

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1900. JULIAN BYRD - - - - - MADISON.

The Greek nation, having demonstrated its inability to make war, now seems determined to demonstrate its inability to make peace. In the war with Turkey Greece was allowed to show what it could do. It was given a fair chance and was disgracefully whipped. Its defeat was so complete that if the great powers had not interfered Turkey would have been compelled to resume its ancient sovereignty. The powers have interfered; they have prevented the total destruction of Greece as a power; they have made the best terms the situation permitted. They have forced these terms on Turkey. The acceptance by Greece is a mere formality. It must accept whether it is willing or not. Yet the Greek Assembly, untaught by its sad experience, refuses to listen to these terms and acts as if the question were one over which it had some authority.—The World.

Ohio applicants for pension should lose no time in pushing their claims; other States will have to be given a chance after election.

Rochester, New York, is going to erect a statue of Fred Douglas. Why, or what for, is not plain to ordinary folks.

Tammany Hall did what most people do who try to please both gold and silver democrats—failed.

The railroad robbers of Indian Territory seem also to be getting more or less prosperity.

Some of the office seekers are waiting to find out whether Hawaii is to have "home rule" before taking sides on annexation.

How needless the tariff on steel rails may be seen in such instances as the government of New South Wales, Australia, placing an order for 2,000 tons in the United States, because Americans underbid the English.

After destroying Secretary Sherman's original stamping program in Ohio, Boss Hanna has had the gall to ask Mr. Sherman to go to Cincinnati and deliver a Hanna speech. The old man has naturally enough refused, but he may be made to go after all; he has been driven to doing what he didn't wish to do ever since Hanna took charge of Mr. McKinley.

As the master now stands, Henry George's chances for election are as good as those of either of the other candidates for Mayor of greater New York if not a little better.

Well, suppose the new Spanish Cabinet falls in with the McKinley scheme for home rule in Cuba, and that the Cubans refuse it, will the administration add Spain to force the Cubans to submit?

The Assistant Secretary of Agriculture [Mr. Brigham] is putting in all his time in paying Ohio for Hanna, and the government pays his salary right along.

The Philadelphia North American will have to present some proof of its assertion that M. A. Hanna is a leader in the Senate. If he is, he has acquired leadership since Congress adjourned.

Gen. Tracy would probably like to know whether he is an actual or merely a trading candidate.

Ex-President Harrison must have failed in getting something to do. Mr. McKinley for, as he had with the suggestion of another man for the republican party.

Now that Dr. Eimer Gates, of Washington, has discovered a way to increase the magnifying power of a microscope to undreamed of proportions, the world may hope to know the political principals of Boss Hanna, if he can be persuaded to please himself in range of the discovery. Old time microscopes were utterly inadequate for such work.

It is estimated that the yellow fever will cost the South $28,000,000 this year, two-thirds of which falls on the city of New Orleans. Yet, there are people who object to spending a small fraction of that sum each year to keep yellow fever and other diseases out of the country, by maintaining strict quarantine regulations.

Wooden will never cease. A New York preacher in the midst of the municipal campaign, actually devoted enough attention to the Bible to preach a sermon denouncing the truth of the statement that the sun stood still for Joshua.

The negro postmaster at Hogansville, Ga., has probably got what he was after all the time—an office at Washington that pays more than the postmaster'ship. Other negro postmasters are doubtless willing to get themselves shot on the same terms.

When Senator Chandler hints that planks in the republican platform were inserted for a cash consideration he is dealing with matters he is presumably familiar with.

Whitelaw Reid is in danger of having no where to go, but out, speaking politically.

THE GLOVE CONTEST.

Tim Tompkins knocked out in the Second Round.

Long before the first set for the twenty-round glove contest, Tuesday evening, between Patsy Daly of San Francisco, Cal., and Tim Tompkins of the Island, the Loeber Hall was crowded with admirers of the principals. The "Athletic Club" boys did all that was possible to make the crowd comfortable and but for the falling of the tier of seats in the west end of the building, fortunately in which no one was hurt, their efforts were a complete success.

The Burns Band being ever ready to do what it can for the benefit of the public, rendered some of their choice selections, to fill in the interval.

Tim Tompkins was the first to enter the ring followed by his second, Linola Walton and one of the Island Ranch boys, and was greeted by hearty cheers from his admirers. Patsy Daly soon made his appearance and entered the ring with his seconds Ed. Thomas, Ches Smith and Chas. Lemmon, and was applauded lustily. Referee M. Fitzgerald introduced the contestants who advanced to the center of the ring and shook hands and retired to their respective corners.

The first round was spirited and hotly contested all the way through. It was plain that Tim Tompkins was out classed, but he made a game fight.

Round 1—Daly led with bludge on the face and landed lightly. Tim closed in on Daly who ducked and got away. Daly caught Tim in the face with his right and clinched. Both men broke away without getting hit. Daly swung with his left on the body. Tim made for the face with a terrible right-hander but fell short and did no damage. Tim got in a good blow on the neck. Daly landed on the face staggering Tim and got first blood. Tim landed lightly on the neck and both men clinched. Daly got in two blows on the head and face in quick succession and Tim landed a hard blow just above the heart and staggered Daly who immediately regained his feet and gave Tim a left jab on the body while Tim got in one on Daly's ribs.

Round 2—Both men searched for an opening for a few seconds and clinched but broke away nicely. Tim got in two body blows. Daly landed lightly on the neck. Daly got in with a left swing on the body. After sparring a few seconds Daly feinted with his left and got in a terrible right lencer on Tim's jaw which floored him and he was counted out.

Tim soon rallied and was assisted to his corner where he was taken care of by his seconds and friends. In a few minutes after the fight he was smiling and chatting with his friends in his old time good natured style and acknowledged his defeat like a man. He was fairly out classed by Daly, who is a professional fighter and a scientific, game little man, with quite a string of victories to his credit.

The Athletic Club boys are praised by all for the able management of the affair, this being their first of the kind. There was a spirit of fairness throughout the whole evening that caused every one, principals as well as spectators, to be perfectly satisfied.
