JULIAN BYRD - - - - - Manager

The Times-Herald has never been classed with the "knocker" and under the present management never will be. It believes in giving every enterprise within this county a "boost" and to picture its prospects brighter. All that we anticipate and strive for may not be realized, but we will have the satisfaction of knowing we did our best.

One of Harney county's respected pioneers is asking for the nomination of assessor from the democrats. Byron Terrill has been a resident of this county since 1881 and has never before asked for a political office. He is well known to the people as an honorable citizen and has every qualification for the position. Byron's friends hope to see him nominated believing he would make a good race. His announcement appears elsewhere in this issue and the delegates to the county convention are asked to consider it while looking for suitable timber to fill our offices.

In the early '80's very few ranches or improved farms could be found in Harney valley and one could ride all over it without regard to road or be obstructed by a fence. Then a little house was built on land simply to comply with the homestead law and with no idea of comfort or of making it an abiding place. Today every ranch is being improved, good dwellings, barns and other ranch buildings are erected and there is an air of permanency. The present population is here to stay and make homes. All modern farming implements are used. The ranchers are all in good circumstances and looking to the future.

Since the colonist travel began to arrive at Portland, the Oregon Information Bureau, in the Union Depot, has been the source of knowledge about the state for a large number of people every day. From the arrival of the early morning trains travelers whose attention is attracted by the exhibits in the balcony and the welcoming invitation of the sign at the entrance, wend their way to the collection of products and advertising material. The acting secretary is constantly in attendance to answer such questions as may be asked and give facts and figures as to different localities that the visitor has not had a chance to obtain from the publications at his disposal, says the Telegram. We should have taken advantage of our opportunity to place an exhibit with the information bureau last fall. We cannot expect to get new people and our big, rich valley settled up unless we give these homeseekers a chance to know what we have.

It is not probable that we would get an undesirable class of people while we are isolated and where it is hard to get in. We have just such a climate and opportunities as some of these people are looking for. They want to expand and would prefer a new section to the crowded parts along the railroads where they must be confined strictly to their own patch of land with no room to spread out and where only a certain line of agriculture or business can be profitably conducted.

If they are looking for a place to run stock, raise chickens, pigs, etc., this is far in advance of the crowded sections of Western Oregon or on the railroad.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

Judge Levens is having some new land broken up at his home ranch and will seed a much larger acreage this season than usual.

E. R. Potter, and P. S. Wert of Kansas, arrived here yesterday with their families and expect to locate permanently. These gentlemen are farmers and expect to take up land and follow it. Mr. Potter is a brother-in-law of H. C. and Joel Smith of this city and Mr. Wert is Mr. Potter's son-in-law.

Good farming according to all statistics and from scientific reasoning always pays. Good farming can not be carried on without the proper management and cultivation of the soil which takes good and sufficient tools to do the work. Why not stop your slip shod farming like some of your neighbors have done and buy some good farming tools and up to date ones too. Digin and show the community in which you live that you too can farm and farm with pleasure and to get the mail through the mud. All friends wish them a safe trip to Portland and also hope Mr. Drinkwater may gain his eyesight again. We are informed Clarence goes to Boise.

Beautiful day the first of the kind this month. Beautiful over head but the mud is deep.
