

The voters in Oregon who wish to support Wm. J. Bryan for president, must vote for the following fusion electors:

- N. L. Butler,
- W. H. Spaugb,
- E. Hofer,
- Harry Watkins.

The electors headed "national democrat" are the gold bug McKinley assistants, and should only be voted for by those who wish to assist McKinley by giving him half a vote.

The large increase in the number of speakers in Indiana, Illinois and Michigan, shows that Hanna knows these states are headed for the Bryan column.

McKinley would gladly exchange his chance for electoral votes in the South for a single vote in the electoral college, and he would be that one vote ahead if he could make the deal.

The pulpit and other calamity howlers will have a heap of explaining to do after Bryan is elected, in order to quiet fears their talk has aroused among those who accept them for guides.

Archbishop Ireland is right about this campaign being a rebellion, but it is rebellion against the injustice of the allied money powers of the world and not a rebellion against the government of the United States, as he declares it to be.

English politics sometimes grow very warm, but no English officeholder has ever been dismissed for working for the side of his choice. There is a difference over here, where the great civil service reform president is dismissing officeholders who dare to follow their party and their choice.

Mr. Bryan's campaign has never been exceeded for brilliancy and he is determined to make its closing, in the middle west, the most brilliant portion. There is every reason to believe that he will win, because he deserves to win.

A preacher may obtain political influence in his locality, but he will always find that it is gained at the expense of his spiritual influence.

If Lord Roseberry's retirement should result in Gladstone again becoming Prime Minister the old man will regret having talked so freely about smashing Turkey.

After Bryan is elected the McKinleyites who are not satisfied may find an outlet for their anger by becoming Cuban filibusters.

The "strict propriety" which prevents President Cleveland mingling actively in the campaign doesn't seem to extend to his Secretary of Treasury, and of Agriculture, although strong enough to force the resignations of minor officials or their dismissal, if they "mingle" on the silver side.

Men without work can be hired in any large city to carry a torch and march in a McKinley parades, but when it comes to voting a large percentage of these men will be found on the side of Bryan and free silver.

It would be interesting to know exactly how many of the men who have been furnished free tickets to Canton will vote for Bryan. It is known that a large number of them will.

The men who preach to the money kings are earning their salaries this year, even if they are saving no souls.

Whether the Czar of Russia has really become the arbiter of the peace of Europe, or is merely being "jollied" a little by his fellow-laborers in the ruling business, may be known a little later on, but at present is open to doubt from either point of view.

Thomas Garfield, a brother of the late President Garfield, has written a ringing letter declaring for the free coinage of silver.

Postal card votes may be fixed to give any desired result, but the voting on November 3rd will be different.

Ex Congressman Phil Thompson of Ky, says nothing but the endorsement of Grover Cleveland can now defeat Bryan.

Chauncey Depew has only to keep on repeating his comparison of a Chicago democratic parade with Coxey's army when it arrived at Washington, to keep on making votes—for Bryan.

McKinley isn't acting like a candidate who is even reasonably confident of being elected. On the contrary, he is acting and talking like a man who regards his chance as a desperate one, and who is very badly frightened.
