What is COVID-19? It's an infection caused by a new coronavirus. Symptoms (including fever, coughing and shortness of breath) can be severe. While some cases are mild, the disease can be fatal.

7 ways to help limit its spread: 1. Wash hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds. 2. Avoid touching your face. 3. Avoid close contact with sick people. 4. Stay home. 5. In public, stay 6 feet from others and wear a cloth face covering or mask. 6. Cover a cough or sneeze with a tissue or cough into your elbow. 7. Clean and disinfect frequently touched objects and surfaces.

PROTESTS | KILLING OF DAUNTE WRIGHT

Portland Police declare riot after vigil

Associated Press
Portland Police said a demonstration protesting the police killing of a Black man in Minnesota turned into a riot Monday night, with some in the crowd throwing rocks and other projectiles at officers. At least 200 people gathered around 8:30 p.m. at the Penumbra Kelly Building, which houses the office for the Multnomah County sheriff, Portland Police and city offices, the Portland Police Bureau said in a statement. Some in the crowd broke windows, tore down exterior light fixtures and threw bottles, rocks and fireworks at officers, prompting police to move in, according to The Oregonian and the police statement. Police said they issued verbal warnings to the crowd but around 10:30 p.m. police declared the gathering a riot and bull-rushed protesters, knocking them to the ground and spraying chemical irritant, news outlets reported. After officers pushed the crowd back, police said they "purposely disengaged" from the crowd. No one was arrested. The evening began at a vigil for Daunte Wright, 20, who was killed by a Brooklyn Center police officer in the Minneapolis suburb Sunday during a traffic stop. Brooklyn Center Police Chief Tim Gannon described the shooting death as "an accidental discharge." On Tuesday, Gannon and the white police officer who fatally shot Wright, officer Kim Potter, resigned — moves that the Brooklyn Center mayor said he hoped would help heal the community and lead to reconciliation after two nights of protests and unrest. Potter, a 26-year veteran, had been on administrative leave following Sunday's shooting, which happened as the Minneapolis area was already on edge over the trial of the first of four police officers in George Floyd's death.

LOCAL BRIEFING

Climber rescued after being stuck on South Sister

A climber on the north side of South Sister was rescued Monday after getting stranded on a small ledge along steep terrain. Stephen Lamb, 49, of Beaverton, called 911 just before 9 a.m. to report he was climbing alone on South Sister and was unable to continue up or down due to snow and ice that surrounded him, according to the Deschutes County Sheriff's Office.

Three volunteers from the sheriff's office search and rescue team were flown to the South Sister summit, and six more volunteers arrived at the Devil's Lake Trailhead on snowmobiles. Rescuers at the summit climbed about 600 feet down a ridge off the northwest side of the mountain and then traveled about 500 feet east directly above Lamb.

At about 3:19 p.m., a search and rescue volunteer rappelled to Lamb and kept him from falling. About an hour later, Lamb was hoisted aboard an Oregon National Guard HH-60 Blackhawk helicopter and flown to the Sisters Airport. Lamb was uninjured, but exhausted from the long climb and from holding onto a ledge for more than seven hours, according to the sheriff's office.

OSU-Cascades tuition to increase for undergrads

Undergraduate students at Oregon State University-Cascades will see tuition rise next school year — but that increase will be smaller for returning students than new ones. The university is raising tuition by 2.5% for returning undergrads and 4% for new undergrads at both its Bend and Corvallis campuses, according to university spokespeople Christine Coffin and Steve Clark. This means that an undergraduate student at OSU-Cascades from Oregon will pay $12,444 in tuition and fees for a full-credit, three-term year in 2021-22, according to the university's website. That's $279 more than the tuition and fees for this year. OSU decided to reduce the tuition hike for returning students to incentivize them to stay and finish their degrees at the university, Coffin told The Bulletin. Although graduate programs at OSU's Corvallis campus will also raise tuition, the price of OSU-Cascades' graduate programs will not change next school year, Coffin said.

Prescribed burns to close parts of Phil's Trail

Fuels specialists working with the Deschutes National Forest plan to conduct a prescribed burn in areas west of Bend on Thursday, including areas around the Phil's Trail bike paths. The burn will be visible to Bend residents and drivers along Century Drive. The project area is south of Phil's Trailhead and will include portions of KGB, COG and Marvin's Garden trails. The bike trails will be closed during the operation. Forest Road 4604 will also be closed along with several small Forest Service roads.

Prescribed burns are conducted across areas of Central Oregon to eliminate or reduce ground cover that can fuel wildfires in summer. Thursday's prescribed burn is expected to cover 350 acres. The ignitions will take place between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. and could be extended into Friday. Smoke and residual burning will be visible in the area for up to a week after the ignition. Nighttime and early morning smoke are expected to settle in neighborhoods in west Bend. Residents are encouraged to keep windows closed and turn on headlights if smoke is visible on roads.

Pair arraigned on conspiracy to murder

A Bend man accused of trying to kill a man he believed would testify against him was arraigned this week alongside a Bend woman named as a co-conspirator. Anthony James Reyes allegedly conspired to lure Vance Douglas to a remote area on China Hat Road in order to kill him, according to Deschutes County court records. Douglas was seriously injured in the attack March 28. A week later, alleged co-conspirator Tesla Brandt Delury attempted yet again to induce Douglas to not testify against Reyes, court records state. Reyes, 33, and Delury, 30, were arraigned Monday in Deschutes County Circuit Court. Both remain in custody and have May court dates scheduled to enter pleas in this case. According to the Deschutes County Sheriff's Office, around 12 a.m. March 28, police were called to a report of a man stabbed in the neck near Sunset View Drive off China Hat Road south of Bend. Paramedics met Douglas and one of his friends at the Bend Walmart parking lot near U.S. Highway 97. Douglas was taken to St. Charles Bend in serious condition. Reyes was arrested the same day. Delury was arrested April 2. The alleged intimidation was not enough to convince Douglas to not testify against Reyes and Delury, which he did April 9 before a grand jury, according to court records. Delury and Reyes now face charges of conspiracy to commit second-degree murder and conspiracy to commit first-degree assault. Reyes also faces attempted murder and first-degree assault. Delury also faces additional charges: tampering with evidence for allegedly deleting text messages, resisting arrest and tampering with a witness for allegedly trying on two occasions to persuade Douglas to not testify in this case. —Bulletin staff reports
