Mt. Hood Meadows will debut more than 8 miles of new trails

BY JAMIE HALE
The Oregonian

Ski runs at Mt. Hood Meadows have long been used as hiking trails come summer, but this year the ski area is really leaning into its warm weather recreation with even more options for hikers.

More than 8 miles of new trails will open this summer, Mt. Hood Meadows announced Tuesday, connecting the base of the ski area with existing trails, and adding new hiking opportunities that offer a more "intimate" experience.

Mt. Hood Meadows will open for its summer season on June 25 and will operate Thursdays through Mondays until Sept. 6.

The new trails begin at the main Mt. Hood Meadows parking lot, winding around the eastern side of the ski area and up to its highest reaches. They also connect to existing trails leading to nearby Umbrella Falls, Elk Meadows, Sahalie Falls and the famed Timberline Trail, which circumnavigates the mountain.

Mt. Hood Meadows has also added a new trail in the Jack's Woods section of Heather Canyon and built a spur trail to a viewpoint at Picnic Rock.

Dave Tragethon, spokesman for Mt. Hood Meadows, said the new trails may technically be open before June 25 to those hiking in from outside the ski area, though there may still be work going on, and several areas are still covered in snow. He urged hikers to steer clear of any machinery and ongoing projects.

"We're blessed with a cornucopia of nature and these new trails provide a more personal connection with the mountain environment," Tragethon said in a news release Tuesday.

"The new trails weave through meadows of wildflowers, in and out of the forest canopy and along mountain streams. They provide a much closer and intimate walk with nature."

The new trails also come with interpretive signs informing visitors about the local plants and animals, geology of the mountain and the area's importance to the Confederated Tribes of Warm Springs, the ski resort said.

LOCAL & STATE BRIEFING

Remains identified of Klamath Falls man killed in Pearl Harbor attack

The remains of a Navy serviceman from Klamath Falls who was killed during the attack on Pearl Harbor have been recovered and identified, according to the Defense POW/MIA Accounting Agency.

The agency identified the remains of Warren C. Gillette, a 21-year-old Navy Seaman 1st Class, who served on the battleship USS Oklahoma at Ford Island in Pearl Harbor. Gillette was on the ship on Dec. 7, 1941, when Japanese aircraft attacked Pearl Harbor. The attack on the ship resulted in 429 deaths, including Gillette.

From December 1941 to June 1944, Navy personnel recovered the remains of the crew, which were then interred in the Halawa and Nuuanu cemeteries.

In September 1947, members of the American Graves Registration Service transferred the remains to a laboratory on Oahu. The lab was able to identify 35 crewmembers from the Oklahoma. The unidentified remains, including Gillette's, were then buried in plots at the National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific at Punchbowl in Honolulu.

In October 1949, a military board classified the unidentified remains, including Gillette's, as nonrecoverable.

To identify Gillette's remains, scientists from the Defense POW/MIA Accounting Agency in 2015 examined the remains using anthropological analysis.

In addition, scientists from the Armed Forces Medical Examiner System used Y chromosome DNA analysis.

Gillette will be buried on July 12 in Eagle Point, Oregon.
