette Owen, who had a history of domestic violence against him. Owen, 37, has pleaded not guilty to second-degree murder, abuse of a corpse and other charges. In January, she was charged for allegedly making "pruno," or alcohol in her jail cell.

"It's not necessarily that more homicides are occurring now, it's that the longer each one takes to resolve, the more you'll have pending at any one time."

— John Hummel, Deschutes County district attorney

- Madras Police officers believe that brothers Jakobi Washington, 18, and Josiah Washington, 20, were in an extended dispute with Madras man Jonathan Bonfield, 18, that culminated in Bonfield's death July 1 by a gunshot to the chest. The pair was arrested at their mother's home in Madras after police say they provided statements that were inconsistent with evidence from their cellphone histories. A .38-caliber handgun was taken as evidence. The brothers and co-defendants have pleaded not guilty to second-degree murder and a jury trial is scheduled for September.

- Anthony Rubaldino Vasquez, 20, is accused of being high on marijuana on Nov. 20 when he struck pedestrian Leroy Eugene Hall, 90 crossing NW Sixth Street in Redmond. Vasquez has pleaded not guilty to criminally negligent homicide and other charges and is scheduled to enter a plea April 27.

- Police believe Jenna Rae Campbell, 21, shot and killed Doretta Adaline Smith, aka Sammons, 42, on Dec. 16 at Smith's home in Madras. Campbell, of Prineville, was arrested following an alleged run from the law that included home invasion, gunfire and attempted carjacking. A grand jury charged Campbell under three theories of homicide:

first-degree manslaughter, second-degree manslaughter and criminally negligent homicide. She's pleaded not guilty and has a pretrial hearing scheduled later this month.

- Randall Richard Kilby, 35, was arrested last month in connection with three murders in southwest Bend. He's accused of killing Bend woman Daphne Anne Banks, who died Jan. 10, and brothers in law Jeffrey Allen Taylor and Benjamin Harlin Taylor, whose bodies were discovered March 21. Last week, the home in Romaine Village where the alleged killings took place mysteriously burned.

The homicide total also includes the unsolved double homicide of Ray Atkinson Jr. and Natasha "Tasha" Newby, whose bodies were found in a Bend home Aug. 15.

Stephanie Rodea said she was hurt that no one from the police or district attorney's office reached out to her since her husband's death.

"It's hard to say what I want in the end. I don't know if anything is going to make it better," she said. "I feel like I'm only 34, and I have a life sentence of heartache. It doesn't matter how good or bad my life goes, I'm always going to think about what could have been and what should have been."

Christopher Rodea, an electrician, lost his own father at age 15. His widow thinks it helped make him into the person he was: patient and kind, unbothered by life's little frustrations.

When people would ask Stephanie Rodea why she had so many children, she would always point to her husband.

"I'd tell them, I have such an amazing partner," she said. "I would never have had four if he wasn't so hands-on."

The district attorney's decision Monday was a lot for Rodea to take in emotionally, she said. It left her lonely and thinking about Tuesday, when her husband would have celebrated his 38th birthday.

This is not a commitment to lend. Prices, guidelines and minimum requirements are subject to change without notice. Some products may not be available in all states. Subject to review of credit and collateral, not all applicants will qualify for financing. It is important to make an informed decision when selecting and using a loan product. Make sure to compare loan types when making a financing decision. This document is provided by Finance of America Mortgage. Any materials were not provided by FEA or FHA. It has not been approved by FEA or any Government Agency. When the loan is due and payable, some or all of the equity in the property that is the subject of the reverse mortgage no longer belongs to borrowers, who may need to sell the home or otherwise repay the loan with other assets. The lender may charge an origination fee, mortgage insurance premium, closing costs and servicing fees (added to the balance of the loan). The balance of the loan grows over time and the lender charges interest on the balance. Borrowers are responsible for paying property taxes, homeowner's insurance, maintenance, and related taxes (which may be substantial). We do not establish an escrow account for disbursements of these payments. A set-aside account can be set up to pay taxes and insurance and may be required in some cases. Borrowers must occupy home as their primary residence and pay for ongoing maintenance, otherwise the loan becomes due and payable. The loan also becomes due and payable (and the property may be subject to a tax lien, other encumbrance, or foreclosure) when the borrower, or eligible non-borrowing surviving spouse, dies, sells the home, permanently leaves out, defaults on taxes, insurance payments, or maintenance, or does not otherwise comply with the loan terms. Interest is not tax deductible until the loan is partially or fully repaid.
