

Revolution in Surgery.

Dr. Reclus, a famous French surgeon, has discovered a new and simple mode of treatment which revolutionizes the methods of treating injured limbs.

Whatever the extent of gravity of the lesions, Dr. Reclus never, under any circumstances, amputates the limb, but merely waps it in antiseptic substances by a veritable embalming process, leaving nature to separate the dead from this living tissues.

This method of treatment possesses the double advantage of being much less fatal than surgical excision and of preserving for the use of the patient, if not the entire limb, at any rate a much larger part than would be left after amputation.

After the skin has been shaved and cleansed from all fatty substances by ether, etc., in the usual way a jet of hot water 60 to 62 degrees C. (140 to 144 degrees F.) but not higher, is made to irrigate all the injured surfaces and to penetrate into all the hollows and under all the detached parts of the wound without exception.

This is the only way of removing all clots and washing away all foreign bodies, together with the micro-organisms they may contain.

The advantages of hot water at this high temperature, are threefold: First, hot water at this temperature is antiseptic, heat greatly increasing the potency antiseptic substances; second, it is hemostatic—that is, stanches the flow of blood; third, it helps to compensate for the loss of heat resulting from the bleeding, and especially from the traumatic shock.

After the "embalming" process and the dead tissue has been separated from the living, the surgeon has nothing to do except to divide the bone at a suitable spot. According to Reclus, the results attained are remarkable.—New York Journal.

An Honest Man's Reward.

"Madam," he said, "I am a book agent. I have here—"

"Come into the parlor and sit down," she said. "When I see a book agent who isn't afraid to let me know his business right at the start I feel safe in trusting him. By the way, what do you think of this money question? Now, I believe than the free coinage of silver at the ratio of—"

But he was gone, and as he turned the corner she could plainly hear the snapping of his coattails in the breeze.—Cleveland Leader.

The Cuban War.

Havana, Sept. 9.—Within the last fortnight 12 insurgent incendiaries have been shot, and tomorrow Luis Patrol, another incendiary will meet the same fate. At St. Albans, on September 31, the insurgent Mendez was executed, and at Porto Principe, Angel Nunez Torre and Alfredo Aldan, also insurgents, were put to death in the same way.

Alfonzo Tolon, a son of Samuel T. Tolon, the American merchant at Cardenas, province of Matanzas, who was arrested last week at this port on board the Ward line steamer Seneca, is also a prisoner. Young Tolon was captured on board a coasting vessel, and is now in jail at Cardenas.

The insurgents have destroyed 3000 metres of the railroad between the River Pedrenalis and the town of Candelaria, province of Pinar Del Rio, blowing up a number of culverts with dynamite.

Sad Case.

"I have been here for three days," said the stranger impressively. "Yes, suh," said the landlord of the Georgia village tavern.

"And I did have a notion of investing and settling down here, but if that confounded fellow in the house across the way can't be induced to stop playing 'If You Love Me, Tell Me So,' on the corner, I am going to some other town."

"Mister," said the landlord, "when I tell you who that pore fellow is, mebbe you won't blame him so much. That there is Tom Watson."—Indianapolis Journal.
