An editor has discovered that there is a wide difference between the school books of the present and those of long ago. He says that when he first went to school, he read the lesson something like this: "See the cow. Is not the cow nice? Can the cow run? Yes, the cow can run. Can the cow run as fast as the horse?" But the latest up-to-date style of reading it by the average kid is about as follows: "Get onto the cow. Ain't she a brute? Sure she is a corker. Can the cow get a move on herself? Can she hum it like a boss? No she ain't in it with de hoss."
