LOCAL YOUTH SPORTS

Officials needed for lacrosse — The Bend Park and Recreation District has nearly 400 kids playing on 30 teams in the youth lacrosse league this spring. With 15 games being played each week, there is a great need for paid officials. Pay rate is $15 to $23 per game. Games are played at the Big Sky Sports Complex at 5 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday from April 28 to June 4. Although prior referee experience is not required, all referees must have lacrosse knowledge. Applicants must be 14 years of age, and be able to complete a criminal background screening and a pre-employment drug test. Interested applicants must email Rich Ekman, BPRD sports program coordinator, at rich@bendparksandrec.org and attend a virtual Zoom meeting at 3:30 p.m. on Wednesday, April 21.

OSU loses ground in top 25 — The Oregon State Beavers' impressive weekend sweep against the Cal Bears did not help their national standing. The Beavers dropped out of the USA Today Coaches poll and remain outside the top 25 in three of the six major college baseball polls. The Beavers fell outside the USA Today Coaches Poll for the first time since February, and were left out of the D1.baseball.com Top 25 and the Perfect Game Top 25 for the second consecutive week. They were, however, ranked in the three other major polls, landing at No. 22 in the Baseball America Top 25 and the Collegiate Baseball Top 30, and No. 21 in the National Collegiate Passabell Written Acceptation Top 20 in the National Collegiate Baseball Writers Association Top 30.

SOFTBALL

Oregon drops in polls, remains in top 10 after losing series at Washington — Oregon softball dropped in the polls but remains in the top 10 after losing three of four games against then-No. 6 Washington. The Ducks (28-8, 6-6 Pac-12) are No. 6 with 613 points in the NFCA coaches poll and tied for No. 7 with 365 points in the USA Softball poll after losing three games to the Huskies, who moved up to No. 4. That's down from No. 4 with 686 points and No. 5 with 409 points last week, respectively, for UO. Oregon hosts a four-game series against Stanford (23-11, 4-5 Pac-12) starting Friday at 5 p.m.

With 78 3-pointers in his last 11 games, Curry has set the record for most 3's in any 11-game stretch from the same regular season in NBA history. (And during this run, he's also broken the records for most 3's in spans of 10, nine, eight, seven, six, five, four and three games as well. He already owned the two-game mark before this stretch started.)

He's had 10 or more 3-pointers in four of his last five games. Since the 3-point line became a thing in the NBA in 1979, including playoffs, only two other players — Damian Lillard and Curry's Golden State teammate Klay Thompson — have at least four games with 10 or more 3's made. Ever. In their careers.

Curry just did it four times in a span of eight days.

"I've been blessed with a certain skill set and approach to the game that I've worked on, year after year after year,"

Golden State Warriors' Stephen Curry, left, elevates for a shot over Philadelphia 76ers' Seth Curry on Monday in Philadelphia.

Curry said. "And that work does pay off. The summers are hard; like, they're the hardest times of the year because I really build up that intensity and have a certain program that gets me in shape and gets me ready to sustain that over the course of the season."

That's why at this point in the season he looks good as ever. Curry has scored at least 30 points in each of his last 11 games. Nobody at his age anyone 33 or older — has ever done that before. Kobe Bryant had a run of 10 straight. Curry passed him on Monday night in Philadelphia.

Even Kerr — a gifted television analyst before he became one of the best coaches in the game — is running out of superlatives to offer.

"Whatever I said last game, just use that," Kerr said. "It's the same thing after every game. It's just utter amazement at this guy's skill level, heart, mind, focus. It's just amazing to watch."

Mookie Betts led the way for the Dodgers, deciding to sit out a game in San Francisco. His teammates quickly joined him, with Clayton Kershaw talking about "standing up for what we believe is right."

The WNBA had played a particularly notable role dating back to 2016 when players drew league fines for wearing "Black Lives Matter" shirts during warmups.

Over the past few days, as the Chauvin trial concluded and the jury began to deliberate, the feeling of anxiety that seemed to grip much of the nation was just as evident in the sports world.

"The events of this past year have shown just how toxic and prevalent systemic and individual racism are to our community," the owners of the Minnesota Twins posted Tuesday. "We understand more deeply than ever the need to listen, learn and empathize in order to find ways to move forward together to build a more just community for all." James was more succinct,

"I was going to make a celebratory tweet but then I was hit with sadness because we are celebrating something that is clear as day. The fact that so many injustices occurred to make us hold our breath toward this outcome is really telling."

quoting the author James Baldwin when he tweeted: "It is certain, in any case, that ignorance, allied with power, is the most ferocious enemy justice can have."

Moments after the verdict was announced in a Minneapolis courtroom, teammate Markieff Morris posted a series of praying hands and former Indiana Pacers star Reggie Miller extolled "ACCOUNT-ABILITY."

But some responses were measured, even after the jury convicted Chauvin of second-degree murder, third-degree murder and manslaughter. Seattle Seahawks quarterback

Russell Wilson said, "Love wins."

Tennis star Naomi Osaka, whose father is Haitian and mother Japanese, tweeted this: "I was going to make a celebratory tweet but then I was hit with sadness because we are celebrating something that is clear as day. The fact that so many injustices occurred to make us hold our breath toward this outcome is really telling."

the players union. 'Ît's never a time to celebrate when someone is killed," Houston Astros manager Dusty Baker told reporters. "Maybe this will help us heal and we'll cease with the violence."
