It is an unfortunate fact, as well as showing the entire absence of any sense of justice that a great many people seem to regard their local stores as though they were established merely for accommodation.

When these people have cash to spend it goes to the mail order house. But when times are dull, when they are out of work or during the season when the farmers are not turning their produce to cash, what do they do? Do they write to the mail order house and ask for a little time, for a favor? If they do they fail to get it. These concerns must have cash. Must have it in advance. Must have it before you see the goods. People send their money and then wait until the mail order house gets good and ready to fill the order.

No. When people want credit or favors of any kind, they go to their home merchant very obliging order what they want and tell him to put it on the books expecting him to wait from one to six months for his money. They seem to lose sight entirely of the fact that the merchant is obliged to pay for the goods he buys and that it takes money to conduct his business, rent, clerk hire, light, taxes and insurance. But there is an even worse phase of the question. These very people who are carried and favored by the merchant, will, when they do get some cash, send it to the mail order house instead of paying their obligations or giving the home merchant any consideration whatever.

This is a matter which has in most cases not been given very thoughtful consideration by many of our readers, but that when they realize the unfairness of the course they have pursued, they will act differently.

Give your home dealer fair play, deal with him on the same basis that the mail order house compel you to deal with them and you will profit greatly by it.—Ex.

Just before adjourning the legislature rushed through a bill in the interests of government irrigation work, the measure, it is understood, conferring power upon the Attorney-General to bring suits to condemn private water rights where the government desires to construct reclamation systems. The act creates the office of state Engineer, whose duty it is to make hydrographic surveys to ascertain the quantity of appropriated and unappropriated water in a stream where a controversy has arisen. The engineer will have none of the dictatorial powers in the control of the use of water, as was intended by the measure prepared by the Irrigation Commission. In turning down the bill proposed by the Commission the Legislature pursued the conservative policy that is in general characteristic of Oregonians, but time may prove that it was a case of overcaution.

It seems improbable that five men of recognized ability would study irrigation laws and conditions for several months and then draft a code that would be so objectionable as the opponents of the Cole bill considered the product of the Commission's labors. The measure was fought, however, by intelligent men, who were actuated by good purposes, and perhaps its defeat was proper. If the law passed will encourage the Government to undertake reclamation work in Oregon, there can be no particular harm in the elimination of the other features of the original bill.—Oregonian.

The Walla Walla Statesman arraigns Oregon in the following sarcastic manner: Old Mother Oregon could celebrate the centennial of Lewis and Clark's expedition with better grace and greater enthusiasm if three of her four congressmen and many other prominent citizens of the state were not under indictment for fraud, forgery or perjury. Lewis and Clark might have hesitated about blazing the way for a new common-wealth in the Pacific Northwest if they could have foreseen how corrupt its government would become. When it comes to corrupt politics, however, Washington, the daughter of Oregon, can not show that her skirts are as clean as they might be.

The tickets are now made up and the most interesting Presidential campaign the United States has ever known since 1860 has begun. And it is the most important, too.

Which will it be, Parker and Davis or Roosevelt and Fairbanks? Nobody knows yet, but The Thrice-a-Week World will tell you promptly, fully and truthfully every movement of a hot and thrilling campaign. The real newspaper now prints facts rather than hopes, and it has always been the effort of The Thrice-a-Week World to tell the thing that has happened exactly as it happened. Thus you can judge for yourself and form your opinion.

There is also a great war going on in the East, where The World has a brilliant staff of correspondents in the field, and their reports are found regularly in the columns of The Thrice-a-Week World.

The Thrice-a-Week World's regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and The Times-Herald together one year for $2.50.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $3.

READ THE MARKET NEWS

are two very finely prepared skeletons of big snakes in the National Museum in Washington, and making them ready for exhibition to the utmost pains were taken to preserve the cartilaginous extremities of the ribs, which with ordinary treatment are lost. Without these little pieces of cartilage the serpent's skeleton would hardly be said to be complete, and much as they are the feet upon which a snake walks on the earth, the little and in that manner achieves locomotion.

Some big serpents, however, like the boa and pythons, really have legs legs, though they are quite rudimentary. Pythons, you know, are accustomed, crawling their prey in their talons. They have no poison glands, but they can bite terribly on their prey with their teeth, which turn inward the head, so that a person once seized by a snake will have little chance of disengaging himself save by chopping off the head of the animal.
