JULIAN BYRD - - - - - Manager

There was held in Salt Lake City recently a convention that had for its object the work of impressing upon Americans that before touring in foreign lands they should "See America First."

It would be well to consider the fact that the habit of neglecting one's own country to travel abroad breeds provincialism, puts a premium on ignorance of the country's conditions and weakens patriotism.

People who have never seen in Switzerland greater scenic beauty than is spread out before the traveler in the Rockies. People who have floated down the storied Rhine and sing praises of its beauties behold scenes there far inferior to the scenes placed before those who have traversed the course of the Hudson and the Columbia.

The eastern world contains nothing that is worthy of being mentioned in the same day with the Grand Canon and Yosemite Valley. There is nothing in all Europe worthy of being mentioned in the same day with the Yellowstone Park.
