This is one of the finest animals in Oregon and first class in every respect second none. He will make the stand for the season at the Stewart ranch Poison creek. Horsemen should be advantage of this. Dr Wells asserts he is the best three-year-old Oregon. Tom Howard, landscape artist at the court house, is a happy man. His hot air engine and pump have been repaired and now furnish all the water required for the beautiful lawn, shrubs and trees in the court house block. The other day Tom Howard's Herald man caught Tom Howard's iron post placed in the yard by the government surgeons showing the altitude. We don't object to his making things up on there but draw the line on raising the elevation for we're high enough.

Dr L E Hibbard and Guy Shaver spent a couple of days at pelican island this week gathering a few choice specimens to add to the collection for the Lewis and Clark exhibit. They arrived home Tuesday evening with several valuable specimens, besides a large collection of eggs. Dr Hibbard says that one would be surprised at the number of pelicans on one island and especially the close proximity of the nests. He states that a person could walk all over the island and each step could be placed in a nest. There are but two eggs in each nest and places were found where coyotes or coons had played havoc by breaking up whole colonies of nests and all the eggs had been sucked.
