SPORTS BRIEFING

Men's USA Basketball has full 12-man roster — USA Basketball now has a full 12-man roster for the Tokyo Games, after Chicago's Zach LaVine and Detroit's Jerami Grant accepted invitations Wednesday to join the team that will try to win the program's fourth consecutive Olympic gold medal. Grant's decision was confirmed by a person familiar with the situation, who spoke to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity because USA Basketball had yet to formally reveal the full roster. Brooklyn's James Harden, who had briefly committed, has since told the national team that a hamstring injury that affected him during the NBA playoffs would not allow him to participate. So, for now, the Olympic team that will be coached by Gregg Popovich in Tokyo: Washington's Bradley Beal, Brooklyn's Kevin Durant, Miami's Bam Adebayo, Milwaukee teammates Jrue Holiday and Khris Middleton, Portland's Damian Lillard, Cleveland's Kevin Love, Phoenix's Devin Booker, Golden State's Draymond Green, Boston's Jayson Tatum, LaVine and Grant.

Carli Lloyd makes her 4th U.S. Olympic soccer squad

— Carli Lloyd is headed to her fourth Olympics after all. She had vowed after the 2019 World Cup that she would push to make the Olympic team one more time before stepping away from the sport. But then the Tokyo Games were pushed back a year because of the pandemic, and Lloyd needed surgery on her knee. But coach Vlatko Andonovski believes Lloyd can still be a valuable contributor and included her on the roster he announced Wednesday. Tobin Heath joins Lloyd in heading to her fourth Olympics. Also named to the U.S. women's national team were four Portland Thorns players: goalkeeper AD Franch, defender Becky Sauerbrunn, and midfielders Crystal Dunn and Lindsey Horan. Thorns player Christine Sinclair, who holds the all-time record for international goals among both men and women, leads Canada's roster for the Olympics, which was also revealed Wednesday.

MOTOR SPORTS

Gordon to take high-ranking role with Hendrick Motorsports — Jeff Gordon will leave the Fox Sports booth to take a daily role at Hendrick Motorsports as vice chairman and the second-ranking team official to majority owner Rick Hendrick. Wednesday's announcement positions the four-time champion and Hall of Famer to one day succeed the 71-year-old Hendrick. Gordon will formally begin the executive management role at the start of 2022. "Jeff and I have talked about this for many years and I feel it's a natural evolution for him and our company," Hendrick said. Gordon joined Hendrick Motorsports for the final Cup race of the 1992 season and launched one of the greatest careers in NASCAR history. He won 93 races — third on the all-time list — and four Cup titles before retiring in 2015. He joined the Fox Sports booth the next year but maintained an active role with the team as Hendrick's only partner.
