In a report to the department of commerce and labor, Consul General Richard Guenther at Frankfurt-on-the-Main, in Germany, tells of a German process for the preservation of eggs. He says:

"German papers state that it is possible to keep eggs fresh for any length of time by simply immersing them in a 10 per cent solution of sodium, known as liquid glass. This produces the formation of a coating which renders the eggs perfectly air tight. The eggs so treated retain their fresh taste for many months. The best proof of the efficacy of this treatment has been furnished by the fact that such eggs, after having been kept a whole year, were hatched and the chickens were strong and healthy.

"The preserving solution is best prepared by dissolving one pound of liquid glass in four quarts of cold water. The eggs are then immersed in this solution for a short time. If one of these preserved eggs is to be boiled, the shell must first be perforated, in order to prevent cracking."
