

WORLD BRIEFING

Justice official resigning amid uproar over Dems' subpoena

The Justice Department's top national security official is resigning from his position after revelations that the department under President Donald Trump secretly seized records from Democrats and members of the media.

John Demers, a Trump appointee, will leave by the end of next week, a Justice Department official told The Associated Press on Monday. Demers, who was sworn in a few weeks after the subpoena for the Democrats' records, is one of the few Trump appointees who has remained in the Biden administration. He had planned for weeks to leave the department by the end of June, a second person familiar with the matter said.

Demers' resignation comes amid questions about what he knew about the Justice Department's efforts to secretly seize the phone data from House Democrats and reporters as part of the aggressive investigations into leaks. Attorney General Merrick Garland emphasized in a statement Monday that "political or other improper considerations must play no role in any investigative or prosecutorial decisions" and noted the department's inspector general has already launched an investigation.

Reality Winner, NSA contractor who pleaded guilty, out of prison

Reality Winner, a former National Security Agency contractor who pleaded guilty to mishandling government secrets about Russian election interference and who has long sought a pardon, has been transferred from federal prison to the custody of a halfway house to serve the rest of her sentence, her attorney said Monday.

Winner's transfer came June 2 and was not part of any commutation or special treatment but a scheduled shift due to good behavior, said her attorney, Alison Grinter Allen.

While she finishes her sentence, she is likely to have the option of home confinement.

Her case marked the first criminal charges filed during the Trump administration against someone suspected of leaking government secrets to a journalist, and her family and open-government advocates have long argued she deserves a pardon or some other form of mercy.

The Air Force veteran was charged after FBI agents questioned her at her house not long after the story about the intelligence document appeared.

Myanmar puts Suu Kyi on trial on charges critics call bogus

Myanmar's ousted leader Aung San Suu Kyi went on trial Monday on charges that many observers say are an attempt by the junta that deposed her to eliminate her as a political force, erase the country's democratic gains and cement the military's power.

Suu Kyi's prosecution poses yet another major setback for Myanmar, which had been making slow progress toward democracy when a February coup prevented elected lawmakers from her National League for Democracy party from taking office following last year's landslide victory.

Human Rights Watch said that the allegations being heard in a special court in the capital, Naypyitaw, are "bogus and politically motivated" with the intention of nullifying the victory and preventing Suu Kyi from running for office again.

The army seized power on Feb. 1 before new lawmakers could be seated.

Wasabi: Westminster winner

BY JENNIFER PELTZ
Associated Press

TARRYTOWN, N.Y. — The flavor of the year at the Westminster Kennel Club dog show: Wasabi.

A Pekingese named Wasabi won best in show Sunday night, notching a fifth-ever win for the unmistakable toy breed. A whippet named Bourbon repeated as runner-up.

Waddling through a small-but-mighty turn in the ring, Wasabi nabbed U.S. dogdom's most prestigious prize after winning the big American Kennel Club National Championship in 2019. "He has showmanship. He fits the breed standard. He has that little extra something, that sparkle, that sets a dog apart," said Wasabi's handler, breeder and co-owner, David Fitzpatrick. Show judge Patricia Trotter said simply: "What's not to like about this dog? ... He stood there as though he was a lion."

Fitzpatrick, of East Berlin, Pennsylvania, guided the Pekingese grandfather Malachy to the Westminster title in 2012. Still, he said, "I just don't always think lightning is going to strike twice."

How will Wasabi celebrate? "He can have a filet mignon. And I'll have Champagne," Fitzpatrick said with a laugh.

The 3-year-old Pekingese, meanwhile, was "pretty nonchalant about the whole thing," his handler said. Indeed, Wasabi laid down on the dais, occasionally looking up as if to see what the fuss was all about, as Fitzpatrick spoke before a cluster of reporters and cameras.

It was a poignant win that came after one of his co-owners, archaeologist Iris Love, died last year of COVID-19. Besides Fitzpatrick, the dog is also co-owned by Sandra Middlebrooks and Peggy Steinman.

Wasabi — the name derives from his mother, Sushi — came out on top of a finalist pack that also included Mathew the French bulldog, Connor the old English sheepdog, Jade the German shorthaired pointer, Striker the Samoyed, and a West Highland white terrier named Boy. Altogether, 2,500 champion dogs entered the show.

Legal Notice
St. Charles Health System, Inc. ("St. Charles") is providing this notice pursuant to the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 ("HIPAA") to inform St. Charles patients that one of the health system's data storage vendors, Elekta, Inc. ("Elekta"), recently notified St. Charles of a security incident that may have involved the personal information of some St. Charles' patients. This event did not occur at St. Charles, nor did it impact the security of St. Charles' computer network and systems. St. Charles contracts with Elekta to provide cancer registry software and data management. Though it was Elekta that suffered the security incident, St. Charles is the entity that is subject to the breach notification rules of HIPAA. As such, St. Charles is required to provide notice to patients whose personal health information may have been accessed. This media notice explains what happened at Elekta, the information that may have been affected, measures Elekta is taking in response, and steps impacted patients can take to protect themselves.
What happened?

On May 14, 2021, Elekta notified St. Charles that certain of Elekta's network systems experienced a data security incident from April 2, 2021 to April 6, 2021, and from April 19, 2021 to April 20, 2021. This event did not occur at St. Charles, nor did it impact the security of St. Charles' computer network and systems. Immediate action upon detecting the incident, Elekta engaged expert forensic investigators to launch an investigation to determine the nature and scope of the incident. Elekta also contacted law enforcement and has been cooperating with them since. When Elekta's investigation revealed that the incident may have impacted personal information of St. Charles patients, Elekta contacted St. Charles and provided it with information regarding the nature and scope of the incident, Elekta's forensic investigation, and the potentially impacted patient personal information. Elekta's investigation to date has revealed no evidence the personal information has been disclosed publicly or used for any fraudulent purpose.
What information was involved?
From Elekta's investigation, the following types of personal information of certain of St. Charles' Oregon patients may have been impacted by the incident: full name, Social Security number, address, date of birth, height, weight, medical diagnosis, medical treatment details, and appointment confirmations. No financial account, credit card, or debit card information was involved in this incident. And, from Elekta's forensic investigation to date, there is no evidence to suggest that personal information has been disclosed publicly or used for any fraudulent purpose.

What happened?
St. Charles contracts with Elekta to provide cancer registry software and data management. Though it was Elekta that suffered the security incident, St. Charles is the entity that is subject to the breach notification rules of HIPAA. As such, St. Charles is required to provide notice to patients whose personal health information may have been accessed. This media notice explains what happened at Elekta, the information that may have been affected, measures Elekta is taking in response, and steps impacted patients can take to protect themselves.
What happened?

steps to prevent further access to information from its systems, including resetting passwords and implementing multi-factor authentication. When St. Charles was notified by Elekta of this incident, the health system commenced an investigation of its own to determine what St. Charles data may have been at risk, to understand the nature, scope, and cause of the incident at Elekta, and to evaluate Elekta's remediation measures. On June 14, 2021, St. Charles mailed written notification to all impacted patients informing them of the Elekta security incident. As an added precaution, Elekta is also offering free access to identity monitoring, fraud consultation, and identity theft restoration services to any impacted St. Charles patients.
What impacted patients can do now
Although St. Charles has no evidence that any personal information has been misused, the health system urges impacted patients to take advantage of the free credit monitoring and identity theft protection services being offered by Experian in the notification letters sent by U.S. mail on June 14, 2021, and encourages individuals to remain vigilant by reviewing account statements and credit reports closely. The notification letters contain additional information at the end regarding steps that impacted patients can take to further protect their personal information, including (1) reporting suspicious activity or suspected identity theft, (2) credit reports, and (3) credit security freezes.
For more information
St. Charles takes the privacy and security of its patients' information very seriously, and apologizes for any inconvenience Elekta's incident may cause. If impacted patients have additional questions about this incident or this letter, please call St. Charles' dedicated assistance line at +1 855-693-5358. Elekta also took
