SPORTS BRIEFING

OLYMPICS

Lochte fails to qualify for 5th Games in swimming Ryan Lochte's gifts in the pool were nearly without peer. He won 12 Olympic medals — tied for second-most by a swimmer in history — and 27 more at world championships. He always had a soft spot for young fans, giving away some of his medals and sticking around until the last autograph seeker was satisfied. He wanted one more chance in a sport he loves, one more try at making everyone forget that night five years ago in Rio. He came up short. His bid to make a fifth Olympic team at age 36 ended Friday night with a seventh-place finish in the 200-meter individual medley. Only the top two swimmers earned berths for the pandemic-delayed Tokyo Games.

Ski mountaineering proposed as new sport for 2026

Winter Games — A new sport is set to be given an Olympic debut at the 2026 Winter Games. Ski mountaineering has been proposed by the IOC executive board as the eighth sport on the 2026 program in Milan-Cortina, the Olympic body said on Friday. The sport involves skiing and hiking up and down mountain terrain. The plan is for five new medal events in sprint and individual races for men and women, and a mixed gender relay. The same events were staged at the 2020 Youth Winter Olympics in Lausanne, Switzerland, where Italian athletes won three of the 15 medals. The proposal will be voted on by around 100 International Olympic Committee members at their July 20-21 meeting ahead of the Tokyo Olympics opening, the IOC said.

Busch earns 100th career Xfinity Series victory – Kyle

Busch raced to his 100th career Xfinity Series victory Saturday at Nashville Superspeedway, where he won for the fourth time. Busch won in the Xfinity Series in 2009 and the Truck Series in 2010 and 2011, but the track closed the year he won his last race. The speedway re-opened this weekend and will host its first Cup race Sunday. Busch led seven times for 123 laps and beat Justin Allgaier in overtime for his third victory in three Xfinity races this season. His 100th win in his 360th career start is a nearly 28% winning percentage. It might be all said and done after two more Xfinity Series races. Busch doesn't think Joe Gibbs Racing has sold any Xfinity races yet for him in 2022 and so this year could be his last.

Swimming

And as has been the case for all sports in the wake of the COVID-19 pandemic, it was a year that did not resemble the previous swimming seasons.

Of the four meets, only two were equipped with time boards to track the swimmer's time to determine team scores.

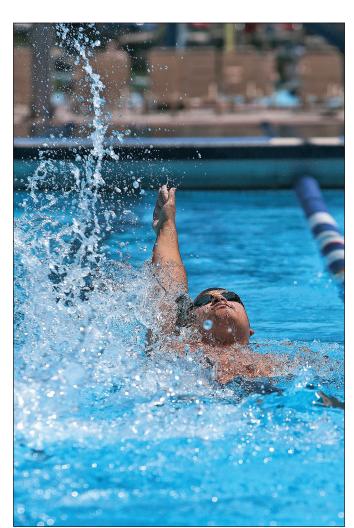

The other two, like the meet Saturday afternoon, are casual meets where the races were co-ed, scores and times were not tracked in an official capacity.

Just as there is no district meet, there is also no state meet during the Season 4 Culminating Week. The absence of the roof over the pool at Juniper Swim and Fitness Center proved just that.

To Griswold, a less competitive season in the pool was a welcoming change of pace to the typical winter season. And fewer days in the pool's chlorine water meant fewer days of dry skin.

"Meets are where I get to challenge myself and that is great and it is important to do stuff that makes you feel uncomfortable," she said. "It is really nice not to have to worry about it as much. It's so nice out, usually it is freezing and we have the covers over the pool. It is actually kinda nice this way."

Through the fall and winter months, there was a lot of uncertainty if the swim season would even happen. Being an indoor sport, there were

Hatch. "The goal this year was getting them back in the pool, getting them reengaged with athletics. It is a weird time and a weird year for everything."

Once the coaching staff got the green light to start practicing again to gear up to the season, the priority became less about improving times and more about getting people back in the pool and enjoying the sport and being with the team. "It has been challenging," said Hatch. "It has really been about getting people together and having fun. That has been the focus, rekindling the love for team sports."

Saturday, June 26 will be the final City Meet of the season at Juniper Swim and Fitness Center. It will be one of the two meets where official times are kept for the races.
