Kentucky wins 1st ever women's national title — AlliStumler had a season-high 26 kills, the biggest coming on the final point of the match, and Kentucky won its first national championship in women's volleyball with a four-set victory over Texas on Saturday night, 20-25, 25-18, 25-23, 25-22. The Wildcats had the nation's most efficient offense this season and, with the exception of a few hiccups early in the first set and the start of the fourth, they were in top form with Stumler and sisters Madi and Avery Skinner leading the way. Kentucky setter Madison Lilley, the national player of the year, was named the tournament's Most Outstanding Player after finishing with 53 set assists against the Longhorns.

Henderson claims 10th LPGA Tour title at L.A. Open

— Brooke Henderson rallied to win the L.A. Open on Saturday for her 10th LPGA Tour title, chipping in for birdie on the par-3 12th in an early back-nine burst and getting up-anddown for par on the last. Four strokes behind leader Jessica Korda and three back of top-ranked Jin Young Ko entering the day at Wilshire Country Club, Henderson closed with her second straight 4-under 67 for a one-stroke victory over Korda. "I definitely am a firm believer when you're in the winner's circle you're getting a lot of breaks and it's sort of meant to be," Henderson said. "I was making a lot of birdies, and I think probably the biggest break was 12, that chip-in. You know, those breaks can be really small or they can be really big."

South African pairing grabs lead at PGA Tour's Zurich Classic — Louis Oosthuizen and Charl Schwartzel birdied six of their final eight holes Saturday to shoot a 9-under 63 and take a one-shot lead at 19-under 197 into the final round of the Zurich Classic. The South African tandem birdied the par-3 17th with Oosthuizen's 33-foot putt and Oosthuizen missed an eagle on the par-5 18th by 4 inches before tapping in for the lead. The tournament will close with an alternate-shot round. Australians Marc Leishman and Cameron Smith also shot a 63 to move into a tie for second at 18 under with Cameron Champ and Tony Finau, who shot a 67 after Finau's tap-in birdie.

"We're making certain position coaches head up and be I would say like the head coach of that particular phase along with coach Bobby Williams who over the years has done some really, really good stuff, been a great football coach. But we all know that we got to improve and it's not on one person and it's not on particular player, it's on all of us as coaches, starting

Oregon's special teams have not fared well in recent years besides punt return with former safeties Ugo Amadi and Jevon Holland and kickoff return with Mykael Wright. The Ducks regressed in punt return defense, punt return and kickoff last season. Though they improved statistically in kickoff return they also lost onside kicks against USC and Iowa State to end last season.

Inside linebackers coach Ken Wilson is working with the kickoff coverage team given his prowess in coaching tackling.

Wilson said the increased depth compared to the fall is helping as the group adjusts personnel.

"We've got a lot more guys competing for those positions and those are really valued positions," Wilson said. "Special teams, just like in the bowl game or every game, special teams plays will win you or lose you football games. I'm lucky because I get to learn a lot from coach Williams. I think his resume speaks for itself how good a special teams he is, what kind of knowledge he has. I'm speaking up trying to put my little bit into it helping any way he's asking me to help in getting my guys out there.

Oregon Ducks linebacker Isaac Slade-Matautia celebrates after a tackle during a game against California in Eugene in 2019. Slade-Matautia, a defensive starter, asked to be added to special teams units this fall.

"Linebackers should love to play special teams. I don't care who you are, that's a play of defense and we should love to play special teams. I want to impress that upon my guys and I want to approach it out there as a coach like it is the most important play in the game because it is going to be. It's a one-play series and I want to coach it and I want my players to see me coach it like it's a one-play series. I want our special teams to dominate just like coach Williams and the rest of the staff does."

Last week's scrimmage illustrated the upgrades in personnel to some of the return and coverage units.

While Josh Delgado and Kris Hutson worked as the kickoff returners, among the players blocking for them were Bennett Williams, Mase Funa and Brandon Dorlus, all defensive starters, along with Dru Mathis, Adrian Jackson Jr., Jackson LaDuke and Steve Stephens IV, all defenders likely to end up on the two-deep.

Starting middle linebacker Noah Sewell, who got some some early work on special teams last season, took reps on kickoff return last week as well.

"I'm getting slowly back into that," Sewell said. "I don't know yet, it's still not penciled in so we'll see."

Starting nickel Jamal Hill began his career on special teams and takes pride in being on kickoff return defense. Cristobal cited the third-year sophomore for regularly flying down the field to make a tackle on kickoffs. "I know special teams impact the game and any way I can positively impact the game I want to be there to help the team," Hill said. "I take special teams very serious." Weak-side linebacker Isaac Slade-Matautia is also on kickoff return and he wants to add.

He said he's asked Williams to put him on punt team too. "I told him, whatever gets me more tackles, put me out there," said Slade-Matautia, who tied with Sewell for the team lead with 45 tackles last season. "I'm trying to get on punt. I'm on kickoff return right now, I used to do that years past. Whatever they need help in, I'm always there to tell them that I'm ready but sometimes they don't believe me. It's all good though."
