Dr. Geary informs us that the little son and daughter of Mrs. Vanie Chancellor were quite seriously burned Thursday evening. It seems the little boy was playing with matches and accidentally set his clothing on fire. The girl burned her hands quite bad in putting the fire out. Neither were burned seriously, but the wounds are painful.

Messrs McKinney and Wallace arrived home from the Alvord last Sunday. They are very modest about their run-away and feel they were fortunate in getting off so lucky, although the rig "wasn't worth six bits" after they found the pieces, according to Mr. Wallace. Fortunately Road Master Hoover was in the immediate vicinity and loaned them his hack. This is the fourth run-away for Mr Wallace since leaving the railroad and it looks as though he had become used to them. They secured a fine specimen of elk besides bringing home a big buck deer, a pair of prairie chickens and a few other specimens. Mrs. Gilcrest also sent over a box of fine apples grown on the Alvord ranch to be added to the fruit display. The work of all the departments of the fair association is progressing quite satisfactory and has begun to make a very creditable showing.

While in the city J. R. Jenkins of the firm of Jenkins Bros., extensive sheep breeders of the Stein Mountain section, purchased the boiler and engine that Mr. Duke has been using for his woodsaw.

Mr. Jenkins desired the boiler to use in connection with his dipping vats. Jenkins Bros. have the most complete apparatus for extensive sheep business in Eastern Oregon. Besides their government regulation dipping vats they have a fine shearing plant.

Some of our ranchers are under the impression that the water supply will be short this season, as much of the snow is gone from the lower hills and the river is not yet bank full. Hay land that has heretofore depended upon the natural flow may suffer, but the snow melting so slowly and sinking into the soil will make the range excellent. Should the rainfall be as much as last season good yields will be had regardless of the overflow.
