

AN ELECTION EUCHRE.

For a large party try an Election Euchre instead of a regular Military Euchre. Instead of a fort, each table will represent a political party, as Republican, Democratic, Labor, Woman's Suffrage, Prohibition, etc., and posters hung around the rooms will give the names of candidates and perhaps a campaign motto or saying.

Each table has a ballot box for the votes won, and also a supply of colored slips to give out as votes when it loses; four people are at a table, and play for the party represented by their table. As in Military Euchre, one couple from each table goes to play each game at another table, and the remaining couple stays at their own table to play their visitors. Arrange so that the same couples do not play against each other more than once.

Regular bid euchre is played, and the losing couple must give one of their votes to the winners, which the latter will place in the ballot box on their own table. The length of time for each game is optional, but ought not to be more than seven or eight minutes. A regular schedule should be made for each table, which will tell the table to be visited each game, so that there will be no conflicts. Any one who has played at a Military Euchre can do this.

Quaint place cards can be made which will assign the guests to the party for which they will play during the evening.

Simple prizes, consistent with the election idea, such as horns, drums, etc., will prove the funniest. Have the refreshments carry out the idea of free lunches, such as cider, sandwiches, cheese, doughnuts, etc.

Score cards, posters, ballot boxes, etc., can all be easily made and a great deal of fun will lie in their originality.—Mary A. Menner in November Woman's Home Companion.

A forest rangers cabin built in Crook County on plans sent out from Washington is thus described by the Bend Bulletin: The walls are only one thickness of light boards, while the roof is so heavy that the walls bulged and it was necessary to prop them up with jack pine poles. But the strangest and most ridiculous part of all is that through the center of the building there is an open lobby large enough to lead a horse through, with the kitchen on one side and the living room on the other.

NEW CLUBBING PROPOSITION

We have arranged to offer in connection with this paper, the new monthly farm magazine just started at Lincoln, Nebraska, by Prof. H. W. Campbell and devoted to the subject of how to farm in the dry country and how to get best results from soil tillage under normal conditions. This Paper is Campbell's Scientific Farmer and we offer it clubbed with The Times-Herald both for $2.50 per year cash. Prof. Campbell's new paper is a monthly, chock full of good things, the only paper of its kind in the world, and it embodies the results of the editor's many years of painstaking investigation of the soil tillage proposition.
