COVID-19 patients hospitalized at St. Charles Bend on Friday: 15 (3 in ICU)

What is COVID-19? It's an infection caused by a new coronavirus. Symptoms (including fever, coughing and shortness of breath) can be severe. While some cases are mild, the disease can be fatal.

7 ways to help limit its spread: 1. Wash hands often with soap and water for at least 20 seconds. 2. Avoid touching your face. 3. Avoid close contact with sick people. 4. Stay home. 5. In public, stay 6 feet from others and wear a cloth face covering or mask. 6. Cover a cough or sneeze with a tissue or cough into your elbow. 7. Clean and disinfect frequently touched objects and surfaces.

Portland police were dispatched to a call about a man in Lents Park with a gun. Officers responded and confronted the man. One officer fired, killing the man near the fence by the park's ball field off SE 92nd Avenue. A group of protesters gathered at the scene.

Portland Police fatally shoot man at city park

Associated Press

PORTLAND — Police in Portland fatally shot a man in a city park Friday morning after responding to reports of a person with a gun, authorities said.

Police confronted the man at Lents Park in the southeastern part of the city and at least one officer fired, killing the man, The Oregonian.

The man who was killed has not been identified. A city spokesman said that Portland Mayor Ted Wheeler, his chief of staff Bobby Lee, public safety adviser Robert King and Assistant Police Chief Chris Davis were all heading to the scene of the shooting.

Protesters also began arriving at the scene within two hours of the shooting and were held behind a line of yellow police tape. Included in the group was the mother of a Black man who was fatally shot by police in 2018.

Todd Littlefield, who lives nearby, told the newspaper that he went to the park after he heard gunfire.

"I was just getting in my truck, and I heard a loud shot," he said.

Littlefield drove to the park and saw several officers standing behind trees and their cars, ordering a man to show his hands, he said.

Juan Chavez, an attendant at the nearby AM/PM gas station, said he saw a man standing in the middle of the intersection, blocking traffic, with his shirt off. He appeared to be unstable and disoriented, Chavez told the newspaper.

Police then showed up, and then the man entered the park before Chavez said he heard two gunshots.

The area where the shooting occurred is within the boundaries of operation for a new pilot project called Portland Street Response, which responds with a nonpolice team to calls about homelessness or people in mental health crisis, Oregon Public Broadcasting reported.

Lawsuit describes night of fear for Wall of Moms protester

BY ANDREW SELSKY
Associated Press

SALEM — A lawyer who formed part of a "Wall of Moms" confronting militarized U.S. agents is suing federal authorities, claiming excessive force was used against her and she was arrested without probable cause.

In the lawsuit filed in federal court in Portland, Jennifer Kristiansen also accused an unnamed federal agent of groping her breast and buttocks as he trapped her against a wall, leading her to fear she would be raped.

Named as defendants are Gabriel Russell, regional director of the Department of Homeland Security's Federal Protective Service, supervisors and 29 ground-level agents who are not named because they wore no name tags.

Spokespersons for the DHS did not immediately respond to a request for comment on the lawsuit, filed Monday. The department has in the past declined to comment on pending court cases.

The lawsuit details how, for one woman seeking to protect Black Lives Matter protesters from militarized agents, one night turned into a traumatic experience.

On July 20, Kristiansen joined over 100 Wall of Moms protesters and walked to the federal courthouse in downtown Portland. It was the third night of Wall of Moms protests, in which women wearing yellow

T-shirts and clothing stood in line, arms locked, to support Black Lives Matter protesters who were facing off against federal agents deployed by the Trump administration.

John Hacker, an activist who videotaped protests in Portland, is also a plaintiff in the lawsuit.

In the predawn hours of July 29, after a protest had largely dispersed, some 15 agents dressed in dark blue or camouflage uniforms jumped out of vehicles that approached Hacker on the street, the lawsuit says. They are accused of taking him to the courthouse and refusing to answer his questions about why he was being arrested.
