Jeffries and Sharkey.

If Jeffries beats Sharkey in the contest for the championship of the world the sporting authorities will say next day: "There never was any doubt of the result in the minds of competent judges of the fist game who have seen the work of the champion. His fine form, his quick work and coolness in the ring would overcome the undoubted endurance and hard hitting of his stocky opponent. Jeffries hits as hard, or even harder, his weight is superior and he is the cooler fighter. Add this to his far ability as a boxer, and there was no reason why Sharkey should win. Jeffries is undoubtedly the best pugilist the world has ever seen."

If Sharkey beats Jeffries the comment will be: "When Jeffries put out Fitzsimmons, the unexpected happened. Jeffries had been trained to coach and fight Fitz, and his superior weight and youth turned the balance against the veteran fighter. In this contest he encountered a man as young and strong and hard hitting as himself, who had, meanwhile, adopted fighting tactics which the trainers of Jeffries could not know and coach their man to meet. Sharkey is the most impetuous fighter that ever stepped into the ring, but he has learned to keep cool, and thus succeeded in offsetting the greater weight and reach of Jeffries. Thus the pugilists faced each other, on even terms. Sharkey's unexampled endurance of punishment turned the greatest pugilist that ever lived."—Kansas City Star.

Revised Versions.

"Be sure your sins will find you out." You had better not make too certain of this, for should they call while you are at home, it will probably find you in, owing to the stupidity of modern domestics.

"Be wise in time." This means do not be wise out of time. For instance, do not bore your friends by being profound at a smoking concert.

"Where there's a will." This implies, of course, that there is a way of getting at the testator.

"The nearer the bone the sweeter the meat"—and less of it.

"What cannot be eschewed had better be embraced." Shakespeare did not write this with any special reference to landladies, but even with them it holds good—sometimes.

"Kind hearts are more than coronets," but both are the better for a big banking balance.

"A soft voice is an excellent in a woman," and so, too, are soft knuckles.

"Little things please little minds," and occasionally big ones also.

His Bath not a Success.

It seems her husband had been out very late celebrating, and as he came home in the rose flush of the morning, he thought it would be a capital idea to take a bath before getting into bed. First of all and most important it would contradict any wrong impression as to his condition, as his wife sometimes had wrong impressions when he had been out late at night. Women are suspicious.

So he went boldly to the bathroom and was soon splashing around as gaily as a canary. In fact, he created such an unusual commotion that his wife woke up and went to see what was the matter.

Suddenly he saw her gazing through the door with a look so cold and contemptuous that it struck a chill to his very heart. But he made a dive for the soap and went on industriously with his ablutions.

"What are you doing there Peter?" she asked him.

He made the effort of his life to appear debonair and perfectly sober.

"Can't you see what I am doing my dear?" he answered with another prodigious splash. "I am taking a bath."

"Don't you think it would be a good idea for you to take off your underclothes?" she asked him, with a frozen reflection, as she passed out of sight.

A boy was compelled by his teacher to write an essay "on the mouth," and this is what he wrote: The mouth is the front door to the face; it's the aperture of the cold storage of your anatomy. Some mouths look like peaches and cream some look like a hole in a brick wall to admit a door or window. The mouth is a crimson isle to your liver—it is patriotism's fountain and a tool chest for pie. Without the mouth the politician would be a wanderer on the face of the earth and go down to an unhonored grave. It is the greener friend, the orator's pride and the dentist's hope. It puts some men on the rostrum and some in jail. It is a temptatious lunch counter when attached to a maiden, and tobacco's friend when attached to a man. It is the home of the unruly member—the tongue. Without it married life would be a summer dream and a dude would lose half of his attractions—Ex.

Five thousand white farm hands are wanted by the Hawaiian sugar planters to meet the conditions imposed by the Hawaiian Government upon the grant of a privilege to import more contract laborers from Japan, which conditions are that an equal number of Caucasians shall be induced to immigrate to the islands for every 5000 Asiatics hereafter to be admitted.

Notice—Have you a farm for sale or for rent, or do you know of any person holding farming lands that they wish to dispose of? If so, please write to any O. R. & N. agent and he will send you a circular that will interest you.
