AND STICK TO IT,

According to This Writer Cross Breeding Many Instances Produces Inferior Animal---Gives Experience.

In the Eagle of April 10th is an article copied from the Rural Spirit and written by one Roscoe Knox on the subject of "Cross Breeding." but the animals he over 7 square feet per lamb, and refers to in his article were mongrel bred animals, and not cross breeding is where we breed a pure bred animal, of one breed to a pure bred animal of another breed. For example, if we were to breed a pure bred Clyde mare to a pure bred Percheron horse, the offspring would be a cross bred animal. An animal bred in this way might be better than either sire or dam, but would have no prepotent power. that is, it would not have the power to transmit its own peculiarities to its offspring with any cess from every standpoint. certainity. But as for this Klamath-Lake region. Portland people are to blame as well as Harriman. By acting with sufficient energy and Crock County Jury Deliberates 15 Hours and enterprise some years ago, they could have prevented this result and bound that region to Portland. But this was not done, as the opportunities of trade with Alaska, the Coquille valley, Tilalmook, and other regions were not improved. Sometimes it seems to be a wonder that Portbred as he calls them. Cross how utterly indifferent it is to land grows, after all, considering extending its domestic trade area. - Journal.
