Knowledge is Power. An illustration of the truth of this proverb is found in Mr. J. G. Bertram's book, "The Harvest of the Sea." It seems that a monopoly of the extensive fisheries of Scotland and England once came into the hands of a man who kept his agents at the principal stations and required them to furnish him all facts that came to their knowledge.

At one of his stations in the far north the fishing had been unsuccessful for the greater part of the season, and there was no prospect of improvement when he looked into the matter. Upon examining his agent's letters from that place for some years back he found by a comparison of dates that at a certain place herrings were likely to be found. He accordingly instructed his agent to send his boats to that spot.

The fishermen laughed at the idea of a man sitting some hundreds of miles away and telling them where to get fish, but as his orders were positive they had to obey, and the consequence was that they returned next morning loaded with herrings.

The English Are Unmilitary.

Partly from historical and partly from racial causes the English are essentially unmilitary. They resent the control of soldiers. They distrust military ideas. No government that ever existed in this country was more unpopular than that of Oliver Cromwell and his major generals. His unpopularity left an indelible mark on English institutions. For many years it made it impossible to have a standing army. Even when the course of events made it necessary to concede that much to the military necessities of the time it still remained a maxim for centuries with all politicians that as little power as possible should be granted to the soldier.

We do not think it necessary to defend this attitude of mind. Like most popular feelings, it is largely unjust, but also, like many popular feelings, it is based to some extent on a true conception. Politically, using the word in its largest sense, the domination of the military idea in a state is calamitous. It leads, we believe, to destroy individual liberty and is a serious menace to individual liberty. - English Monthly Review.

The Third Handle. The best account of the origin of the loving cup comes from the late Lord Lyons, British ambassador at Paris. Henry IV of France while hunting became separated from his companions and, feeling thirsty, called at a wayside inn for a cup of wine. The serving maid on hearing it to him as he sat on a bench, mistaking him for a very careful of the king's cup, presented it to him by holding it herself by each of its handles. At once the happy idea struck the king of a cup with three handles, which was promptly acted upon, as his majesty quaintly said, "Surely, out of three handles I shall be able to get one!" Hence the loving cup.

Knots on Trees. In the bark of our forest trees are contained a multitude of latent buds, which are developed and grow under certain favorable conditions. Some trees possess this property in a remarkable degree, and often, when the other parts are killed down by frost, the property of pushing out these latent buds into growth preserves the life of the plant. These buds, having once begun to grow, adhere to the woody layer at their base and push out their points through the bark toward the light.

The buds then unfold and develop leaves, which elaborate the sap carried up the small shoot. Once elaborated it descends by the bark, when it reaches the base or lower bark. Here it is arrested, so to speak, and deposited between the outside and inner layer of bark, as can be learned on examining specimens on the trees in the woods almost anywhere.

Man's Taxes. In the matter of taxation the Isle of Man is unique. There is no income tax, no succession duties chargeable against the estates of deceased persons, no highway or turnpike tolls. Roads are maintained by the revenue from two sources—a small tax upon every wheel and shoe and a levy upon every male inhabitant, who must give a day's work on the road or its equivalent in cash. There are no stamp duties on receipts, checks, promissory notes, etc.; in fact, stamps are used only for postage. - London Standard.

Her Objection. "You are not singing that beautiful song, 'I Want to Be an Angel,' with the rest of us," said the teacher. "The little one shook her head. "What's the use of telling a story about it?" she demanded. "I'm having enough trouble learning to play the piano without bothering with a harp." - Chicago Post.

The tickets are now made up and the most interesting Presidential campaign the United States has ever known since 1860 has begun. And it is the most important, too.

Which will it be, Parker and Davis or Roosevelt and Fairbanks? Nobody knows yet, but The Thrice-a-Week World will tell you promptly, fully and truthfully every movement of a hot and thrilling campaign. The real newspaper now prints facts rather than hopes, and it has always been the effort of The Thrice-a-Week World to tell the thing that has happened exactly as it happened. Thus you can judge for yourself and form your opinion.

There is also a great war going on in the East, where The World has a brilliant staff of correspondents in the field, and their reports are found regularly in the columns of The Thrice-a-Week World.

The regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year, and this pays for 150 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and The Times-Herald together one year for $2.50.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $3.

READ THE MARKET NEWS

The Oregon Daily Journal.

Nothing is omitted that concerns the interest of buyers and sellers in the live stock, grain, provisions, produce and financial markets—the quotations are comprehensive, and are in every way reliable.

The Journal in addition carries every day a full and truthful report of the world's news and presents many special features of deep interest to the average reader. The Journal's woman's page, the illustrated sportland news page, Journal stories and comic pages and other good things make it a very popular family newspaper, clean and bright from A to Z and year's end to year's end.

Daily, one year by mail, $4; six months, $2.25; three months, $1.25.

Semi-weekly, 104 issues, one year, $1.50.

Weekly, $1. The issues of the Semi-Weekly and eekly Journal also contain the market news and all of the features of the Daily Journal.

The Times-Herald clubs with the Journal at the following rates for both papers:

Daily, $4.00; Semi-Weekly, $2.50; Weekly, $2.25.
