Police: Ammon Bundy arrested in trespassing case

Associated Press
MERIDIAN, Idaho — Far-right activist Ammon Bundy, who's running for governor in Idaho, has been arrested after refusing to leave a hospital in connection with a child-welfare case, police said Saturday. Bundy was arrested at about 1:15 a.m. on suspicion of misdemeanor trespassing at St. Luke's Meridian Medical Center in Meridian, west of Boise, the Idaho Statesman reported. Bundy is well-known for participating in armed standoffs with law enforcement, notably at the Malheur National Wildlife Refuge in Oregon in 2016, which left one man dead, and on federal land near his family's ranch in Nevada in 2014.

He's also scheduled to stand trial this week on three charges from a previous trespassing case at the Idaho Capitol. The arrest Saturday concerned a 10-month-old determined to be "suffering from severe malnourishment" and at risk of injury or death, the Meridian Police Department said in a news release. The baby's parents had refused to let officers check on its welfare after the family canceled an appointment. Bundy urged his followers to go to the hospital to support the family.

Bundy wrote on Twitter on Saturday that "last night my very good friend Diego's grandson was medically kidnapped because a medical practitioner called (child protective services) for a missed doctor appointment. If this happened to them, it could happen to you."

One other person was arrested on suspicion of trespassing at the hospital, and two people were arrested earlier Friday in a related incident on suspicion of resisting or obstructing police.

Bundy, of Emmett, was charged in the Oregon and Nevada standoffs. He was acquitted in Oregon and the Nevada charges were dismissed after a mistrial.

He is set to go on trial Monday for two charges of misdemeanor trespassing and one charge of resisting or obstructing officers after he was arrested twice in one day at the Idaho Capitol in April 2021.

At the time he was subject to a one-year ban from the Statehouse due to previous trespassing, when he refused to leave an auditorium at the Idaho Statehouse in August 2020 during a protest of the Legislature's special session and was rolled out of the building by police in a chair.

WEST LINN

Charge filed against fired cop involved in wrongful arrest

Associated Press

PORTLAND — A fired West Linn police sergeant has been criminally charged for his involvement in the 2017 wrongful arrest of a Black man, according to the Oregon Department of Justice.

Oregon Public Broadcasting reported this week that the state Justice Department charged Anthony Reeves with first-degree official misconduct, a misdemeanor, over the arrest of Michael Fesser.

The Clackamas County District Attorney's Office found Reeves colluded with former Chief Terry Timeus to arrest Fesser as a favor to Eric Benson, Fesser's then-boss.

Fesser had previously complained about a hostile workplace, citing incidents of racism directed at him.

"It appears the (West Linn Police Department's) involvement in this investigation was driven by Chief Timeus' personal friendship with Mr. Benson," the Clackamas County district attorney's investigation said.

The DA's investigation found Reeves illegally surveilled Fesser, exchanged and deleted racist texts with Fesser's boss, and withheld evidence.

In 2020, the city of West Linn agreed to pay Fesser $600,000 to settle a lawsuit. Benson and his company, A&B Towing, paid Fesser $415,000 to settle a discrimination and retaliation lawsuit. The city of West Linn fired Reeves in 2020 after the district attorney said he would not call him as a witness in any case he investigated.

Reeves' lawyer David Lesh didn't respond to messages seeking comment from The Oregonian. No court date has been set for his appearance on the charge, the newspaper reported.
