HARNEY COUNTY'S IRRIGATION PROJECT.

A special correspondent to the Oregonian of recent date says that the interest of Oregon at the irrigation congress at Ogden was well looked after by ex-Representative Malcolm A. Moody and other members of the delegation. A special committee from the delegation, composed of Hon. Sam White, Professor F. G. Young, Will R. King, J. M. Church, C. W. Mallett and D. C. Brownell, was accorded an audience with Professor Newell and Mr. Whistler, the engineer in charge of the work in Oregon. Mr. Newell assured the committee that, through the efforts of Mr. Moody, Oregon was as far, if not further, advanced toward the final establishment of Government-aided irrigation than any of the other arid land states.

"Mr. Whistler has made a very complete investigation of a proposed irrigation reservoir near Burns, Harney county," says the correspondent, "which will store and utilize the water of Silvie's river. A body of land estimated to contain from 150,000 to 200,000 acres can be brought under cultivation, if the reservoir is built. All of the land under this proposed reservoir is government land, and has been withdrawn from entry pending a final examination. Some question as to the advisability of establishing a reservoir at a point so remote from railroad transportation was raised, and the engineers were asked if they, in selecting sites for irrigation systems, took the matter of nearness to market and transportation into consideration. Replying for this particular project, Mr. Whistler said that he had considered the market and transportation problem very carefully, and that it was easily solved. He explained that the principal product of the soil down in Harney county, under irrigation, would be hay, and the main product of hay would be cattle, and they could walk to market. Irrigation, hay and cattle will be a very happy and profitable combination."

Although Harney county was not represented at the irrigation congress, we were evidently recognized from the above and ably defended by Mr. Whistler. All portions of the state concede the advantages of the Silvie's valley irrigation scheme, yet delegates from other section pour cold water on it every opportunity they get. Had we been represented as The Times-Herald suggested, our irrigation project would have been brought more prominently before the meeting and perhaps advanced to a certainty. We have at least lost an opportunity to bring our section and its advantages more prominently before the public.

President Myers of the Lewis and Clark commission, in an interview in the Portland Journal, after his trip through this section, says:

"Those folks want a railroad, they assert that they will not be able to develop their country until they have been given rail transportation for their grains. They appear to prefer that the survey of the old Oregon & Pacific, now the Corvallis & Eastern, be extended.

"Portland must get rail communication with that region, else San Francisco will capture all the trade of that part of Oregon. Now they have to pull over the Blue mountains, 5,000 feet high. Last year 2,100 cars of 30,000 pounds each were freighted by team to Prineville.

"I would urge Portland to get into that region with a railroad soon as possible, and prevent the capture of the trade by California merchants.

The products of the interior will be well represented at the St. Louis fair and at the Lewis and Clark exposition. There will be apples, peaches, plums and cherries, besides other things. The fruit interests are for the reason that in Burns it is grown at an altitude of 3,200 feet above the sea, yet I saw a cherry tree in the yard of Prof Finn of that place that has grown 5 feet to inches this year. He has strawberries yielding at this time. There will be grains fruits and vegetables.

"Harney in my opinion is the most wonderful valley undeveloped in the entire West. One stands upon a hill near Burns and sees for miles and miles a continuous succession of haystacks reaching far down towards the Narrows. Vast quantities of livestock are sustained on this hay.

"Cattle raisers there are discouraged at the low prices that prevail. They also fear a hard winter, with much livestock dying from scarcity of food. They believe relief will be afforded in part by the ingress of a railroad, and they look toward Portland for that relief. Portland is the natural center for them, and yet the southern half of the district trades mostly with California, because of easier access to those markets. A railroad is the one crying need. Although, without it they are prosperous, the counties are out of debt, have surpluses on hand, and there are good wagon roads throughout the whole interior, as good as could be looked for."

W. P. Keady of Portland states it is his opinion, based on scientific data, that the juniper trees of Oregon are the oldest living objects upon the earth. Speaking of the customary means employed to tell the age of a tree, Mr. Keady said: "If the concentric rings correctly indicate the successive annual growth of trees, and I believe this to be an established fact, then the juniper is the oldest living thing on the earth. Its annual rings are almost as compact as the leaves of a book; the assistance of a magnifying glass is needed to count them correctly. This tree must be at least 10,000 years old, judging by the concentric rings of lesser trees of the same variety. The greatest age accorded the gigantic redwood of California is 40 centuries old. In a growth of these the juniper would be a veritable patriarch surrounded by lusty youth.—Klamath Falls Express.

The Oregonian's Washington correspondent interviewed H. D. Langille, forest inspector in the Bureau of Forestry, who had just returned from examining lands that had been withdrawn in Oregon. Mr. Langille claims that the people of this state are changing in sentiment in favor of forest reserves. The correspondent says that Langille is known to favor the creation of the Blue Mountain reserve, substantially along the lines of the withdrawal, after excluding a number of tracts evidently entered for speculative purposes. He is also believed to favor a carefully established reserve in the Rogue River district, and no doubt at all other places in Eastern Oregon where withdrawals have been made. However, he declined to discuss his forthcoming reports as to details or conclusions.

THE OREGON INFORMATION BUREAU.

Want an Exhibit of The Resources of Harney County.

The Oregon Information Bureau, which has been organized by some of the leading men of Portland, having for its object the settlement and development of Oregon, and which is maintained at their expense, occupies quarters at the union depot in that city where products of the various counties are exhibited and information given of various sections.

Up to this time Harney county has not been represented in this bureau. The bureau desires to do what it can for this isolated section but merely talking of our advantages and resources does not have the effect it would had they something to show. County Clerk Rieder has received a letter asking that a display be sent, together with any information obtainable. The Times-Herald sees no reason why Harney county should not have a display and receive its share of attention which this bureau is more than anxious to bestow. We should certainly appreciate the efforts of these Portland men and help in every way possible.

We most earnestly request our people to take advantage of this. Anything in the line of products would be cheerfully received either by Mr. Rieder or at this office and forwarded to the bureau. There is no time to be lost. Bring grain, vegetables, grasses, etc. Following is the letter received by Mr. Rieder: Portland, Oregon, Sept. 22. Mr. F. S. Rieder, Burns, Oregon. Dear Sir:—Noting by an article in the Oregonian of this date, that the Harney County Fair is now being held, we write to see if it is possible to obtain for use in this Bureau, an exhibit of the resources of your county. While your county may be preparing exhibits for the St. Louis Fair of 1904, and Lewis and Clark Centennial of 1905, it is our belief that an exhibit at this time will do more for your county and state at large, at the present time in our Bureau, than in collecting it and having it stored away for future use on these two occasions. The people are coming into the state now.

Our register shows from 35 to 80 people or more, passing each day through this one bureau alone, or are seeking information in regard to the resources of the various counties of the state, and we see no reason why you should not be represented here as well as our counties nearby. The writer knows well what a resourceful county you have and the opportunities for agricultural and mercantile pursuits, but it is pretty hard to convince people of these facts without having something to show.

We believe it is the best investment that you people can make to have an exhibit now in this Bureau. Will you kindly take the matter up with your fair commissioners and see what can be done along this line.

We presume any of your freighters will haul the stuff out to the railroad and the railroad will carry it free to the Union Depot here. Please let us know as early as possible what can be done and oblige. Yours truly, Oregon Information Bureau. Geo. G. Birrell.

WINTER APPLES. Of all the choice varieties are now ripe and ready to be picked; enough to supply Harney, Malheur and Grant counties.

Come one and all and lay in your fruit for the winter before it is too late. Bring your packing material and camping outfit and be happy—but don't forget the CASH. Price per bushel, for good winter apples in the orchard, 50 cts. D. B. RINEHART, Propt.
