Ducks' Zavala a consensus All-American — Aaron Zavala is a consensus All-American. The Oregon right fielder was named a first team All-American by Baseball America on Thursday, a day after the NCBWA recognized him with the same honor. Zavala is Oregon's first Baseball America first-team All-America selection, joining Jimmie Sherfy (second-team, 2013) and David Peterson (third-team, 2017) as the only three Ducks to earn postseason recognition from the publication. The Pac-12 Player of the Year, Zavala hit a team-leading .392 with nine home runs, 38 RBIs, 64 runs scored and 11 steals this season. He also set school records for on-base percentage (.525), runs and walks (50). A second-team All-American choice by Collegiate Baseball Newspaper, Zavala can earn consensus first-team distinction if selected by the American Baseball Coaches Association on Saturday.

Mavericks coach Carlisle steps down — Rick Carlisle stepped down as coach of the Dallas Mavericks on Thursday, the second major departure for that franchise in as many days. Carlisle spent 13 seasons in Dallas, leading the Mavericks to the 2011 NBA title. His decision was announced one day after general manager Donnie Nelson and the team agreed to part ways, ending a 24-year run for Nelson as part of the organization. "This was solely my decision," Carlisle said in a statement released to ESPN. Dallas becomes the seventh team with an coaching vacancy, joining New Orleans, Washington, Orlando, Indiana, Portland — and Boston, where Carlisle played for the team that won the 1986 NBA title.

Last season, that type of performance was uncommon.

"She was outstanding and a difference maker," Dickerson said. "A year ago, she was a completely different basketball player. We went to Julia tonight. A year ago, we wouldn't have." While it was a senior stepping up in the first half, it was a freshman who took the reins in the second half to close out the game.

Eight of Kasey Booster's 12 points came in the fourth quarter for Mountain View. With Summit chipping away at the lead in the final minutes, the freshman guard calmly sank four free throws to ice the "Free throws are something that I strive to be really good at," Booster said. "I want the ball at the end because I know I can knock them down."

Wednesday night was yet another slugfest that went the distance, which has been common this season among the three girls basketball programs in Bend. Prior to Thursday's game between Summit and Bend High, five of the six total matchups were decided by four points or fewer.

Summit was 4-0 against Bend schools before the loss to Mountain View.

The Storm, trailing by double-digits late in the fourth quarter, made one final push in the closing minutes. Senior Healy Bledsoe scored seven of her team-high 15 points in the fourth quarter and sophomore Rose Koehler scored four of her 11 points in the final quar-

But the comeback effort came up short.

"It is hard to play a team three times," said Summit coach Lynnette Landis after the third matchup against Mountain View in a 15-day span.

"We know each other so well. We always have a good battle with them every time. They are fun to play. I was proud of my kids for coming back from a 10-point deficit — they showed real heart."

Dickerson said that after the game she walked into the locker room to find her seniors in tears after playing their final high school game.

Still, there is a relief to be done among Central Oregon teams who crammed in their seasons over the last month. The Cougars (8-4) played 12 games in less than 30 days, and the Storm (5-5 entering Thursday's game against Bend) played 11 games over the same span.

"When there is a season like that where nothing is on the line, it is time to just let them have fun," Landis said. "If we went another week we wouldn't have a full team. And that's OK. We are exhausted. It was a packed-in season in a short amount of time."

Though USATF runs the Olympic trials, the USOPC has ultimate say on its rules and who it places on the Olympic team.

Houlihan began the day on the start list for both races, which led to phones ringing off the hook at USATF, USOPC, World Athletics and the U.S. Anti-Doping Agency.

"Despite how frustrated people might be with the (Court of Arbitration for Sport) decision, she is serving a sanction. Under the rules, she's not allowed to compete. It would be illegal for her to do so, unless a court orders differently."

— Travis Tygart, U.S. Anti-Doping Agency CEO

The main question: Why was the runner, who shared news of her suspension earlier in the week on social media, still on the start list?

"Despite how frustrated people might be with the CAS decision, she is serving a sanction," USADA CEO Travis Tygart said.

"Under the rules, she's not allowed to compete. It would be illegal for her to do so, un-less a court orders differently."

And so, with only hours to go until the races begin, Houlihan's slim chances of staying eligible rested on her filing an appeal to the Swiss federal court, and the court issuing an injunction that would allow her to compete while it decides whether to take the case.
