Right at home: South Korean Im grabs early Masters lead

BY PAUL NEWBERRY
Associated Press

AUGUSTA, Ga. — With all eyes on Tiger Woods, Sungjae Im quietly turned in the round of the day at Augusta National.

Not a surprise, really.

The 24-year-old South Korean feels right at home.

A runner-up 17 months ago in his Masters debut, Im posted a 5-under 67 Thursday to grab the lead all to himself.

Still a long way to go, but there's obviously something about this course that suits Im's game.

"I feel comfortable when I come to Augusta," he said through his translator. "I feel I can play well here every time."

It must run in the family.

During the par 3 contest on Wednesday, Jitae Im served as his son's caddie. At the final hole, Sungjae let his dad take the tee shot.

Jitae delivered a wild swing, almost like he was trying to slug a baseball, but the ball soared over the water and settled about 5 feet from the flag.

"I didn't expect much," Sungjae said. "But once he hit the shot, it was the most beautiful shot I've seen. It was like a professional shot."

Im hit a lot of beautiful shots when it really counted.

He got off to a blazing start, making birdies at the first three holes. Another birdie at No. 7 sent him to the back side at 4 under.

Im stumbled a bit after the turn, making back-to-back bogeys at 10 and 11, but then he delivered his best shot of the day at the par-5 No. 13. From 222 yards, he stuck it 12 feet from the flag and rolled in the putt for eagle.

Another birdie at the 15th and a brilliant save from the bunker at the final hole — he nearly holed out with his sand wedge and tapped it for par — gave him a one-stroke lead over Cameron Smith, with Dustin Johnson part of the group two shots back at 69.

If that sounds familiar, it should.

In 2020, Johnson won his first green jacket with a dominating performance, while Smith and Im were five shots back in the runner-up slot at the first November Masters.

"There is a coincidence there," Im said. "It's pretty cool to see that we're all up there together."

Im missed the cut at the 2021 Masters with rounds of 77 and 80, and arrived at this year's tournament struggling a bit with his game — especially off the tee.

"I felt like my driving game was not as up to par as what it used to be, so I worked on my driving," Im said. "The key to a successful round was having good tee shots, so that worked well today."

Indeed, he was one of the day's most accurate drivers, hitting 12 of 14 fairways. Only five players ranked above him.

Im said it's important "to put the shot into spots where I have a chance to attack the green."

A year ago, Hideki Matsuyama became the first golfer from Japan to win the Masters.

Im doesn't want to get ahead of himself, but he knows that no South Korean golfer has ever won at Augusta.

In fact, Y.E. Yang remains the only male golfer from Im's country to capture a major title, memorably rallying to beat Woods at the 2009 PGA Championship.

Woods, who is playing for the first time since a February 2021 wreck left him with serious leg injuries, was four shots behind Im after shooting 71.

Woods' comeback is what most patrons will remember from Day 1 of the Masters.

Maybe by Sunday evening, they'll be focused on Im.

"We're only one day in," he said. "I've got three more days to play. I just want to keep this momentum going and try to finish well this week."

Tiger

The swing looked great, and the limp wasn't bad. If it wasn't exactly the Woods of old, it was a pretty good approximation.

That was good enough for the fans. And, judging from the look on Woods' face afterward, it was more than good enough for him.

"It's not easy," Woods said. "People have no idea how hard it's been."

If they wanted an idea, they might have looked at pictures of his leg after the accident, which Woods said he has shown to friends. If they wanted an idea, he's happy to talk about the endless hours of rehabilitation and practice that made his storybook comeback possible.

The greatest player of his time still believes he can win. Even better, he believes he can do it this week, on a bad leg at the age of 46.

And after all he's been through, who's going to tell him he can't?

"I can swing a golf club," Woods said. "The walking's not easy, and it's difficult. As I said with all the hard work, my leg, it's going to be difficult for the rest of my life. That's just the way it is, but I'm able to do it."

A return to competitive play after he crashed his SUV in California always seemed improbable for Woods, who many figured would be happy just to walk again and play golf with his young son. That he could do it on a hilly Augusta National course that is a hard walk for even the younger players seemed nearly impossible.

Woods nearly aced the par-3 sixth hole, and the roar was deafening around the course when he made a 30-footer to birdie the 16th.

His opening round was a victory lap all by itself, and when he finished by making an 8-footer for par on the final hole the crowd rose as one to give him a standing ovation.

Afterward, he was sore and he was tired. But the adrenaline was still flowing, and he sounded like he couldn't wait for more.

"I'm going to be sore, yes. That's just the way it is," he said. "But the training cycles that we've had to make sure that I have the stamina to keep going — and this is only one round. We've got three more to go. There's a long way to go and a lot of shots to be played."

Just where Woods finishes after all those shots are played probably won't be remembered as much as the fact he managed to play at all. No one really expects him to win a sixth green jacket this week, though it would seem foolish to continue to sell him short.

Even his fellow pros can't take their eyes off him.

"I actually found myself a couple of times today, because we were waiting so much, just watching. I almost felt like a patron out there at some points today," said Cameron Smith, who played in the group ahead of Woods. "You can't not watch him; he's unreal."

At times it seemed like everyone at Augusta National was watching, though for most it was just a glimpse of a pink shirt through the fans crowding the fairways and greens. Everywhere around the golf course fans were asking each other what Woods was doing and every time their was a big roar they wondered if it was for him.

Woods felt the love and tried to give them something back.

"I mean, the place was electric," he said. "I hadn't played like this since '19 when I won because in '20 we had COVID and we had no one here, and I didn't play last year. So to have the patrons fully out and to have that type of energy out there was awesome to feel."

Awesome for Woods, and awesome for anyone watching. Thursday was all about Woods, and he wasn't about to disappoint himself or his millions of fans.

Yes, it was for only one day. But what a day it was.
