HARNEY IRRIGATION PROJECT.

Joseph Jacobs, consulting engineer of the U. S. Reclamation Service, and E. I. Davis, an assistant, are here investigating the irrigation possibilities. Considerable preliminary work was done here by the government several years ago...

Mr. Jacobs gives out no encouragement for any definite action by the government in the immediate future, but says that the Hemiston project is practically completed and the Klamath irrigation scheme sufficiently advanced that the reclamation service is looking for other fields of labor...

Mr. Jacobs states that he is here simply to familiarize himself with this section so as to be in a position to make suggestions at the proper time. He has visited the Silvies valley reservoir site and pronounced it one of the finest he has seen...

The Times-Herald views this visit as portending some action by the government in the near future, although Mr. Jacobs gave out no information that would lead to such a conclusion...
