Police also found 5.56 Winchester ammunition and a box of 12-gauge shotgun ammunition in the truck.

Miller's mother told police that her son kept his guns underneath his bed, according to the affidavit.

That night, multiple people called 911 to report posts Miller made on "several" social media platforms, according to the affidavit. The posts indicated Miller had Molotov cocktails, and that by the time people had read them, he would be dead, according to the affidavit. Police say Miller killed Safeway employee Donald Surret, 66, and a customer, Glenn Bennett, 84.

Bennett was shot and killed near the front of the store, police have said. Surret was shot and killed after attacking Miller with a knife in the produce section, an act that probably saved lives, police have said.

Police rushed into the Safeway as gunfire was still going off. They found the gunman dead from a self-inflicted gunshot. They also found a pump-action shotgun lying nearby as well as an AR-15-style rifle.

The affidavit, which was written by Bend Police Detective Eli Allen and approved by Deschutes County Circuit Judge Bethany Flint, allowed officers to seize Miller cellphone, computer and other electronic devices. It also allowed them to obtain DNA and ballistics evidence and any weapons found inside the apartment and the truck.

Trump lawyers: top-secret documents a 'storage dispute'

Former president, Justice Department submit names for special master

BY ERIC TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Lawyers for former President Donald Trump in a 21-page filing Monday dismissed the former president's retention of top-secret documents at Mar-a-Lago as a "storage dispute" and urged U.S. District Judge Aileen Cannon to keep in place a directive that temporarily halted key aspects of the Justice Department's criminal probe.

The Trump team referred to the documents that were seized as "purported 'classified records,'" saying the Justice Department had not proven that the materials taken by the FBI during its Aug. 8 search were classified or remain so now.

The filing underscores the significant factual and legal disagreements between lawyers for Trump and the U.S. government as the Justice Department looks to move forward with its criminal investigation into the retention of national defense information at Mar-a-Lago. Department lawyers in their own filings have rejected the idea that the documents, many of them classified at the top-secret level, belonged to Trump or that Mar-a-Lago was a permissible place to store them.

"This investigation of the 45th President of the United States is both unprecedented and misguided," Trump's lawyers wrote. "In what at its core is a document storage dispute that has spiraled out of control, the Government wrongfully seeks to criminalize the possession by the 45th President of his own Presidential and personal records."

The investigation hit a roadblock last week when Cannon granted the Trump team's request for a special master and prohibited the department, for now, from examining the documents for investigative purposes.

The Justice Department has asked the judge to lift that hold and said it would contest her ruling to a federal appeals court. The department said its investigation risked being harmed beyond repair if that order remained in place, noting that confusion about its scope had already led the intelligence community to pause a
