The announcement that the government reclamation service will allow the Oregon Trunk railroad to be built up the Deschutes river, and into the broad table lands of Crook county, will be exceedingly good news to the rapidly increasing number of settlers in that region.

Large areas of that large region tributary to the projected railroad are already under irrigation, and more will be; but aside from these many settlers are proving that they can do fairly well by dry-land farming by the Campbell method, raising good crops without irrigation.
