W. Cleveland. Meetings of the Council every Second and Fourth Wednesday. Dry Land Farming. It can be done. Dry land farming in Baker county is a success. In the office of the development league is exhibited some splendid specimens of oats, rye, wheat and barley grown on dry land. A few years ago this land was not worth 25 cents an acre on the market and even today thousands of acres of the same land are open to entry. It is dawning, however, upon the eastern man visiting this country, and some of the Oregon raised men that this land contains the choice acres of the Inland Empire. No matter whether we want new people here or not, they are coming, taking up these lands and working them on modern methods, irrigation or no irrigation. M. S. Bond, who three years ago had only two or three hundred dollars to his name, and is now worth that many thousand, besides possessing several hundred acres of dry land clear of all incumbrance from which he has made these thousands, has demonstrated the feasibility of dry land farming and the profits to be made therefrom. It only requires system, careful culture on intelligent lines. These lands will raise anything planted in them. If you don't believe it go and see for yourself. If you don't see right away it may be too late, because the eastern man is coming in and paying a premium for this class of land where crops know no failure. Diversified farming is rapidly taking the place in the Inland Empire of the big ranges. A few years ago nothing was known here but a few large stock ranges and enough hay farms under irrigation, to make the necessary winter feed. Now we are raising in Powder valley all kinds of grain, fruits, hogs, poultry, butter, and every other thing produced on a farm. Farms of 40 and 80 acres are paying a handsome annual profit to families of five or six people. It is being learned that this class of high farming pays better than taking chances on one thing and maybe have that a failure every other year. High bred cattle and stock pay better than the wild variety and smaller bands and herds on home farms make the big money.—Baker City Democrat. "No man becomes great" said Gladstone, "except through many and great mistakes." All history all progress, all success is a record of triumph over blunder. In business, in political or social life, a perfect man has never been found and never will be. Every man must work out his own salvation in all the activities of life. He may profit—if he is wise, he will profit—by the experience of others; but if his career is to be a success, it must be built up upon many and great mistakes. Experience is the greatest teacher, because it shows us not so much how to do things as how not to do them. Every mistake is a stepping stone for something better, something higher. This fact is a key note for a great difference in men. The man who is afraid of making a mistake will probably never accomplish anything worthy or of a permanent character. But mistakes and failures cannot daunt the man who is in earnest. There are comparatively few successes because the average man fails to view his mistakes in the right light. The greatest power on earth is will, and one of the most important problems that confronts man is to adjust correctly the relations between the will and the natural tendency to blunder. Every mistake, to the right-minded man, is an education. The education of man is never complete, because however bright, however great, however thoughtful, however considerate, however kind, however well intentioned a man may be, every man continues to make mistakes in all the affairs of life.—August Pacific Monthly.

Tired Nervous

When you feel languid, tired, nervous and irritable, your vitality is low—your supply of nerve energy exhausted, and your system running down for lack of power.

The organs of the body are working poorly, or not at all, and you are not getting the nourishment needed. This soon impoverishes the blood and instead of throwing off the impurities, distributes it all through the body. This brings disease and misery.

Feed the nerves with Dr. Miles' Nerve, a nerve food, a nerve medicine, that nourishes and strengthens the nerves, and see how quickly you will get strong and vigorous.

"My wife suffered with nervousness previous to a recent attack of typhoid fever, but after her recovery from the fever she was much worse, and could hardly control herself being exceedingly nervous when the least excited. She was very restless at night, and never had a good night's rest. She also suffered much from nervous headaches. Dr. Miles' Nerve was recommended by a friend. After the first three doses she had a good night's rest, and at the end of the first week's treatment she was wonderfully improved. Continued use of Nerve has completed her entire cure."

Dr. Miles' Nerve is sold by your druggist, who will guarantee that it will refund your money. If it fails, he will refund your money. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.

A WONDERFUL INVENTION.

It is interesting to note that fortunes are frequently made by the invention of articles of minor importance. Many of the more popular devices are those designed to benefit people and meet popular conditions, and one of the most interesting of these that has ever been invented is the Dr. White Electric Comb, patented Jan. 1, '99. These wonderful Combs positively cure dandruff, hair falling out, sick and nervous headaches, and when used with Dr. White's Electric Hair Brush are positively guaranteed to make straight hair curly in 25 days time. Thousands of these electric combs have been sold in the various cities of the Union, and
